LAUNCH ESCAPE TEST

SPLASHDOWN

1

00:00:00,000 --> 00:00:11,280

Countdown Commentator: Ten, nine, eight, seven, six, five, four, three, two, one, zero.

2

00:00:11,480 --> 00:00:18,160

Ignition, liftoff (inaudible) Crew Dragon.

3

00:00:21,640 --> 00:00:24,000

Launch Commentator: Vehicle is pitching downrange.

4

00:00:42,080 --> 00:00:46,080

John Insprucker, SpaceX: T plus 30 seconds, Falcon 9 with the Crew Dragon capsule is heading

5

00:00:46,100 --> 00:00:50,809

east from pad 39A, everything looking good right now.

6

00:00:50,809 --> 00:00:55,749

As we get ready for max dynamic pressure, we are now throttling down the first stage

7

00:00:55,749 --> 00:00:56,769

engines on the Falcon 9.

8

00:00:56,769 --> 00:01:00,059

Launch Commentator: Falcon power and telemetry nominal.

9

00:01:00,059 --> 00:01:04,560

MECO, Dragon launch escape initiated.

10

00:01:04,560 --> 00:01:06,400

John: Dragon's away.

11

00:01:09,560 --> 00:01:14,640

Marie Lewis, NASA: And you can hear some really loud cheering in the room.

12

00:01:14,640 --> 00:01:24,470

OK, you just saw a bright flash there – it looks like that may be Falcon 9 breaking up.

13

00:01:24,470 --> 00:01:31,390

John: And we have the view from a different camera on Dragon showing the four main parachutes,

14

00:01:31,390 --> 00:01:34,250

and they're going to fully open.

15

00:01:34,250 --> 00:01:39,480

From fully open, we'll be descending about 20 to 25 feet per second down to the Atlantic.

16

00:01:39,480 --> 00:01:41,490

Marie: All things looking great so far.

17

00:01:41,490 --> 00:01:45,909

We saw the four main parachutes deploy; you're looking at them now, fully open.

18

00:01:45,909 --> 00:01:50,980

Now, those four parachutes are actually going to be released from the capsule after splashdown,

19

00:01:50,980 --> 00:01:52,880

and they'll be recovered, too.

20

00:01:58,320 --> 00:01:59,600

John: And we are down.
