WINNER TIME

In your travels, did you notice that today was a bonza day, the last of autumn's colours being squeezed out of May, and the sun, taking off its overcoat for a last long look, waiting to hang winter upon the prong of autumn's hook.

Beautiful air, and a sky the colour of skies in your mind, the hue you caught as a child and you can't leave behind, blending brown, where trees dropped summer on the ground, and the birds are busy teaching the brood bunched around.

Don't be fooled, if autumn slyly slips into a summer dress, it's last year's fashion just a flash in the pan as a warm caress, before the shawl, shoulder sitting sifts out little bits of cold, and autumn suddenly looks out of style and brown and old.

Darkness comes, on a palette of colours for long winter nights, the cold tones of evening painting stark and starry sights, before mist, the fairy floss kiss descends its cold clamp, and everything is winter land and marked with wonder's stamp.

WANDILIGONG MIST

The cotton wool clouds lay like meringue across the hilltops, a matting of fairy floss mist crowned the caps of the treetops, and every now and then a shaft of yellow sunlight dropped, painting the hunched up hills, where the black sky stopped.

Sun showers spotted the windscreen and the wipers squeaked, while muted autumn tones were bright where sunshine peeked, and the ribbon of tar glistened like a dew drop dappled path, until the rain came down again and nature took another bath.

The curlicue cloudscape draped itself gracefully over the land, like a frilly cuff on the weather coat framing the sky's hand, as it daubed a winter wash across the autumn picture piece, and the May brown metallic hues dyed the golden fleece.

Maybe I could extend it to many other things which I own,

If I should fall victim to some dark and malignant rumour, dcast Written and read by Jim Wilshire.

There was an Aussie digger in the trenches in the war,
Landed in the night on a barbed wire foreign shore,
Running jumping digging, 'though the reasons were unsure.

Left at home a family, young wife and infant son,
I'll be home by Christmas when all the war is done,
Don't fret for me darling, I should have a bit of fun.

Starry eyes are glassy now, thinking of his wife,
This isn't hunting rabbits this is fighting for your life,
Forget about Christmas, the world's in too much strife.

The bombs are like thunder but dirt is the rain,
The sound echoes numbly deep inside my brain,
I didn't know I never had a measurement of pain.

The digger's boots are still, unpolished in the mud,
He only felt the bang as a dying little thud,
The digger's heart has stopped, he has given us his blood.

Now that war's long gone there's another one to try,
Another one to teach the son how to learn to die,
And the only sound left is a muffled mother's cry.

There was an Aussie digger in the trenches in the war,

THE CAT

The cat lay curled in a coiled up ball,
His furry features faced the wall,
His tail tip tapped a mouse code call,
A dancing chance for something small.

Then he sharpened up a sleeping ear,
With half closed eyes he peeked a peer,
Instincts stirred sensed something near,
Nostrils sniffed for the scent of fear.

His tail stopped tapping but it trembled at the tip,
His eyes and ears open plus a sliver of the lip,
Steady ever ready for the mouse to make a slip,
He did a lope & leap & a double back flip.

He played all day with carcass of his kill,
For he thought it wasn't dead & just that it was ill,
But it's just as well he's eaten for he wouldn't have his fill,
'Cause it's not a little mouse just a Teddy Bear called Bill.

RAIN

Pit-a-pat drip, pit-a-pat drip, it's pit-a-pat raining.
Waterfalling from the sky, drip driving draining behemoth big buckets above the damp and light, the same ones which downpour darkness at night.

Wet soaky slippery anywhere the water drips, down your socks slidey slithery slippered slips,
and cats and dogs tumble from the stormy sky,
thunder rumbling barking howls her wettest cry.

Caboodle thumb rumble electric crack attack a billion bulbs brightly bursting blasting back, until the blunderbus thunder busts apart the air,
tearing holes for the lightning to get out of there.

Gurgle swerve glop bubble hurry rush the gutter flushing faster diving through the grating clutter, choking things floating things overflow the path,
plop plop plop now your shoes have had a bath.

Slowly, the silence, breaks through the quiet, waltzing water trickling quickly from the riot,
the aqua opera over so the sun starts straining,
to suck up all the water now it's stopped raining.

