On episode 322 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by Frank Kimbler, a geologist and professor at the New Mexico Military Institute. Over the past decade, Kimbler has dedicated himself to finding physical evidence left behind by whatever crashed just outside Roswell in 1947. Upon triangulating what he believes was the direct impact site, he has found, over the years, more than twenty metallic fragments. Those fragments have been analyzed and tested by various laboratories throughout the years, some of which, carried out with the help of Ryan. Today, Kimbler shares the dramatic history of his findings, the intriguing results of various tests, and exciting news about new metals found out at the site.

UFO--The Untold Stories goes beyond the question of whether UFOs exist to investigate the close relationship between the military and strange sightings. New evidence from the former Soviet republics adds credibility to the UFO case file, but also calls into question why our government authorities, with so much evidence of their own, are reluctant to give the subject the attention it deserves.

Somewhere in the Skies On episode 320 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we travel to the small city of Winchester, England, to hear the incredible story of Joyce Bowles. In November of 1976, she and a friend were on the road, heading home. But then they witnessed something in the sky that soon descended directly in front of them. The story Joyce would tell of what happened that night would make its way across the airwaves of BBC news not long after. And this would only be the beginning of a series of close encounters by Joyce and several other witnesses in the surrounding areas of Winchester.

In November 1994, two mobile radar tracking stations at the Nellis Range in Nevada captured what is believed to be unidentified aerial phenomena (UAP).
It's claimed that a contractor operating one of the tracking stations obtained the video by filming the screens of two CCTV monitors. After smuggling out the video, it is said that a copy was given to an Air Force employee who subsequently sold the video to Paramount Studios. Brief excerpts of the video appeared in 1995 on the television programs "Hard Copy" and "Sightings."
In 1995, an in-depth analysis of the footage was performed by Martin J. Powell. Powell's analysis suggests the footage was filmed at differing times on the same day, by two separate radar tracking stations. Geographic image analysis points to the encounters occurring near Black Mountain and Gold Flat on the Tonopah Test Range.

On episode 318 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Jonathan Dover and Stanley Milford, the Navajo Paranormal Rangers. The Navajo Rangers is an organization of the Navajo Nation, spanning over 27,000 square miles of territory in the Southwestern United States. Navajo Rangers are tasked with critical duties like forest fire evacuations, search and rescues, and assisting in investigations across the Navajo Nation. However, in the year 2000, they were tasked with undertaking unique cases under the banner of "Special Investigations" which would include everything from Bigfoot, UFOs, Skinwalkers and other unexplained phenomena. Today, they share some of their most compelling and impactful cases, how they undertook their investigations, and where they stand today on the mysterious phenomena happening across the Navajo Nation and beyond.

2023 04 10 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/PcC21xkgi0k> Leslie Kean and Diana Walsh Pasulka A Cosmic Conversation #rebroadcast #uap #aliens Transcript Link

On episode 312 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan regretfully shares that due to a recent injury, he was unable to bring you a brand-new episode this week. BUT... this episode will be a rebroadcast of a fascinating conversation with Leslie Kean and Diana Walsh Pasulka!

Leslie Kean is the author of the New York Times Best-Selling book, UFOs: Generals, Pilots, and Government Officials Go on the Record. She also co-authored the 2017 bombshell New York Times article, Glowing Auras and 'Black Money': The Pentagon's Mysterious U.F.O. Program. This article immediately went viral and showed the world that the Pentagon, against all public knowledge and statements, were investigating UFOs. Diana Walsh Pasulka, a professor of religious studies, is the author of the groundbreaking book, American Cosmic: UFOs, Religion, Technology, which follows several high tech entrepreneurs in Silicon Valley who are deeply entrenched in the UFO topic and are spending a lot of time and money investigating the Phenomenon. The book also shows how the topic is gradually becoming a new age religion as more and more people start to believe in an extraterrestrial presence both in our skies and possibly even here on our planet. In this episode, Leslie and Diana dig deep in to the hard questions and the fundamental shift in our way of thinking when it comes to flying saucers and an extraterrestrial presence.

On episode 311 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we take a look back as ten UFO cases throughout history that remain unexplained even up until today. From UFOs colliding with a plane and then guiding it to safety in Mexico to U.S. Air Force personnel shooting and killing a runaway alien. From an extremely close encounter in the lavender fields of France to startling audio of police officers chasing down UFOs in Ohio. These are some of Ryan's favorite UFO cases, and may even be new to even some of the most seasoned of UFO enthusiasts. These are the Somewhere in the Skies case files.

#comicbooks #uap #comics

On episode 310 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by Rob Kristoffersen, host of the Our Strange Skies podcast, and Todd Purse, artists and host of Creative Weirdos. Together, Rob and Todd have created the web-comic, "Welcome UFO People," where each monthly comic is devoted to true UFO, alien and cryptid encounters. We hear the story of the how and why the comic came to be, the research and creative process, and then they discuss each case they've covered so far. We also get a tease of what cases they'll be covering in the future, and why UFO case histories are a lost art in the current landscape of UFO discourse.

On episode 306 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by former U.S. Navy pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Alex Dietrich. On November 14th, 2004, during a training mission with the Navy's Nimitz Carrier Strike Group, Dietrich, along with several other pilots, intercepted and witnessed something unexplainable while flying over the Pacific Ocean. The mysterious object, now widely known as the "Tic Tac", made extraordinary maneuvers that left the pilots completely baffled. The object would subsequently be caught on camera by another pilot soon after, and the video would eventually be leaked to the NY Times. Since then, the Nimitz UFO encounter has become one of the most talked about UFO events in modern history. Today, Dietrich joins us to describe the event from her perspective, gives her thoughts on how we can move forward with the scientific study of UFOs, and then answers your listener questions.

2023 02 10 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/01zaBCEU7rU> U.S. Shoots Down High-Altitude Object over Alaska - Pentagon Press Conference #Alaska #spyballoon #uap

The Pentagon, at the direction of President Biden, shot down a "high altitude object" over Alaska airspace on Friday, National Security Council spokesperson John Kirby confirmed during Friday's White House briefing. The incident comes several days after the Pentagon took down a Chinese spy balloon that crossed much of the continental U.S.

Transcript Link

Kirby, asked about the possibility of another object floating over U.S. airspace, said he "can confirm that the Department of Defense was tracking a high-altitude object over Alaska in the last 24 hours." The Pentagon is still assessing this latest object, and it's not clear who owns it or what its purpose was.

Kirby said this latest object was the size of a "small car," and over a "very sparsely populated" area, allowing for it to be taken down more easily than the Chinese spy balloon that was larger than the Statute of Liberty. Kirby said the president's main concern was the threat this latest object posed to civilian flights. This latest object landed off the Alaskan coast.

"The object was flying at an altitude of 40,000 feet and posed a reasonable threat to the safety of civilian flight," Kirby said. "Out of an abundance of caution and at the recommendation of the Pentagon, President Biden ordered the military to down the object and they did, and it came inside our territorial waters. Those waters

On episode 302 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we head to Brazil to explore the rich history of UFOs throughout the country. In June of 2022, the Brazilian Senate convened to hear testimony from its own military and government officials about UFOs. Also present were speakers from the United States and the United Kingdom. Throughout the course of the hearing, many UFO events were brought to light. We will explore several of these cases, including sightings that were photographed off the coast of Trindade, which would be dubbed "UFO Island. We'll also hear of a string of mass UFO sightings dubbed "The Night of the UFOs" and the official investigation into these anomalous phenomena which would be officially investigated under the code name: Operação Prato (Operation Saucer).

On episode 298 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we explore the 1992 alien abduction case of Garry Woods and Colin Wright. While traveling down the A70 road in Scotland, they would encounter a saucer-shaped craft above their car. Then, everything went black and they found themselves on the side of the road with over two hours of missing time. What exactly happened in those missing hours? Featuring Scottish UFO researcher, Malcolm Robinson, we hear the incredible story which has become one of the most famous and controversial UFO cases in Scotland.

On episode 293 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by the one and only Whitley Strieber. Strieber is probably best known for his breakout non-fiction book, Communion, which became an instant best-seller in 1989. Communion brought the alien abduction phenomenon to the forefront of pop culture with its terrifying, yet fascinating story and its iconic book cover of what is now known as the alien "grey". The book was later made into a feature film, starring Christopher Walken as Strieber. Since then, Strieber's journey with what he calls "The Visitors" has only grown stronger, especially after the passing of his wife. Today, Strieber will discuss the pinnacle experience that drove him to write Communion, his continuing search to find answers, the connections between UFOs and the afterlife, and then he answers listener questions.

On episode 290 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, it is a brand-new installment of witness accounts. From seeing a grey alien on the sidewalk in New Jersey to a possible moment of contact with the Phoenix Lights craft in 1997. We then head to the UK and Australia to hear the accounts of several witnesses who experienced all different types of anomalous phenomena. It is yet another emotional and profound volume of accounts that continue to have us seeking answers to these mysteries, somewhere in the skies.

On episode 288 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we explore a more positive side of UFO and contact experience phenomena. These are six stories of individuals from across the world who claimed to have been healed by the occupants of non-human craft. From injuries being healed to life-threatening illnesses being completely cured, all by the hands of something truly otherworldly. We also hear from Travis Walton, and why he now believes that he actually died during his abduction experience, but was brought back to life by his captors. These are the incredible stories of those who claimed to have been healed by an alien.

On episode 287 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we speak to Tom Orzechowski and John Zoitos, creators and writers of the upcoming comic book series, "Estimate of the Situation". This new series, covering the true history of the U.S. Government's first attempts at investigating UFOs (Previous to Project Blue Book) is based on declassified documents and extensive historical research. It is an exploration into the beginning of the UFO phenomenon and the implications to its levels of secrecy. We'll discuss how the comic book came to be, what to expect, and how the past inevitably always comes back to haunt us, even when it comes to UFOs.