Australia, you bloody beauty, you got the Olympic Games.
That'll stop them picking on us and calling us woosey names.
We'll stage a celebration, of mankind and his dream,
Not the way it is, but just the way it seems to seem.

The people will all come here, in planes and flying boats,
And bring in all their money in the pockets of their coats.
And we can sell them souvenirs, like Koalas you sew on,
As long as they're not sourced, in Korea or Taiwan.

We'll hold a moving service with the ceremonial flame,
As it lights a thousand barbies along whatever route it came.
Just to see the smiling tourists with a black & frizzled chop,
And show our hospitality, does not know where to stop.

Australia, you dinkum aussie, we'll wave the flag on high,
Now wait a bloody moment, which flag are we going to fly?
The one for which we've all died twice in a hundred gory wars
Or a logo for a deficit stitched up from Anita's drawers?

Australia, you bloody mongrel, you got the Olympic Games, and started up the pollies adjusting big picture frames.
They'll all be out and angling, for a better political deal.

2022 08 20 skepticzonepodcast <https://youtu.be/72pVjI7uTv8> Mostly Ghostly. Written and read by Jim Wilshire. MOSTLY GHOSTLY

There's something lurking in the shadows, Hey, are you a ghost, a soul departed? Or maybe you're an angel, looking for a host. This time there was an answer, when windows started to rattle, the table rose then crashed to the floor, and we were set for battle.

The cameras whirred as the ghost appeared, in the cold air there, with bony fingers, bold knuckles, craggy face and straggly hair, eyes set back deep in their sockets, staring, stark, raving, mad, would this be a clash of violent wills, could this be really bad?

Never had I seen such a visual trick as this sight I saw before me, if it was a trick with smoke and mirrors, but nothing did assure me, just a realistic sight of an unrealistic thing, a ghost from the dead, and I tried to think what I'd eaten that put chemicals in my head.

It spoke in a feeble, scratchy voice, and I hardly heard a word, my heart, pounding beyond my choice, was all I really heard, and the table started trembling, and it danced across the floor, as the ghost looked straight at me, so he could see what I was for.

Find my corpse. Find my dead body. His words scratched the air, and I looked into his eyes, where I got trapped inside his stare. I'm asking for help, from you, an unbeliever, he wheezed, you must help me find my body, and I felt my body squeezed.

The sky was velvet black with diamond stars in the night, and the sparkled starlight fell like a gentle rain of light, besprinkling the earth in a shimmering silver cloak, falling on the campsite and bedazzling the city folk.

Dry desert air dyed the campfire in glowing embers, and the storyteller told a tale which only he remembers, of a night he saw the Min Min light deep within the dark, on a distant desert claypan in an earthscape cold and stark.

Smiling twinkle lights laughing in the cool crisp air, and moving like men when he knew none were there, just blinking in the distance moving closer as he stared, but he didn't move a muscle and was quite unprepared.

The Min Min took on human form and entered his domain, he thought his mind was playing tricks deep inside his brain, and he rubbed his eyes and tried in vain to clear his mind, but Min Min were around him and his fear was left behind.

They took him starlight strolling across their astral plain,

The lazy cars cruising doing drive by sightings on Lygon, as pedestrians push past tables from an era which is bygone, serving sandwiches with a heavy bill and a breakfast brunch, catering coffee with a cafe latte and a long light lunch.

Chalkboard menus changing by the minute as patrons peer, at the passers by in the posing parade with bottled beer, squinting at the sunlight and hiding behind sunglass eyes, with licked vinegar fingertips and weight watcher thighs.

Eggs easy over with toast and a side order of bacon, another square meal in an endless round of orders taken, and the cars swap places changing faces to pick a park, as tables get turned and serviettes burned, it's getting dark.

Bright Lygon lights fight for the hungry ones doing dinner, to make another choosy customer feel like a winner, with warmed pumpkin soup in the neon nighttime, the stories stay the same but the tellers pick the right time.

The regulars know where to be seated to see the street, with the loud labels aligned on their neat sneakered feet, as the tourists marvel at the cuisine and their choices, exhausts pipe music to back the laughing Lygon voices.