On episode 286 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we dissect the extraordinary story of Rosa Lotti, a peasant-woman, who, in 1954, had a bizarre close encounter in Italy. She would come face-to-face with two small men and the cone-shaped craft they arrived in. What happened next would send her running for her life. We trace the timeline of events, including several other witnesses. We then explore the other incredible UFO close encounters that occurred in Italy not only in the same year, but some on the same day and region where Rosa Lotti had her harrowing experience.

On episode 282 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by the one and only Jacques Vallée. Vallée is an Internet pioneer, computer scientist, venture capitalist, author, UFO researcher, and astronomer. He is regarded as one the most respected and senior scientific investigators on UFOs, having written over two dozen books on the topic. He has investigated reports of UFOs all over the world and has worked on related U.S. and French government projects. As a computer scientist, he co-developed the first computer-based detailed map of Mars for NASA. He also served as a close associate of Dr. J. Allen Hynek, the top scientific consultant on UFOs under Project Blue Book. He also worked as a member of the scientific advisory board of Bigelow Aerospace and conducted private research for their partners, which included the Pentagon's highly controversial AATIP program.

Today, Vallée will discuss the new edition of his book, Trinity: The Best Kept Secret, which explores a UFO crash at the Trinity Atomic Testing site, prior to the Roswell UFO crash of 1947. He will also discuss his latest work analyzing UFO materials and publishing scientifically reviewed papers on these materials. Vallée will share some of his most vivid memories throughout the years of investigating different cases and how they impacted his personal life. It is a powerful and emotional interview that explores the historical perspective of the world during certain UFO events, and why we must look back in order to move forward.

On episode 280 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we explore the Milton Torres UFO incident. In 2007, the UK's Ministry of Defense released thousands of UFO files to the public. Among them were reports of simple lights in the sky. But some stood out as being truly incredible. One of those was the story of Milton Torres, a decorated United States Air Force pilot, who, while stationed in England in 1957, was ordered to shoot down a UFO. What exactly was caught on radar, tracked by the pilot, and locked on to fire at? You'll hear directly from Milton Torres about that harrowing day.

On episode 278 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan reports LIVE from the inaugural Midwest Conference on the Unknown in Cape Girardeau, MO! You'll hear exclusive interviews on site with paranormal power couple, Tobias and Emily Wayland of the Singular Fortean Society, as we hear all about their recent and latest investigations into winged flying creatures, UFOs, and a possible mer-man! We then switch gears and have a fascinating discussion with noted cryptozoologist, Ken Gerhard, about the evidence supporting the existence of the Loch Ness Monster and Bigfoot. We also discuss the possible connections between Bigfoot sightings and UFOs. Then, Ryan chats with researcher, Joshua Cutchin, about his latest books concerning UFOs as a death symbol, in what he's titled, Ecology of Souls: A New Mythology of Death & the Paranormal. We then wrap things up with an exciting conversation with the "Liminal Librarian" herself, Courtney Block, as she traces the history of underrepresented paranormal researchers of the past, and the future of paranormal research as we continue to explore the unknown. You've been granted a front seat to what Ryan and the rest of the speakers and attendees experienced at this highly successful conference, with plenty more to come!

You're probably wondering what this episode is. This is one of my all-time favorite episodes from our friends over at the Alien Theorists Theorizing Podcast! When I'm not researching and creating new episodes of Somewhere in the Skies, I like to unwind with some comedy podcasts. And this is definitely one of those. But I can't quite give up the whole UFO thing either. So this is why I love listening to hosts, Zel, Braden, Andrew, and Dan as they navigate their way through the UFO muck to bring forth some of the most compelling cases, people, and theories in Ufology. Today, I'm dropping one of those episode in the feed so that you can hear these guys in action. I hope you enjoy, and I hope you'll consider subscribing to the Alien Theorists Theorizing podcast today!

Episode summary: On September 23, 1980, UFO investigator Leonard Stringfield received a letter that claimed to be from a former military security guard who had witnessed a series of events that sounded like they had come straight out of a science-fiction double feature. Under the pseudonym James Morse, the author of the letter would begin a years long correspondence with Stringfield, that culminated in alleged documentation of military service members coming into direct and violent contact with an extraterrestrial. Morse claimed to have witnessed the final minutes of an unidentifiable creature that had reportedly been shot by security personnel on the grounds of Fort Dix in New Jersey. Morse's claims would fall in line with a book released in 2019 by a

On episode 274 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by United States Air Force veteran, and former employee of both Area 51 and Skinwalker Ranch, Christopher Bartel. Bartel runs us through his time at both of these highly mysterious locations and the things he witnessed and experienced while working there. Having worked for Robert Bigelow's BAASS for eight years, six of which were spent stationed at Skinwalker Ranch, Bartel created The Skinwalker Ranch Series, a series of landscape photographs taken from 2010 to 2016 that depict the ranch in its raw state, and also function as a visual memoir of the time he spent there. Bartel shares his documentation of the Native American connections to the ranch, and gives his honest thoughts on how the investigations were conducted. He also discusses the highly controversial question of whether it not he and others were used as "guinea pigs" to see how the ranch were affect them physically. It's a wide-ranging discussion with brutal honesty from someone who was there to try to uncover the secret of Skinwalker Ranch.

Summary: On March 4th, 1988, near the icy waters of Lake Erie, Henry and Sheila Baker were driving home with their three children. As they drove along, Sheila saw something glowing out over the lake, and told her husband to pull over so they could get a closer look. Soon, they watched as a large craft hovered over the frozen waters, the sounds of ice crackling the whole time. After a dramatic encounter, the Coast Guard arrived to investigate, along with the Bakers. What was seen above Lake Erie?

On episode 270 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Tim Barnes. Barnes is a New York City based comedian, TV writer, and creator of the new Comedy Central animated series, Maurice on Mars. The series follows Maurice, a 25-year-old Black struggling artist-who happens to work minimum wage at a coffee shop on Mars. The Martian colony is supposed to be a utopia, yet old Earth problems still manage to pop up in the cafe, sometimes as fierce debates, and other times as fist fights. Each episode follows Maurice just trying to get through a day of work on a planet far away from home. The series, made in partnership with Cartuna, was written and created by Barnes (The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon), and features a cast including Lori Beth Danberg (All That), Clare O’Kane (Shrill), Dwayne Kennedy (How High, Martin). Today, we'll discuss the inception of the series, the social issues it touches on, and Barnes' thoughts on alien life, UFOs, and so much more!

On episode 268 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are unlocking one of our most listened to bonus episodes over on Patreon in which we speak with UFO researcher, David Marler. Marler is best known for his black triangle UFO work. However, in this exclusive interview, he shares a fascinating and terrifying case he's recently researched. In 1964 in Hobbs, New Mexico, Charles Keith Davis, a young boy at the time, noticed something strange in the sky that seemed to be getting closer. As it continued descending, Charles noticed a bright flame bursting from it. Soon, he was entirely engulfed in a fiery blaze and that was only the beginning! Marler walks us through the case and shares exclusive audio from the boy's grandmother who rescued him during the event, and exclusive audio from an interview he conducted with the witness almost sixty years after that harrowing day.

A House Intelligence subcommittee on Tuesday held the first congressional hearing on UFOs in more than 50 years. Testimony was heard from Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security Ronald Moultrie and Deputy Director of Naval Intelligence Scott Bray, who are overseeing the Pentagon's new task force investigating what are now being called unidentified aerial phenomena (UAPs).

Rep. André Carson (D-Ind.), the chairman of the House Counterterrorism, Counterintelligence and Counterproliferation Subcommittee, began the meeting with a call to destigmatize UAP reporting for pilots and other military officials. The following was the public hearing, with a closed door classified hearing taking place directly after.

Lacatski, of 'Skinwalkers at the Pentagon: An Insiders' Account of the Secret Government UFO Program.' Officially reviewed by the U.S. Department of Defense and cleared for public release, this is a follow-up to their 2005 book, 'Hunt for the Skinwalker.' This new book unmask the massive scope of the Pentagon's landmark UFO study that ran from the Defense Intelligence Agency, The Advanced Aerospace Weapon System Applications Program, or AAWSAP, which investigated the "Tic Tac" and other "nuts and bolts" UFO events. The program also probed the plethora of bizarre phenomena that government investigators encountered on Skinwalker Ranch. By the end of the two-year program, more than a hundred separate technical reports, some of which ran to hundreds of pages, were delivered to the Defense Intelligence Agency. Today, Knapp and Kelleher detail some of those findings, discuss aspects of the book nobody has asked them about yet, and then answer listener questions.

2022 02 27 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/D8hGg2B5pBg> Somewhere in the Skies UFOs over India #India #Sanskrit #UAP

On episode 254 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we explore the rich history of UFOs over India. From the ancient Sanskrit texts describing advanced flying machines that could traverse planets to mysterious close encounters by civilians and military of modern day. We span centuries to hear of strange light phenomena, flying discs and triangles that flew through the skies, and in their wake, left endless questions for those on the ground who saw them. What might the sightings of yesterday tell us about the sightings of today? And just exactly what steps are being taken in India to attempt to understand these phenomena?