Dark and flicky pictures flash the story on the screen and the hero and the heroine are in a torrid scene, fighting animals and goblins and a man who's very mean and it makes a big impression when you're only just a teen.

It happened on a Saturday, about mid afternoon, before the major movie, but after the cartoon, the giant flashing letters, spelt out, coming soon, the hero of the woodland, the tale of Daniel Boone.

But I forgot about the musket and fighting with a bear when I saw the son of Spartacus with muscles in his hair, and the look of all the leather and the armor that I wear, and that's me on the screen, won't you look at me up there.

That's me in the rocket and I'm shooting into space, chasing all the baddies with a look upon my face that tells you that I'm angry and they haven't got my grace and I blow them all to smithereens and save the human race.

Now I'm a cowboy with a six-gun and a black and saddled horse then I'm a demolition expert who's an expert hand at morse until I'm piloting a jet in some far off allied force, and fighting off Darth Vader with a laser sword of course.

But now I'm getting on in years, the heroes make me cry because they always get the women and they hardly ever die 2022 08 19 skepticzonepodcast <https://youtu.be/farRsW3RJr8> Flamin' Poetry. Written and read by Jim Wilshire.

The old man sat in a rocking chair and looked at me and laughed, I'd asked him about a poem he wrote and about the bush poem craft. He stopped his cackling and sized me up and looked me in my eye, and said, "You want to write a tale of the bush, well this is how you try."

Transcript Link

"Now, the main thing in a bush poem are the words you want to use, a bloody good word is "flamin'", 'though it's easy to flamin' abuse." He said, "Shove it in while you're mentioning a feature of the scrub, like the fury in a flamin' bull or the cost of a coldie at the flamin' pub."

Well, this was all very well, a quite simple bush poetry device, but I wanted to extract a little more of this bush poet's sage advice, so I asked him about the rhymes he'd use and how he made them fit, and he chortled again in his rocking chair, then told me, bit by bit.

"You've got to pick the proper colour from the tapestry of the land, and interweave the pictures in the colours which come to hand, so if you're talking about the dried earth cracked up by a drought, paint pictures with the driest words and rhymes will come about."

"Or maybe you'll write about bushfires as they make a forest blaze, so you've got to use some fiery words to capture that flamin' phase, look towards some yellow words with some little licks of white,

He finally blamed god's mother, for their son's particular bent, claimed she'd cheated his genes, but that's as far as he went, so he washed his hands of his son and heir, shrugging as he did, and he put the universe back in the box and firmly shut the lid.

I got one of those shock pads for building up your muscles, sick of shifting weights and heaving all those heavy tussles, this way I could strap it on and then watch the television, so to get great big muscles became my primary decision.

Well I fell asleep one night, didn't I don't ask yes I really did, had it around my thigh and my leg started kicking like a kid, and before I woke up I'd done about twenty laps of the house, pulled up all the carpets found four dollars and one mouse.

So now I only fit into half of my pants, no, the left half, and I don't know if I should build up the weedy thigh and calf, or wait for the right one to wither a bit, to fit in my suit, and I'd have to let my toe muscles dwiddle to fit in the boot.

I actually did it with the left arm as well, unfortunately, yeah, it attracts attention, you should see the balanced people stare, and it makes driving a bit more hazardous than apnea, it's very hard to park properly, unless there's a gap near.

So my advice would be don't fool around with satan's toys, electrical stimulator type strap on devices have no joys, they're just a constant source of that which is a distraction, the gut snapping pulse of one's own peristaltic contraction.

				How come those buttons, are covering the phones,          Where is the handle, &amp; what makes those tones?          "Are you extending?", has become "You're on hold.",          I'd rather be asked, instead of just told.
				The ha`penny lolly, is a long lick away,          Like threepenny suckers, which lasted all day.          &amp; twopenny bungers, hated letterboxes you know,          Now I wish the junk mail, would just up and blow.
				I'm confused by the weights, don't know what I weigh,          Nor how tall I am, in a metrical way.