On episode 253 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by astrophysicist, Beatriz Villarroel. A curiosity in the cosmos at a young age sparked a lifetime of looking up at the stars for Villarroel. This would lead her to Postdoctoral research (Nordic Fellow) at Stockholm University, Sweden, and as an affiliated researcher with Instituto de Astrofísica de Canarias in Tenerife, Spain. She also serves as the Principal Investigator of the "Vanishing & Appearing Sources during a Century of Observations (VASCO) Project. After recently being awarded the 2021 L'Oreal For Women in Science in Sweden prize, she continues her search for answers to vanishing stars and other luminous objects, which naturally leads to a bigger search for extraterrestrial intelligence. Today, she speaks with Chrissy and Ryan about these incredible projects, her thoughts on UFOs and the possibility of ET life, and the importance of Citizen Science as we move in to a new era of exploration, somewhere in the skies.

On episode 252 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we head to British Columbia to hear the decades-long journey of a man searching for answers to what he's seen in the skies above Canada. From strange lights with whispers of intelligence to ominous black and silver discs along cliff edges. Multi-colored cloud formations with objects dropping out of them to boomerang-shaped craft multiplying before his very eyes. It seemed that no matter where Reiny Horne went, aerial phenomena would follow. This is a collection of what he and other witnesses experienced, as he, like so many others, continues to search for answers somewhere in the skies.

On episode 250 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan takes us down the mysterious and terrifying road of Denise Stoner and her claimed alien abduction experiences. After suffering missing time during a road trip with her husband and daughter, she knew something truly strange had occurred. A chance meeting many years later would unravel not just the missing time of that strange night, but an entire lifetime of experiences. Even more compelling, Ed Stoner, Denise's husband, would have startling memories of his own.

This episode includes dramatizations from the actual hypnosis transcripts of both Denise and Ed Stoner.

For some reason, when the Somewhere in the Skies channel first launched, YouTube took down the very first episode of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES. It was the premiere episode with a fascinating discussion with historian, author, and UFO researcher, Richard Dolan. This was pre-New York Times article, Navy UFO videos, and the explosion within the mass-media when it came to the UFO topic. So, here is a look back at the conversation we had with Richard Dolan, as we continue to head into uncharted waters when it comes to UFOs and the ways in which our media portrays this highly controversial topic.

#SarahCruddas #Astrophysics #CraigCharles

On episode 248 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by astrophysicist and space journalist, Sarah Cruddas. Cruddas joins forces with BBC favorite, Craig Charles to search for possible evidence that could prove the existence of UFOs in their new Sky History series, UFO Conspiracies. In each episode, the pair tackle a famous major UFO sighting by scrutinizing never before heard witness testimonials, whistleblowers, UFO experts, video footage and more. By sifting through the evidence and separating fact from fiction, Cruddas and Charles attempt to provide answers to the UFO mystery. Cruddas shares some of the cases they'll investigate, her personal thoughts on UFOs, and where our science and technology is leading us in finally answering the age-old question; are we alone?

After encountering a massive UFO one evening in 1976 in Elmwood, Wisconsin, he claimed to have been hit by a beam of light that forced him to the ground. Only six months after the encounter, Wheeler would be dead. There were several other witnesses to different aspects that night as well, only bolstering this incredible event. But what makes this case even more compelling is that many other UFO reports had come in prior to and after the Wheeler incident all throughout Elmwood, Wisconsin. What was it about this midwestern town, and did whatever happen that night cause the untimely death of George Wheeler?	Transcript Link

On episode 238 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by author, historian, and professor, Aaron Gulyas. With recent conversations in the UFO world circling around a self-proclaimed "contactee" named Anjali, the idea of humans interacting with aliens has resurfaced in the most controversial of ways. As the mainstream begins to simply process the idea of the existence of UFOs, according to the U.S. Government, they now must wrestle with the idea that perhaps those piloting some of these UFOs are either already here, or are in fact communicating through time and space with chosen humans. But these ideas aren't new. In fact, they were all the rage in the 1950s up through the 1970s. And Aaron Gulyas has been preserving this special time in UFO history in several books he's authored and with his hit podcast, The Saucer Life. Today, he runs is through 3 of his most notable contactee stories and the eccentric people... and aliens... behind them.

In this special Halloween season bonus episode, Ryan brings us just outside the North of Prague in the Czech Republic, to a 13th century castle with an ominous and extremely dark history. Houska Castle wasn't near any water, wasn't strategically important, and didn't seem to have anyone living in it. So why was this random fortress built? According to local legend, below the stone floors of the castle's chapel, was a dark, seemingly endless pit that was literally a gateway to Hell.

Throughout its time, the castle housed poets, Swedish warlords, and perhaps most notably, the Nazi regime. Said to store thousands of books on the occult, the Nazi's were rumored to practice alchemy and occult-like practices for over a decade in Houska Castle. We hear the mysterious history behind this enigmatic castle and its unique design said to have been built not as a fortress to keep danger out, but to keep danger... and demons inside.

On episode 234 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Michael Avon Oeming. Oeming is a comic book artist and writer, currently working on a comic book series based on the files of Project Blue Book. "Blue Book" will recreate stories of real UFO encounters in comic book form, based on the true-to-life testimonies of UFO witnesses with the goal of not sensationalizing or editorializing those accounts. The first chapters explore the circumstances surrounding the 1961 abduction of Betty and Barney Hill. Oeming will discuss the series, his research process along with writer, James Tynion, and we'll hear about Oeming's other exciting projects both past and present, and why he believes the U.S. Government is getting involved with UFOs once again in a capacity that even outweighs the original Project Blue Book.

2021 10 03 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/XUFv9905ELw> Somewhere in the Skies The 1952 UFO Invasion Then and Now #ProjectBlueBook #UAP #SomewhereintheSkies

On episode 233 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are revisiting one of the most interesting and prolific years in UFO history: 1952. UFOs were being sighted all over the United States, with a concerning wave occurring above Washington D.C, specifically over the nation's Capitol building. Jets were scrambled to try to identify these luminous objects to no avail. Meanwhile, strange saucers and discs were being reported on the other side of the country in California in great numbers. But one of the most underreported events happened to Captain John Harter and his B-29 Bomber crew off the Gulf of Mexico in December of that year. Captured on radar and visually, he and several other pilots and officers would report a swarm of UFOs surrounding their aircraft, with some sort of massive mothership seemingly watching from above. This incident, and several others of 1952 and 1953, would be documented and investigated by Project Blue Book, and also by independent researcher and former Marine Corps Naval Aviator, Major Donald Keyhoe. We explore these dramatic close encounters and near misses that military aircraft had with these strange objects, how the U.S Government handled the situation, and how it all may be changing as we head in to a new decade of military and governmental acknowledgement and disclosures of UFOs, somewhere in our skies.

The Trumbull County UFO Incident

The Trumbull County UFO is one of the most intriguing UFO sightings ever. On December 14th, 1994 in Ohio Youngstown, the Trumbull County 911 had begun receiving calls around midnight from town's people, prompting surrounding police stations to investigate, many officers witnessing a craft of unknown origin. Included in this episode are interviews with the 911 dispatcher, several police officers, and an officer from the local Air Force base.

Investigating Unexplained Phenomena with Chris Lehto (Former USAF Pilot)

On episode 231 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are welcomed by former USAF fighter pilot, Lieutenant Colonel Chris Lehto. With over eighteen years of flying, he worked as the Commander of the US Detachment at the Tactical Leadership Programme in Albacete, Spain. As Chief of Flying Branch, he oversaw the execution of three flying courses with no safety incidents. Previous to his final assignment, as Training Systems Assistant Director of Operations for the 56th Training Squadron at Luke Air Force Base, Arizona, he directed the development, procurement, and sustainment of F-16 simulator training. He oversees program officers for two simulator contracts and represents Luke as F-16 training systems subject matter expert.

After Lehto saw the Navy UFO videos, it definitely caught his attention. Especially when he noticed that several of them had been debunked. So he decided to debunk the debunkers and use his eighteen years of flying to give us an inside glimpse of what the pilots may have experienced during these dramatic events. Today, he walks us through some of the more interesting aspects of the Navy UFO videos, his first real-world combat flight, and so much more as we continue our conversation of UFOs in 2021 and beyond.

On episode 224 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined once again by Seth Breedlove of Small Town Monsters and Shannon LeGro of Into the Fray to discuss their latest film, On the Trail of UFOs: Dark Sky. The film picks up where last year's web series, On the Trail of UFOs, left off. This time, Breedlove and LeGro head to West Virginia to look at the state's long history of strange objects in the sky, including local UFO sightings, the famous Flatwoods Monster encounter, the terrifyingly bizarre lore of Indrid Cold and the mysteries behind the Men in Black. They also tease some of the adventures they had in the mountains and caves of West Virginia, and what comes next as they continue their relentless search for answers on the trail of UFOs.

On episode 222 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by Tim McMillan of The Debrief, Zac Cichy of the Project Human podcast, and Britt of the Inference YouTube channel for a very special panel discussion on the enigmatic General McCasland. In 2015, Tom DeLonge, co-founder of Blink 182, walked away from mega-stardom to pursue a subject he was just as passionate about as his music; UFOs. DeLonge would go on to have a series of secret meetings with high-level government insiders, including a very accomplished Air Force General, who appeared to share his belief in the importance of disclosure. This led DeLonge to form To The Stars Academy of Arts and Science in 2017. The organization included an elite team of former government and defense contractor insiders who would work behind-the-scenes to socialize the topic and persuade the government to reveal what it knows about UFOs. But just exactly who was this mysterious general who seemingly brought DeLonge's team together, and what might it say about where we've been and where we may be heading when it comes to UFOs in 2021?

On episode 220 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are welcomed by a very special panel of former Navy servicemen to discuss their involvement in the now-famous "Tic Tac" event off the West Coast in 2004 and the "Gimbal" and "Go Fast" events off the East Coast in 2015. Gary Voorhis and Jason Turner describe the dramatic string of events that would ultimately lead to fighter jets being scrambled to intercept the mysterious, oblong-shaped object we've seen in the official Navy video released by the Department of Defense. Then, Matthew Roberts discusses the atmosphere on the USS Theodore Roosevelt when the other two DoD-released videos were filmed and how it was handled in real-time. More importantly, we discuss the impact these events have had on these men during and after, and how it has ultimately led to all three of them continuing to search for answers both in the skies, and from within.

On episode 219 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Walter Bosley for the very first time. Ryan met Bosley in 2018 while both were speaking at a conference in Halifax, Nova Scotia. What Ryan didn't know was that Bosley was a certified spook! In this epic conversation, Bosley navigates us through his complex work in counterintelligence with the FBI and his work as a Special Agent in counterterrorism with the Office of Special Investigations with the U.S. Air Force. Bosley also shares the alternate thread of personal investigations he embarked on throughout his life in looking in to UFOs, the paranormal, and the occult. With a cryptic mentor leading him both through the black budget world and the world of the unexplained, Bosley began to realize, that the deeper you go into the intelligence apparatus, the stranger it truly gets.

Welcome to a special bonus episode of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES. Well... it's here! The unclassified UFO report for the public released on June 25th... the very mixed reviews! The report, totalling a mere nine pages, encompasses 144 observations - mostly from U.S. Navy personnel - of what the government officially calls "unidentified aerial phenomenon," or UAP, dating back to 2004. Labeled a preliminary assessment, it was compiled by the Office of the Director of National Intelligence in conjunction with a Navy-led task force created by the Pentagon last year. Was it what you expected? Was it a huge letdown? I sent out a call to YOU, the listeners, to give me your thoughts on the report and you did not disappoint. Transcript Link

On episode 218 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we return to UFOs in 2021 with Youtuber, UFO researcher, and member of The Debrief, Cristina Gomez. Gomez walks us through how she first became interested in the unexplained and her exciting and creative ways of bringing these topics to a whole new generation. She also shares several underwater UFO cases with us from centuries ago and her thoughts on where we may be heading in 2021 with the UAP Task Force report and the government's controversial role in the elusive and mysterious topic of UFOs.

Joining Ryan is Gary Voorhis and Jason Turner, witnesses to the 2004 Nimitz UFO event, and Matthew Roberts, who was stationed on the USS Theodore Roosevelt during the Gimbal and Go Fast events. In this clip, Gary talks about the possibility that the "Tic Tac" UFOs may have not have just been tracked on radar from the sky, but underwater as well.

Transcript Link

On episode 216 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are transported once again in to the eyes, hearts, and minds of those who have experienced those mysteries that lay somewhere in the skies. From black triangles flying slowly and silently over the skies of the U.S. and the U.K. to a mass UFO sighting by an entire group of teenagers in a juvenile detention center. We also hear from the youngest voice to ever appear on the podcast, Eva, 11 years old, and a dramatic encounter she had with her father of what could only be described as a "Tic Tac" UFO. It's another powerful volume of Witness Accounts that spans continents, generations, and perhaps, even worlds.

Thank you to all who contributed their stories to this volume of Witness Accounts. If you've has a personal UFO sighting, encounter, or story you'd like to share, please email: ryan.sprague51@gmail.com to discuss further.

On episode 209 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by Skinwalker Ranch owner, Brandon Fugal.

On the northwestern edge of Utah rests a mysterious ranch in the Uinta Basin. It's known as both a paranormal hotspot and a living laboratory of anomalous phenomena. To many of the indigenous Ute tribe and Navajo in the area, it's been deemed a "cursed land" by a shape-shifting witch known as the Skinwalker. This is how the 512-acre property would eventually become known as Skinwalker Ranch. Original owner, Terry Sherman got so spooked by the happenings that 18 months after moving there with his family, they packed up, sold the ranch and never looked back. It was eventually sold to Las Vegas real estate magnate and UFO enthusiast, Robert Bigelow. After years of studying the ranch with various scientists and researchers, the phenomena seemed to continue in countless ways, even prompting the Defence Intelligence Agency to fund the research through what has since been revealed as a subset of AATIP, the once-secret Pentagon UFO program. With very little repeatable evidence to show for it, Bigelow eventually handed the ranch off to another real estate mogul by the name of Brandon Fugal. Fugal, curious but very skeptical, tightened up security, hired a team of researchers to study the anomalies, and helped launch the History Channel television series, "The Secret of Skinwalker Ranch", to document the team's findings. After a highly successful first season, the team returns May 4th on the History Channel for

On episode 208 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we take a trip to the island of Puerto Rico. There are areas throughout the world that are known for UFOs, ghosts, strange creatures, or paranormal events. But on the Caribbean island of Puerto Rico, its small towns, cities, and forests harbor all of these, and beyond. With a rich history and cultural diversity unlike any other, Puerto Rico takes pride in its legends and mysteries. From unexplained disappearances in El Yunque Rainforest to tales of lost spirits, lost civilizations, strange creatures, and dramatic UFO events in the skies and in the waters surrounding the island. Puerto Rico native, Yami Gonzalez, takes us on a journey through her family's local stories. Then, paranormal investigator and star of Ghost Hunters International, Susan Slaughter, walks us through her terrifying experiences investigating El Morro Fortress and the Teatro Tapia on the island. Cristina Hernandez of the Espooky Tales podcast also shares terrifying tales from the Puente de las Calabazas bridge. UFO researcher, Jorge Martin recalls fighter jet pursuits of triangular UFOs, crashes of unknown craft, and a possible extraterrestrial connection with the legendary Chupacabra. Lastly, could the recent discovery of unexplained stone carvings change the entire history of the indigenous Taíno people of Puerto Rico? This is only a portion of what's uncovered in this very special episode of Somewhere in the Skies, highlighting a very special place not only in the Caribbean or United States, but the entire world. These are the many mysteries of Puerto Rico.

The Carp, Ontario UFO case is one of the most controversial in Canadian history. For some, the mysterious communications, including a VHS tape and supposedly declassified documents from an individual identifying only as “Guardian”, are incontrovertible proof that UFOs exist. For others, they’re just part of an elaborately staged hoax, impressive only for the work and creativity behind it. Either way, the video went on to be debated for over 30 years. It remains one of the greatest mysteries or hoaxes in UFO history. You decide.

The Carp, Ontario UFO case is one of the most controversial in Canadian history. For some, the mysterious communications — including a VHS tape and supposedly declassified documents from an individual identifying only as “Guardian” — are incontrovertible proof that UFOs exist. For others, they’re just part of an elaborately staged hoax, impressive only for the work and creativity behind it. Three separate U.S. network television shows featured the case and investigators from both sides of the border arrived to investigate. One of those investigators was 16-year-old Ian Rogers. In 1994, Rogers borrowed his mother’s car and drove to Carp to attempt to solve the mystery. In the summer of 2020, Rogers returned to the area to revisit the case and, in searching for the truth about Guardian, discovered something startling: credible people in the region have had the strangest of encounters independent of the Guardian sighting. 'UFO Town' is a documentary about our collective fascination with the UFO phenomenon and our want to believe. Rogers runs us through his entire experience with the case, where it stands today, and how this strange event shaped his life.

On episode 204 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks with Pulitzer-Prize- winning New York Times reporter, co-author of the now-famous 2017 NY Times Pentagon UFO article, and author, Ralph Blumenthal. Blumenthal walks us through the decades-long journey of writing the definitive biography on the life and career of Harvard psychiatrist, Dr. John E. Mack.

In 'The Believer: Alien Encounters, Hard Science, and the Passion of John Mack', Blumenthal tells the story of how renowned Harvard Medical School psychiatrist John E. Mack became fascinated with a range of paranormal phenomena ranging from alien abductions to UFOs to past lives. Blumenthal interviewed dozens of Mack's friends and colleagues, and conducted years of archival research, to understand what drew Mack to the fringes of science — and what he learned there. Blumenthal also answers listener questions and discusses what may come next with his reporting on UFOs over at the New York Times.

On episode 202 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by rock musician, and UFO/paranormal experimenter, Christopher Harold Wells. Wells walks us through his incredible music career, opening for such bands as Metallica and Def Leppard, and also working with activist, rapper, and songwriter, Lauren Hill. We hear all about his latest solo project and album, The Neverlutionaries. Wells then shares some of the unexplained events that have occurred to him throughout his life, including a dramatic UFO sighting of objects emerging from the water, supernatural experiences while on the road touring and playing gigs, and a heartfelt story about meeting a girlfriend's mother...from beyond the grave. How have these deeply personal and profound events impacted not only his life, but his music? We're then treated to his new single, "Ariana" off the new album.

On episode 201 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by author, Tea Krulos, to discuss his latest book, American Madness: The Story of the Phantom Patriot and How Conspiracy Theories Hijacked American Consciousness.

Q-Anon. Fake News. Bohemian Grove. False flag attacks. Deep state. Crisis actors. Whatever Gate. Is any conspiracy worth the life of a believer? Richard McCaslin was a loner who wandered through life aimlessly. His only two interests were comic books and conspiracy theories. This led to his alter-ego, a conspiracy-busting super-hero, The Phantom Patriot. After learning of the elite meetings taking place at the Bohemian Grove, and the far-out rumors of satanic rituals and human sacrifice, McCaslin snuck in and attempted to burn it to the ground. And this is only the beginning of McCaslin's descent down the rabbit-hole of conspiracy theories fueled by the rhetoric of conspiracy theorists, Alex Jones and David Icke.