Written and read by Jim Wilshire.	The storm broke the back of the blackest night,          and opened holes with its blinding light,          thunder rumbled from all around,          as birds took flight from the frightening sound.	Transcript Link
				Brilliant bolts of lightning pointed,          to the holy house of the unanointed,          and dogs howled at the hidden moon,          behind the clouds like a black balloon.
				Was it a house or was it a castle?          Wrapped in the night like a menacing parcel,          waiting in the darkness for who would call,          on the darkness night of nights of all.
				Castle or mansion, it mattered none,          this was the home of hobgoblins' fun,          the birthing place of a demon's delight,          a door to hell where all is not alright.
				Inside the creaking, leaking walls,          echoed the sounds of the inmates' calls,          stifled screams and blood curdling yells,          of people imprisoned in private hells.
				In the middle of the room a spirit rose,          like a see-through sheet in a ghostly pose,

2022 08 19 skepticzonepodcast <https://youtu.be/GplSjd09d9o> Bachelor of Séance. Written and read by Jim Wilshire. Transcript Link

You're a Bachelor of Séance, so I guess that means you know, how to constantly keep in touch, with those who've had to go, and how to summon up their spirits, if they're slightly willing, and speak to the dead, why that really is quite thrilling.

Does this gift which you have, mean you could talk to pets, and do you do it via the ether, or through the media of vets, could you get in contact, say, with my dear departed cat, or having been once run over, is that the end of that?

And what about my dog, do you think you'd hear him bark, from that big doggy playground, the dead dog departed park? Having made a connection, could I be absolutely sure, that the dog you were communing, was the pet I'm pining for?

I'm worried about the chance, of the wrong contact being made, that you might get a canine, with which I never played, but someone else's pet, which wouldn't answer to my call, or, perish the thought, you'd get no dead dog's soul at all.

No, I might just have to wait, until I join my passed on pets, it seems you might be trying, to lay off my psychic bets, and as for my parents, well, although you have that ticket, I think the school was fooling, so you know where you can stick it.

Autumn leaves her leaves on the ground,
Their crispy crunch is an autumn sound,
Played by the animals camped around.

Grey-brown nests are winter-downed,
Inside leaves the birds have found,
As leaves have left the branches, browned.

Park paths are golden, newly crowned,
With sport to taunt a playful hound,
By just one tempting, playful bound.

Nuts and berries, grown summer round,
With winter instincts tightly wound,
Are animal food in an autumn mound.

As summer colours are softly drowned,
By autumn's pastel-soft surround,
Her winter brow is firmly frowned.

Angus

She looked at me languidly and I responded with a smile, then I probably looked vacant because she wasn't quite my style, and when I went to speak to say a simple how are you, she passed a motion to ignore me as she did a number two.

It was naturally disgusting but that's what you get from these, females called Angus, well, I ask you, please, what did I expect beyond a chance to chew the cud, with a silly old moo who as a date was just a dud.

It's a very masculine name for any poor old girl to carry, and not the sort of name any poor boy'd want to marry, it made a heifer more a hooper like a hereford in drag, as even a dear old Daisy would be a better tag.

That's what you get with cows grazing on the range, a bit of animal husbandry that's sometimes pretty strange, so I think I'll stick to women who are less prone to disgrace, and who carry out ablutions in the right and proper place.

Many of these fears begin as mere phantom fears, but are systematically amplified by social media, news media, bad actors and even well-intentioned activists. There are numerous challenges facing the U.S., but Americans must sort through which fears are legitimate threats and which are amplified exaggerations. This book examines the role of fear in national panics and addresses why many Americans believe the country is in horrible shape and will continue to deteriorate (despite contradictory evidence). https://www.amazon.com/America-Fearful-Marketing-National-Panics/dp/1476687722 0:25:25 The Book of Tim. The Skeptic Zone #665 - 4 July 2021 Dedicated to the memory of Shelley Stocken The Skeptic Zone is very sad to inform you that our much loved former reporter Shelley Stocken died unexpectedly on Saturday 26 June 2021. She was surrounded by family. Episode #665 is dedicated to her memory, including a replay of one of her reports. We send our heartfelt condolences to her family. Shelley's reports were interesting, funny and educational. Her work in the skeptical community made a difference. She was a delight to know and work with. Thank you Shelley, from the team at the Skeptic Zone.

Cancer research and COVID-19 myths. Dr Sathana Dushyanthen is a Science Communicator and Lecturer at the University of Melbourne and the Victorian Comprehensive Cancer Centre. As part of her Sci Comm work, she has a YouTube channel through which she covers popular science topics and current research. Most recently, she has done a series on COVID-19 vaccine conspiracies.  https://youtu.be/xe5HLfE8TEA      https://pintofscience.com.au  0:17:50 The Long Arm of the Law The Federal Trade Commission (USA) charged St. Louis-based chiropractor Eric Anthony Nepute and his company Quickwork LLC with violating the COVID-19 Consumer Protection Act and the Federal Trade Commission Act, by deceptively marketing products containing vitamin D and zinc as scientifically proven to treat or prevent COVID-19. This week we feature the response from skeptic Ken McLeod. Just who is this mysterious midwife who is complaining about COVID-19 vaccinations? 0:10:20 Crazy COVID-19 Claim You will not believe the crazy claim the Australian government has had to rebut on their official COVID-19 website. Joining Richard to discuss this foolishness are Adrienne Hill and Leonard Tramiel. COVID-19 vaccines do not - and cannot - connect you to the internet. Some of the mRNA vaccines being developed include the use of a material called a hydrogel, which might help disperse the vaccine slowly into our cells. Bioengineers have used similar hydrogels for many years in different ways. For instance, they've used them to help stem cells survive after being put inside our bodies. Because of this, some people believe that hydrogels are needed for electronic implants, which can connect to the internet. https://www.health.gov.au/initiatives-and-programs/covid-19-vaccines/is-it-true/is-it-true-can-covid-19-vaccines-connect-me-to-the-internet 0:26:00 Australian Skeptics Newsletter What skeptical news has caught the eye of Tim Mendham this week? http://www.skeptics.com.au 0:33:44 A Dive into a Trove A wander through the decades of digitised newspapers on a search for references to the The National Centre for Science Education and Dr Eugenie Scott. We read out some typical COVID-19 vaccine conspiracy flyers that were placed on cars in an Australian Hospital car park. 0:13:21 You Can Count On Adrienne. With Adrienne Hill Not long ago on the Skeptic Zone, Adrienne looked at the myth that bad things happen in 3's. This week she turns the tables and looks for examples of good things happening in 3's. Is this a case of second time lucky for the number 3? 1, 2, 3 and off we go! 0:25:14 A Dive into a Trove A wander through the decades of digitised newspapers, this time from the USA, on a search for references to the 'Psychic Predictions' and the Bay Area Skeptics. http://www.trove.nla.gov.au Also Corona Conspiracy - Upload Images https://coronaconspiracy.cloud Sydney Skeptics in the Pub with Dr Paul Willis https://www.meetup.com/en-AU/AustSkeptics	Transcript Link

What is a migraine? According to the Mayo Clinic, "migraine can cause severe, throbbing pain or a pulsing sensation, usually on one side of the head. It's often accompanied by nausea, vomiting, and extreme sensitivity to light and sound." These attacks can last hours or days and many people experience a warning aura. 0:15:26 Australian Skeptics Newsletter What skeptical news has caught the eye of Tim Mendham this week? http://www.skeptics.com.au 0:22:13 COVID-19 Clunkers More madness from the world of COVID-19 conspiracy theorists. https://coronaconspiracy.cloud 0:33:47 A Dive into a Trove A wander through the decades of digitised Australian newspapers on a search for references to Superstitions. http://www.trove.nla.gov.au Also Corona Conspiracy - Upload Images https://coronaconspiracy.cloud Maynard's Quiz - 8.30pm 4 April (Sydney Time) http://www.maynard.com.au Online Talks - Canberra Skeptics https://canberraskeptics.org	Transcript Link