How does this incredible story play in to the greater concerns of the conspiracy world we live in today? Krulos walks us through the life of McCaslin and the cautionary tale of what happens when the power of belief becomes not only dangerous, but deadly.

- 'Overlords of the UFO' is a 1976 documentary that sets out to answer the age-old question: Who are the overlords of the UFO? The 1970s spawned dozens of schlock documentaries purporting to reveal "the shocking truth" about something-or-other, but this may be the absolute worst. The film is a mixed salad of crankery that construes all kinds of paranormal phenomena as signs of alien activity to create a virtual Frankenstein monster of UFO mythology.

On episode 198 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by former FBI agent and UFO investigator, Ben Hansen. In cooperation with former Project Blue Book investigator Jennie Zeidman, Hansen reopens some of the case files that have been hidden from the public for decades. With unprecedented access to more than 10,000 of Dr. J Allen Hynek's case files, Hansen believes the answers to UFOs in America are hidden in the cases of the past. Together with past guest and Hynek biographer, Mark O'Connell, the two uncover the secrets of the past to shed new light on some of today's most mysterious UFO encounters. Hansen gives us the inside scoop on the investigations, his thoughts on alien abductions, and so much more.

This episode is dedicated to the memory of Jennie Zeidman (1932-2020)

Did former U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower have a meeting, or several meetings, with extraterrestrials? It's been said that Eisenhower interrupted his vacation in Palm Springs, California, to make a secret nocturnal trip to nearby Edwards Air Force base to meet a race of human-like extraterrestrials who wanted to make a deal. But what exactly was that deal? Did Eisenhower go for it? What happened before, during, and after the meeting? And did any of this actually happen? Paul Blake Smith walks us through that tumultuous weekend where, on top of possibly meeting aliens, Eisenhower also had an emergency dental appointment, and was also declared dead by the Associated Press! No matter what the truth is, it was one hell of a weekend for the 34th President of the United States, and this is one hell of a convincing conversation about Eisenhower's alleged close encounters!

- On episode 196 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by first-time guests, Luis Elizondo and Sean Cahill. In 2017, the New York Times published a story that exposed a highly secretive Pentagon unit that studied UFOs. It was known as AATIP, The Advanced Aerospace Threat Identification Program. It was directed by a man named Luis Elizondo, a former Special Agent and senior counterintelligence officer for the Department of Defense. After leaving the program, Elizondo helped facilitate the release of three videos taken by Navy pilots of unidentified aerial objects, which were officially released by the Department of Defense and acknowledged as genuine unknown aerial phenomena. One of the cases Elizondo investigated while in the Pentagon and one of the videos he would subsequently help release, was from an event known as the Nimitz UFO incident.
- For several days in November 2004, a Navy missile cruiser sailing around 100 miles off the coast of southern California detected strange radar signals emanating from an object. The Navy then deployed fighter jets to catch a closer glimpse and one succeeded in recording a video of what is now known as the Tic Tac UFO. Dozens witnessed the UFO activity that day. And one of those witnesses was Chief Master-at-Arms, Sean Cahill. Today, we speak to both Luis Elizondo and Sean Cahill about where they've been, what they've learned, and where they're going next.

- On episode 195 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Harvard Professor and astrophysicist, Avi Loeb. Loeb made international headlines in 2017 when a strange interstellar object passed through our solar system for the first time in recorded history. He published a controversial paper theorizing that this object, named 'Oumuamua (Hawaiian for "scout") could possibly have been a piece of advanced technology created by a distant alien civilization. He expands on these theories in a new book titled, Extraterrestrial: The First Sign of Intelligent Life Beyond Earth. Loeb discusses his theories and then dives deep in to the lack of wonder and risks in today's mainstream scientific community and what must change as we move forward in the ever-changing world and universe around us. It's an episode unlike any other and a conversation that lay somewhere in our interstellar skies.

2021 01 07 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/fiTol0-gyGk> Vintage Skies 'When You See Those Flying Saucers' #UFOs #FlyingSaucers #SomewhereintheSkies Transcript Link

"When You See Those flying Saucers" - by The Buchanan Brothers (1947)

This song was released the same year as both the Kenneth Arnold flying saucer incident and the Roswell UFO crash. It's quite catchy and clearly ahead of its time.

Lyrics:

You'd better pray to the Lord when you see those flying saucers
It may be the coming of the Judgment Day
It's a sign there's no doubt of the trouble that's about
So I say my friends you'd better start to pray

They're a terrifying sight as they fly on day and night
It's a warning that we'd better mend our ways
You'd better pray to the Lord when you see those flying saucers
It may be the coming of the Judgment Day

Many people think the saucers might be someone's foolish dream
Or maybe they were sent down here from Mars
If you'll just stop and think you'd realize just what it means
They're more than atom bombs or falling stars

And though the war may be through there's unrest and trouble

On episode 194 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes return guest, Steven Greenstreet. Greenstreet is a news reporter for the NY Post and a freelance filmmaker. He hosts the popular NY Post web series, The Basement Office. Today, he shares with us some stunning evidence from the 2006 O'Hare Airport UFO incident that he obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

It was November 7th, 2006 when a United Airlines employee on the tarmac at Gate C17 at O'Hare Airport in Chicago. Suddenly, he noticed a dark grey metallic craft hovering below the cloud cover. He reported it to the tower, and suddenly dozens of people began witnessing the craft. The witnesses say it hovered for about five minutes before shooting upward, where it broke a hole in the clouds—enough that pilots and mechanics could see the blue sky. The news report became the most-read story on The Chicago Tribune's website to that date and made international news. However, because the UFO was not seen on radar, the FAA called it a "weather phenomenon" and declined to investigate, stating there was no unknown craft. The audio you'll hear from that day will prove otherwise.

An Australian family on a road trip was pursued by a glowing UFO, and in full view of witnesses in other cars, the UFO landed on top of them, picked up their car in the air and dropped it several meters, blowing out a tire. It was January 1988 and the Knowles family of Perth was traveling cross country when the terrifying event happened.

This rare interview finds Australian news reporter, Derryn Hinch, interviewing the family, who are clearly nervous. The manner in which Hinch treats their story is indicative of the mainstream media's handling of the UFO topic in the past. The Out Space Connection is a documentary film directed by Fred Warshofsky and narrated by Rod Serling. It was one of the last projects that Rod Serling worked on prior to his death in 1975. It explores the controversial theory that extraterrestrials explored the Earth in the distant past. These extraterrestrials had a profound effect on the creation of human life and the founding of civilization, after which they left mankind to evolve on its own with a promise they would return at a future date.

2020 12 14 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/9KvJQ2EPr9I> CASE FILES 007 Encounter in Cisco Grove

In the fall of 1964, an event occurred in the Tahoe National Forest. Donald Shrum, a hunter, was preparing to sleep in the woods for an early morning hunting excursion. But what happened in the dead of night would be the strangest and most terrifying experience of his life. One that would change everything he once believed, and would soon turn the hunter in to the hunted.

They give us the inside story on their brand new History Channel television series, Roswell: The First Witness. Transcript Link

Roswell: The First Witness follows the grandchildren of Major Jesse Marcel, the first person to investigate the Roswell UFO wreckage. The Marcel family recently discovered their grandfather's personal diary amongst a collection of his military belongings. This diary is believed to contain coded clues about the truth of what happened at Roswell. Along with the diary, Ben Smith will investigate the actual crash site with cutting-edge technology, and track down a possible lead on where the some of the wreckage may still be buried.

On episode 190 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, the entire crew of the recently launched news media outlet, The Debrief, join us to talk all about this exciting new endeavor. Micah Hanks, MJ Baniyas, and Tim McMillan then walk us through their recent article that is definitely turning some heads in and out of the UFO/UAP world. Several UFO reports that the recently announced Pentagon UAP Task were looking in to were both shared across high-level intelligence channels, and were leaked to one of our guests today, Tim McMillan. We hear all about these shocking reports, a leaked photo that is attached to one of them, and so much more about what's to come with the Debrief as we "fast-move" in to the future.

On episode 189 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are joined by Dr. Adam Kehoe. Kehoe is a software developer with a PhD in Library and Information Science. He writes about UFOs and related defense issues on his website, Strategic Doubt. In this conversation, he explains how he began writing about defense issues and UFOs/UAPs, the importance of skepticism, and his insight and observations on the ever-changing landscape of UAP discourse on both policy in government and culturally in the civilian world. Where may the UAP issue be heading with the recently announced Pentagon UAP Task Force and how closely have both the United States' allies and adversaries around the world looked at the UAP issue in an official capacity?

On episode 188 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are welcomed once again by author and podcast host, Micah Hanks, to discuss the highly debated two-page document lost in between the files of Project Blue Book. In 1967, noted astronomer and computer scientist, Jacques Vallée, was helping organize the overwhelming amount of backlogged files of Dr. J. Allen Hynek. He discovered a letter amongst the files that both fascinated and shocked him. It was stamped in red ink 'SECRET – Security Information.' and signed by a man Vallée would refer to only as "Pentacle." Was a secret UFO study running parallel to Project Blue Book and were those involved actually monitoring UFO events in real-time? Even more mysterious, was this secret group simulating planned UFO events as well? Hanks runs us through this highly intriguing Pentacle Memorandum from a historical context and then answers listener questions.

- 2020 11 09 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/vT2Gns6E6UJ> Somewhere in the Skies UFO Cults #UFOs #Cults #Ascension Transcript Link
- On episode 186 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we dive in to a very controversial aspect to the UFO topic and that is UFO cults. From metaphysical gurus to suicidal groups hoping to catch a comet to heaven, the power and danger of belief has caused many groups immense pain and suffering; all in the name of UFO enlightenment and ascension. We run through some of the obvious culprits and some that appear more innocuous. We hear from ex-members of two of the most well-known UFO cults/religions and how they got out, and a new generation of cults springing up to take advantage of the UFO topic, its hardcore believers, and of course, your money.