This occurs when a person makes a claim that something is true, then supports that claim with an explanation that includes highly technical jargon from a field that is difficult to comprehend. It also occurs when a claim is based on pure gibberish in lieu of a strong argument. A Logical Fallacy is an error we can make in reasoning, but it usually crops up when we are discussing or arguing our point of view. 0:23:29 Facebook Puts Critical Health Information at Risk Like many organisations, Australian Skeptics Inc was affected by Facebook's changes to sharing and viewing news in Australia. Former Australian Skeptics committee member and one of the founders of the 'Mystery Investigators' show for schools, Alynda Brown tells us of her investigations of "Psychics" and strange medical claims of the early 2000s, including undergoing hypnosis to increase her bust size! 0:29:43 Plandemic conspiracy video plays cat-and-mouse with platforms The anti-vaccine conspiratorial "documentary" Plandemic, which makes a range of misleading claims about COVID-19, has been playing a cat-and-mouse game with social media platforms since it was launched across a range of sites. It was initially published on May 4 (US time) on video sites Vimeo and YouTube, and quickly followed on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and even the business 'match-up' site LinkedIn. - Tim Mendham https://www.skeptics.com.au/2020/05/12/plandemic-conspiracy-video-plays-cat-and-mouse-with-platforms/ 0:40:09 Logical Fallacies. With Michelle Bijkersma This week Michelle looks at "The Slippery Slope". Also known as "The thin edge of the wedge" or "The domino fallacy", this is where it is asserted that a relatively small step or action in a certain direction will inevitably lead to a chain of events with a larger and negative result. A Logical Fallacy is an error we can make in reasoning, but it usually crops up when we are discussing or arguing our point of view. 0:49:47 Good News / Bonkers News The Good: A church in Australia, selling bleach as a coronavirus treatment, is fined $151,200. With Mandy-Lee Noble The COVID-19 pandemic has for many of us brought significant change to our lives and even to how we think and what we value. And in these times you may have come to expect that in a Post-COVID world where health professionals and scientists are considered heroes the place for pseudoscience in health would have significantly diminished but unfortunately that is not the case. https://www.tga.gov.au/media-release/pete-evans-company-fined-alleged-covid-19-advertising-breaches 0:45:40 Logical Fallacies. The U.S. spacecraft, Eagle, carrying Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, touched down on the lunar surface early today (Sydney time). 0:12:30 Moon Landings Were No Hoax Continuing to believe that the Moon landings were faked, despite the solid evidence from many quarters that confirm the missions, despite the thorough and painstaking debunking of every major objection from the conspiracy theorists (from popular TV shows such as MythBusters to hundreds of detailed explanations online) is NOT being sceptical... it is being a science denier. It is the same mindset that leads people to deny the Earth is round or that climate change is also just another hoax.

The contractor, Downer and the Wellington City Council are not concerned at the public's perception their money has been spent on disproved science. Rather than use electronic equipment, a Downer contractor working on a Wellington City Council project used two copper rods to tell him where pipes lay.

Healing Touch at Queensland University
Australia's first university-based (but not university endorsed) healing touch clinic has opened in Townsville at James Cook University (JCU). Healing touch is described as an energy-balancing therapy administered through gentle touching and manipulation of energy from a distance, similar to reiki or acupressure.
Dr Steve Roberts and Richard Saunders comment on this sad state of affairs.

				0:04:10 A Grain of Salt with Eran Segev This week Eran talks with Jonny Scaramanga who grew up in the UK as a Christian fundamentalist. Most people think this kind of fundamentalism does not exist in Britain, or it is limited to certain ethnic communities, like black pentecostals. They have no idea what fundamentalists believe, and certainly no clue what it&rsquo;s like to be one.

0:06:30 An interview with Daniel Loxton Daniel joins us to chat about his new book, Plesiosaur Peril (Tales of Prehistoric Life). A group of plesiosaurs -- ocean-dwelling cousins of the dinosaurs -- keeps safe by swimming in a family pod. But then one baby plesiosaur swims too far from its mother and attracts the attention of something very large and very hungry, and the struggle for survival is on. A unique blend of digital artwork and landscape photography illustrates this thrilling encounter.

Everyone from casual skeptics to the experienced participate, give talks and get to know each other.  Diverging from the traditional lecture events which have dominated skepticism for decades, these 'open events' tear down the barriers to organizing substantive (and fun) events by building on the wildly-successful Barcamp conference model from the tech community.	Transcript Link