- On episode 185 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Seth Breedlove returns to talk all about his new film, The Mothman Legacy.
- The Mothman Legacy is the story of one of the most frightening American urban myths, the legend of The Mothman, a red-eyed creature seen by some as a harbinger of doom in 1960s rural West Virginia, where sightings of the winged demonic beast were first documented. Many believe the Mothman to be a 1960's phenomenon, an omen only appearing before tragedy, and disappearing after a flap of sightings and the subsequent Silver Bridge collapse in 1967. But what if the origins of this omen trace back much further and go much deeper than anyone realized? And what if the sightings never ended? We discuss the cultural aspects of the Mothman, the terrifying eye witness reports, and then Breedlove answers your listener questions.

Welcome to another volume of our Halloween series, Somewhere in the Spooky Skies! This episode, we sit down with for an in-depth conversation with occultist and witch, Sarah Lyons!

For someone like me, my knowledge of witches begins and ends with a green-skinned woman either cackling and melting away or belting about defying gravity on Broadway... so Sarah is here to set things straight and navigate us through the complex history of witches, the nature of rituals and practices, and the fascinating and crucial connections between witches and politics/activism. Oh... and we talk UFOs as well!

Sarah Lyons is a writer, activist, occultist, and witch. She is the author of the book "Revolutionary Witchcraft, a Guide to Magical Activism" from Running Press. Sarah has been practicing magic for over a decade, and has been deeply involved in New York City's occult scene for years. She was the witch in residence for Vice, where she had a weekly tarot-based web series, and her writing has appeared in Teen Vogue, Vice, Broadly, Slutist, Fusion, Dirge Magazine, and Dear Darkling. In addition to writing and witchcraft, Sarah is also an organizer with the New York City Democratic Socialists of America. Learn more at: <http://www.sarahlyons.org>

In this special crossover episode, the bros share some of their favorite moments from their UFO investigations and they introduce us to the little-known 2008 UFO crash in Needles, CA. After a craft came down near the Colorado River, helicopters began swarming the area. Soon, military rushed in to the small town, accompanied by unmarked vehicles with mysterious men in black suits asking questions of the witnesses. Emmet and Joe tell us about their boots-on-the-ground investigation many years later that yielded physical evidence that they dug up and had analyzed. The results were very interesting. The UFO Bros then turn the tables on Ryan and interview him as well. It's a fun, fast-paced conversation with the UFO Bros that most certainly won't be the last!

2020 10 05 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/ykJs8YWkDtw> Somewhere in the Skies The Shag Harbour UFO Incident #UFO #Canada #ShagHarbour

On episode 181 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we celebrate the 53rd anniversary of the Shag Harbour UFO incident. On October 4th 1967, an unknown object appeared over the skies of a small fishing town in Nova Scotia. Tailing the object were five glowing, orange lights. Soon, the object and tailing lights made contact with the murky waters of Shag Harbour. After investigations from the Canadian Coast Guard, the RCMP, and the Canadian Armed Forces, and reports and speculation from witnesses, journalists, and UFO enthusiasts, the event would later become the most well-known UFO incident in Canada. In this episode, we take a look back to examine exactly what happened on the coast of Nova Scotia that night, and how much information surrounding the case, and its eerie similarities to the U.S. Navy UFO encounters of modern day. We are then joined by host, Jordan Bonaparte of the Night Time Podcast, and proud Nova Scotian, to hear his thoughts and theories on this extraordinary Canadian UFO case that remains a well-hidden gem in the annals of UFO history.

The film focusses on the experiences of individuals with extra-sensory powers that seem to defy the laws of physics known to man today. Cory takes the viewers on an extraordinary journey to achieve tangible and measurable proof of these seemingly miraculous phenomena. Through a series of groundbreaking scientific experiments and demonstrations, viewers will find themselves connecting the dots about the true nature of their own consciousness, the relation between mind and matter and discover whether they live in a simulated matrix or if they can have control over their physical reality and create a fulfilling human experience. We run through some of these experiments, the power of the mind, and how each and every one of us may be connected in the invisible world of consciousness and beyond.

2020 08 17 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/VSAOL4fTjk> Somewhere in the Skies The Crate in the Desert #Unidentified #UFOs #AirForce On episode 174 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by former Air Force Security Forces officer, Jeremy McGowan. Jeremy is a twelve- year veteran. He spent almost three years in the Middle East during Desert Storm and other operations, serving with Joint Special Operations Command and the DEA in performing counter-narcotics operations in the jungles of Colombia. But during an operation in the Jordanian Desert in 1995, something inexplicable occurred. He and a fellow security officer were ordered to guard a massive, unmarked crate in the middle of the desert. They were never told what was in the crate or why they were guarding it. But while performing the cryptic duties one night, McGowan noticed something strange in the skies. Something that hovered directly over the crate and performed unbelievable maneuvers. Whatever it was, it seemed just as interested in the contents of that crate as McGowan was. And as we dig deeper in to the events of that night, we will be just as curious as well. McGowan runs us through the entire event, the aftermath, and his thoughts and theories on what was in the crate, where it went, and why the UFO may have been so interested in the contents.

Transcript Link

On episode 169 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by filmmaker, Christopher Munch. They discuss Munch's latest film, The 11th Green, which stars Campbell Scott (House of Cards, Roger Dodger) as a journalist who uncovers the truth behind the mythology of President Eisenhower's long-alleged involvement in extraterrestrial events. The Hollywood Reporter calls it "A thoughtful and compelling what-if . . . provocative and illuminating." Rife with hidden government secrets and Matrix-like mind-benders, The 11th Green is grounded in what is widely believed to be the nuts-and-bolts core story of post-war U.S. military and government involvement with UFOs. Thought-provoking but understated, filled with sharply drawn characters, stark desert landscapes, and leaps across the space-time continuum, The 11th Green is challenging cinema that generates questions, discussion, and debate long after the credits roll. Today, Munch and Ryan discuss the carefully researched, yet highly imaginative world that Munch created for his film where larger questions are asked about exopolitics, disclosure, the suppression of technology, and navigating the maze of politics, the military industrial complex, distortion of truth, and the most important question, if we aren't alone, and we finally accept this as humanity, what comes next?

2020 07 06 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/LiPNmpvoIA> Somewhere in the Skies The Tehran UFO Incident #UFOs #Tehran #Iran

In 1976, strange lights were being sighted over the city of Tehran, Iran. After dozens of reports, the Iranian Air Force sent up several fighter jets to investigate. General Parvis Jafari would attempt to identify the lights, soon discovering it was much more than just lights in the sky. He would soon be involved in one of the most tense standoffs with a UFO ever reported, and the subsequent investigation that would include the Iranian Air Force, the United States Air Force, the DIA, CIA, and NSA. What exactly was seen in the skies that day, and why did it seem that the United States wanted control of the entire investigation? This is the extraordinary story of the Tehran UFO Incident.

On episode of 167 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Shannon LeGro returns to tell some of the weirdest and most mystifying stories from her latest book, Beyond the Fray: Paramalgamation. First you might be asking, what is paramalgamation? Simply, it is the melding together of inexplicable paranormal experiences, which can and should by all rights be wholly separate. In this second book by renowned paranormal researcher, Shannon LeGro and USA Today bestselling author, G. Michael Hopf; comes a collection of unexplained, nearly impossible to classify encounters with the strange, terrifying, and life-changing. This is a collection of some of the strangest and scariest stories ever told by the people who experienced them. This episode literally gave Ryan nightmares... so grab your blanket, put it over your head, and definitely leave the lights on as we hear a paramalgamation of stories that lay deep beyond the fray!

On episode 163 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Nick Redfern returns to discuss his latest book, The Rendlesham Forest UFO Conspiracy: A Close Encounter Exposed as a Top Secret Government Experiment.

In the final days of December 1980, strange encounters and bizarre incidents occurred in the heart of Rendlesham Forest, Suffolk, England. Based upon their personal encounters, many of the military personnel who were present at the time believed that something extraterrestrial came down in those dark woods. What if, however, there was another explanation for what happened four decades ago?

What if that explanation, if revealed, proved to be even more controversial than the theory that aliens arrived from a faraway world? The ramifications for the field of Ufology would be immense. In his new, sensational book, Nick Redfern reveals that one of the most famous UFO cases of all time was really a series of top secret experiments using holograms, mind-control programs, deception, disinformation, conspiracies and cover-ups. The shocking truth of a forty-year-old mystery is now revealed.

Guest Bio: Nick Redfern is the author of more than 60 books. They include Flying Saucers from the Kremlin; The Roswell UFO

On episode 162 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we welcome Patrick to the show to recount some of the strange and surreal stories of a lifetime with the unknown. First, Patrick and a friend find themselves lost with an unstable conspiracy theorist in the backcountry of Northern Montana in the winter of 1996. With all bets off, the two boys are forced to follow the bizarre man to safety, but not before he shows them an enormous UFO flying directly overhead, which shatters their reality and casts doubt that the strange guide may be telling the truth after all. And then, along the banks of a small river in New Jersey, a fisherman and his brother come face to face with an unimaginable entity. Two years later along this same stretch of river, Patrick watches up close as an extraordinary object hovers in the forest, sending wildlife scattering in all directions, before shooting skyward through the trees and disappearing into the heavens. And lastly, several strange encounters leave Patrick mystified at a place known by locals as Ghost Lake.

On episode 158 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we head down to the dark and dingy basement office of NY Post journalist, Steven Greenstreet. After the bombshell news of a secret Pentagon UFO program was released to the world, news outlets scurried to play catch-up on this highly intriguing news. Luckily, the NY Post had Steven Greenstreet on hand who had a keen interest in the UFO topic. Thus, The Basement Office web-series was created. Along with Nick Pope, a former government official who researched and investigated UFOs for the Ministry of Defense, Greenstreet and Pope navigate their way through decades of UFO history to get us to where we are now in 2020 on the issue. In this interview, Greenstreet discusses what he found most fascinating in his research. He then breaks down two very compelling UFO videos he and Ryan came across, and then we get a sneak peek and what to expect in season two of the Basement Office.

On episode 157 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we are taking a sharp turn and heading down the spectral path of the paranormal and supernatural with Sapphire Sandalo. No stranger to the unknown, Sapphire navigates us through her own personal journey of Filipino folklore and familial stories. She then shares some of her favorite accounts of the strange, the dark, the light, and the mystifying from her hit new podcast, Stories with Sapphire. Then, she and Ryan tackle the Ouija board, simulation theory, and the possibility of a phenomenal string between all the weird worlds we call home.

Guest Bio: Sapphire Sandalo is an animator, host, and writer in Los Angeles. She created the web series and podcast "Something Scary" back in 2016. She is a recurring Paranormal Expert on "Paranormal Caught On Camera" on Travel Channel, and the upcoming "Paranormal Nightshift" on T&E. She is a part-time professor at Loyola Marymount University, where she teaches a class about the importance of diversity and accurate representation in animation and entertainment. In her spare time, she practices her tarot reading skills and enjoys learning about other occult knowledge. She created "Stories With Sapphire" to celebrate supernatural experiences from around the world, and to create more cultural diversity within the paranormal community. 2020 04 17 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/ojfi9i-yciA> Somewhere in the Skies Reviewing COMMUNION with Andrew Sanford #MovieReview #Communion #ChristopherWalken

In this bonus episode of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Andrew Sanford returns to review yet another film that would go down in the annals of alien abduction history; but not exactly in the best of ways. Polarizing in every sense of the word, Communion, adapted from the New York Times Best-Selling book of the same name, tells the story of real-life horror novelist, Whitley Strieber.

On December 26th, 1985, at a secluded cabin in upstate New York, Whitley Strieber joined his wife and son for a weekend in the woods. They celebrated the holiday together and went to bed early. Six hours later, he found himself suddenly awake...and forever changed. In the film adaptation, directed by Phillippe Mora and starring Christopher Walken as Whitley Strieber, it became clear that just because a book is a phenomenal success, that doesn't mean the film will be as highly praised. Ryan and Andrew navigate their way through this dizzying film, trying to find out just exactly where the film went wrong... and so bizarrely right!

From V-Shaped formations of lights over Colorado to saucer-shaped craft floating over the skies of California. From multi-witnessed accounts with completely different perceptions and memories of the event to a strange flash of self-illuminating a dozen small children in Nova Scotia. This and so much more in yet another volume of witness accounts.

#MovieReview #HorrorMovie #AlienAbduction

Transcript Link

On episode 155 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Andrew Sanford returns to review the 2013 horror/sci-fi film, DARK SKIES. As the Barrett family's peaceful suburban life is rocked by an escalating series of disturbing events, they come to learn that a terrifying and deadly force is after them, one which may have arrived from beyond the stars.

This polarizing film draws on decades of authentic alien abduction cases and research, mashing it in to a smorgasbord of paranormal, supernatural, and ufological goodness and badness. Ryan and Andrew navigate their way through its dark and sometimes laughably absurd plot points, making for a very fun and very opinionated journey. Go watch the film, come back, and enjoy this epic movie review, somewhere in the dark skies!

Transcript Link

On the Trail of UFOs takes an in-depth look at the current state of unidentified flying objects and America's constantly-evolving relationship with the subject. With UFOs being written and talked about in major news outlets and behind closed doors in Washington D.C., Breedlove and series host Shannon Legro set out to document what is by far the most tumultuous point in the history of "flying saucers". The series takes viewers from the gates of Area 51 itself to the snow-capped White Mountains of New Hampshire. Filming took place across the United States, including New York City, Phoenix, Sedona, Los Angeles, Orlando, and Las Vegas. The team interviewed numerous witnesses and investigators of unknown aerial phenomena, including those who claim to have been abducted and experimented upon by real aliens. No stone was left unturned in putting together what Breedlove believes to be the most comprehensive look at the subject ever filmed.

Transcript Link

What happens when we die? Our body ceases to function, but what about that unknown force within us? Is it consciousness or a soul. Are they different or one in the same? Have we lived many lives before and can we remember them? And most importantly, can we survive death?

Returning this week is investigative journalist and New York Times Best-Selling author, Leslie Kean. Her most recent book, Surviving Death: A Journalist Investigates Evidence for an Afterlife tackles the very questions I just asked and so much more.

Mike Anthony is an actor in New York City. Several years ago, his father died unexpectedly. Then, something extraordinary occurred. Something Mike didn't believe was possible. And ever since, he's been on a personal journey to find out if his father ended with his body, or continues on in ways we once thought impossible, but are now beginning to understand in the most profound of ways.

Transcript Link

The UFO topic has gone mainstream like never before, and these two individuals were at the forefront of that huge cultural shift. Leslie Kean is the author of the New York Times Best-Selling book, UFOs: Generals, Pilots, and Government Officials Go on the Record. She also co-authored the 2017 bombshell New York Times article, Glowing Auras and 'Black Money': The Pentagon's Mysterious U.F.O. Program. This article immediately went viral and showed the world that the Pentagon, against all public knowledge and statements, were investigating UFOs. Diana Walsh Pasulka, a professor of religious studies, is the author of the groundbreaking book, American Cosmic: UFOs, Religion, Technology, which follows several high tech entrepreneurs in Silicon Valley who are deeply entrenched in the UFO topic and are spending a lot of time and money investigating the Phenomenon. The book also shows how the topic is gradually becoming a new age religion as more and more people start to believe in an extraterrestrial presence both in our skies and possibly even here on our planet. In this episode, Leslie and Diana dig deep in to the hard questions and the fundamental shift in our way of thinking when it comes to flying saucers and an extraterrestrial presence.

Transcript Link

The book is an anthropological look at the UFO community, told through first-person experiences with researchers in their element as they pursue what they see as a solvable mystery—both terrestrial and cosmic. In the book, and in this conversation, we meet the bigwigs, the scrappy upstarts, the field investigators, the rational people, and the unhinged kooks of this sprawling community. How do they interact with each other? How do they interact with “anomalous phenomena”? And how do they reflect the politics and culture of the larger world around them?

Guest Bio: Sarah Scoles is a science writer whose work has appeared in The Atlantic, Slate, Smithsonian, The Washington Post, Scientific American, Popular Science, Discover, New Scientist, Aeon, and Wired. A former editor at Astronomy Magazine, Scoles worked at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory, the location of the first-ever SETI project. On episode 145 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by filmmaker, Project Blue Book consultant, and professor, Paul Hynek. In this conversation, Paul talks about what it was like growing up in a home where UFOs were everyday conversation over the dinner table. We then hear all about his father's experiences working with the U.S. Air Force in their official investigation of UFOs; Project Blue Book. What does Paul think of how the History Channel television series has treated his father's life and career? And what memorable moments does he have from his father's extensive look in to some of the most famous UFO cases of all time? This and much more as we dive into the life of our "UFO Dad" from one of his actual sons!

Guest Bio: Paul Hynek has worked in tech and entertainment and is currently a business consultant. Paul is also a former adjunct professor at Pepperdine University, and is presently a consultant for HISTORY's TV series, Project Blue Book, based on a real project to investigate UFOs from 1952 to 1969. Paul is the son of Dr. J. Allen Hynek, an astronomer who worked with the U.S. Air Force investigating UFO cases from 1948 to the end of Blue Book in 1969. A character based on J. Terri Betz, the son of Antoine and Gerri Betz, stumbles upon a strange metal sphere in the woods near their home. Upon bringing it back to their house, it began to exhibit unusual behavior. Soon, the press comes to interview the family and all Hell breaks loose. Within months, the U.S. Navy, Marines, and prominent scientists and UFO researchers flock to Florida to figure out just what exactly these sphere may be. In this audio documentary, we look at the media reports, investigations, and sinister doings that followed before the sphere completely disappeared from public view for nearly fifty years years.

2019 12 16 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/PDguRF1YCoU> Somewhere in the Skies Rendlesham #UFOs #Rendlesham #England

On episode 139 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we tackle one of the most well-known and well documented UFO events of all time; The Rendlesham Forest UFO incident. Often dubbed "Britain's Roswell", this event took place over three consecutive nights in a forest between two joint military bases in Suffolk, England in December of 1980.

Transcript Link

Set amongst the backdrop of the Cold War, US Forces were stationed in England in case of a Soviet attack. Unbeknownst to British forces, the US were secretly housing nuclear weapons on the base as well, completely against nuclear treaty at the time. Early during the Christmas holiday, strange lights were witnessed on radar and in person over RAF Bentwaters and RAF Woodbridge. But not only lights... a solid craft was said to have landed in Rendlesham Forest which ran between the joint bases.

Officers were sent out to investigate, and what they experienced would become one of the most incredible close encounter UFO stories ever recorded. Backed up by official military documents, audio recordings during the sightings and encounters in the forest, and a developing story up until today, this is the story of Rendlesham.

On episode 138 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by Greg Newkirk and Connor J. Randall, members of the investigative team and executive producers of HELLIER an independent paranormal documentary series. They discuss the highly anticipated second season that digs deeper in to the mysteries surrounding Hellier and beyond.

Transcript Link

In 2012, Greg Newkirk received an email from a man calling himself David Christie, who claimed that he and his family were being terrorized by unearthly creatures by night. After exchanging emails, David disappeared. For the next five years, the case only got stranger, as more connections and mysterious emails came in. Then, in 2017, Greg and a team of researchers traveled to rural Kentucky, not knowing what they would uncover, or how deep they would discover the case might go.

But the Hellier project didn't stop there. Despite spending hundreds of hours in the editing bay and releasing season one to much acclaim in January of 2019, the team continued to research and explore, and the case only blossomed. After thousands of miles of driving, months of research and filming, Hellier now returns in November 2019 with a full second season run, comprised of ten full-length episodes.

On episode 135 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we take a trip to Russia to bring you a story so mysterious and so tragic, that it remains one of the most controversial unsolved cases in history.

On February 2nd, 1959, nine highly experienced members of the Ural Polytechnical Institute set off on a challenging trek through the Ural mountains with their leader, Igor Dyatlov. But something happened in the middle of the night that caused the group to rip their tent open from the inside and wander through the frozen tundra.

Three weeks later, five bodies were found. After two months, the remaining bodies were also discovered. As tragic as this was, how each body was found, and several pieces of evidence that would be discovered, left many more questions than answers as to what happened and why. We break down the timeline, string of possible events, and numerous theories as to what may have happened to the Dyatlov nine that fateful night.

This episode is dedicated to the memory of the Dyatlov crew, including Yuri Yudin, the only surviving member, who passed away in 2013.

If you have and cannot explain it, you may have seen an unidentified flying object, better known as a UFO. Transcript Link

On this week's Super Awesome Science Show, we're going to venture into ufology — a field that's working to figure out what these mysterious objects happen to be.

On the episode, we talk to Ryan Sprague, a prominent member of the ufology community, who has shared his views on UFOs in articles and interviews with news outlets, on his podcast Somewhere in the Skies and through his latest project, the TV show Roswell: Mysteries Decoded, which appeared on CW's streaming network, CW Seed.

We first learn about the nature of ufology — including, most importantly, what it's not. While there are several stereotypes, the true goal of ufology is to find answers to questions we simply do not yet know about the flying crafts themselves, whether alien- or human-made. We hear about the work that is being performed and some of the advancements in the field that have opened the door to even greater interest.

We continue the discussion to explore how ufology work is done and shared with the community. As one of the most prolific members of the community, we learn about Sprague's passion for

Then, he and Ryan discuss two Bigfoot-oriented films to keep things squatchy! They review Willow Creek (2013) starring former guest, Bryce Johnson. And then they review the 2018 action adventure drama, The Man Who Killed Hitler and then the Bigfoot. What did they think of these vastly different films and their handling of our hairy hominid friend? Tune in to find out!

August 25th marks the 45th anniversary of the little-known Coyame UFO Crash incident. This was a mid-air collision in 1974 between a small plane and a UFO on the U.S.-Mexico border near the city of Presidio, Texas. Following the crash, the governments of both Mexico and the U.S. sent troops to recover the fallen UFO. What happened next is a complete mystery and much more disturbing than just a crashed UFO. On episode 122 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we head to Dreamland. Watertown. Groom Lake. Whatever you may call it; we know it best as Area 51. When a Facebook event group was created in jest, it exploded across the social networking highway and became an overnight sensation. "Storm Area 51: They Can't Stop Us All" was created by Matty Roberts, a young man who had no idea what his joke event would soon become. With over 3 million people now interested in going or confirmed their participation, the small town of Rachel Nevada has no idea what the expect come September 20th. And neither do those who actually show up to storm this highly secretive military installation.

With a renewed interest in Area 51, thanks in part to both a recent documentary and appearance on the Joe Rogan Experience podcast, Bob Lazar is now on the minds of a new generation who may have never heard his story before. A story of working at S-4, a location miles away from Area 51. There, he says he was hired to help reverse-engineer alien technology from captured flying saucers. As perhaps hundreds of thousands of people prepare to make the long trek out to the Nevada desert, we take a look at why Area 51 was created, what was developed there, and what people should expect by storming the gates.

On episode 121 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined once again by independent filmmaker, Christopher Garetano, to talk all about his new television series, Strange World.

Garetano, whose award-winning film, Montauk Chronicles, inspired the hit show Stranger Things, has spent a lifetime searching for the truth behind some of America's most unusual stories. Now, he begins a boots-on-the-ground investigation into the legends, mysteries and first-person accounts that fuel this country's creepiest conspiracy theories and unexplained occurrences in the new Travel Channel series, Strange World. Over the course of eight hour-long episodes, Garetano will immerse himself in a world of the weird and bizarre, exploring everything from the alleged curse of James Dean's death car, Little Bastard, to the extraordinary and unexplained disappearances on California's Mount Shasta, to the legend of Polybius, a 1980's arcade game supposedly created as a mind-control experiment gone amuck. Garetano runs us through the premiere episode concerning his ongoing investigation into Camp Hero and the Montauk Project, and then he gives us the inside scoop on some of the compelling episodes that will follow.

Guest Bio: Christopher Garetano produced and directed several award-winning films, including the 2005 film, "Horror Business," and the 2015 docudrama, "Montauk Chronicles," which received awards for best documentary at the 2015 Philip K. Dick Film Festival

On episode 115 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan pulls a hilarious and detailed review out of the archives from fellow Eone Podcast Network hosts, J.M. McNab, Blain Watters, and Robert LaRonde of the Rewatchability podcast. Rewatchability is a comedic pop-culture podcast focusing on the movies and TV shows of the recent past. Each week, the hosts profile a cherished property from their youths to see if it holds up to the scrutinous eye of today. That movie was SIGNS, the 2002 alien-themed mystery thriller from M. Night Shyamalan. Ryan joined them to give his "alien expertise" and to give his honest opinions of this highly anticipated film. Did it live up to ufological standards? Did the entire group think it was rewatchable? And how the hell do you come to a planet made mostly of water when it's your biggest weakness?

Guest(s) Bios: Rewatchability is a comedic pop-culture nostalgia podcast hosted by J.M. McNab, Rob LaRonde, and Blain Watters. It is produced independently in Toronto, ON. The show began in the summer of 2011. In 2012 it was profiled by The A.V. Club and in 2015 our podcast appeared on CBC Radio's Podcast Playlist. The aim of the show is to re-watch movies and television shows from when we were younger, and review them in an interesting and hopefully humorous way. Hopefully.

On episode 114 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by paranormal investigator-turned- UFO hunter, Heather Taddy. Many may know Taddy from her extensive work on the hit television series, Paranormal State. But now, she's on the hunt to find the Skinwalker, aliens, UFOs, and all the strange things that occur along the U.S.

This new series tracks a team of investigators as they follow the lights in the sky, and the high beams on the road. Former Colorado law enforcement officer Chuck Zukowski, who has been researching and investigating UFO-related incidents for over 30 years, leads his son Daniel and documentarian, Heather Taddy on the search. The researchers pursue "the cases that authorities ignore, finding evidence that others have missed, listening to witnesses that are otherwise afraid to come forward, searching for definitive proof of UFOs along America's Alien Highway.

Guest Bio: Heather Taddy starred on A&E's hit television series "Paranormal State," which chronicled investigations from the world-renowned college-run club at Pennsylvania State University, The Paranormal Research Society (PRS). She walks us through her process of interviewing witnesses and experiencers of both UFO and anomalous phenomena. How has her work in psychology, PTSD, and trauma helped her in speaking with witnesses? What are her thoughts on hypnosis regression when trying to uncover suppressed memories? We also hear a few anonymous stories from her archives and just exactly where experienter preservation lay in the overall study and investigation of UFOs and beyond. It's a powerful interview you won't soon forget.

Guest Bio: NK Kranda is a southern California native now living in Texas. She went to school for Horticulture Sciences and graduated with highest honors. She then continued her education in the fields of psychology, PTSD and trauma therapies, art, biology, psychics, history, and shamanism. She currently works in experienter research and preservation and has the honor of interviewing some of the most incredible people the field has to offer. November 2004, 90 miles off the coast of Mexico near San Diego, California, the Nimitz Carrier Strike Group was conducting routine training and aerial defense exercises when unexplained events occurred. No one could have predicted what would soon confront the world's most advanced naval war ships and fighter jets. Aerial craft would appear that forever changed all those that encountered them. The answers to the question of "what are they?" remains unanswered by the sailors and the US Gov. After years of cloaked secrecy the true story can finally be told. With multiple witnesses from the ships, their first-hand testimony is impossible to deny.

The film features CGI re-creations as told by the sailors and naval aviators that witnessed them. Aside from the historical fictionalized dialog (no one recorded the radio conversations), the story itself is based on the facts of the case, including official US government docs, witness statements, news reports and official timelines.

On episode 107 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan brings us the incredible story of Herbert Schirmer. On December 3rd, 1967, Schirmer, a twenty-two-year-old police officer, was driving down a desolate highway in Ashland, Nebraska. He approached a pair of lights that he believed to be a stalled vehicle. When he got closer, he realized it wasn't a vehicle on the road, but a craft hovering in the night sky. After a few moments, the craft shot out of sight and the officer returned to his station, noting the sighting in his logbook.

But for Schirmer, there seemed to be a period of missing time between when he first saw the object and when he left the area. And when he finally recalled what had happened in those missing moments, the story became far bigger and stranger than first imagined, prompting the Air Force and Government to investigate.

Presented in association with the Omaha World-Herald and including actual audio from Schirmer himself, this is the story of the abduction in Ashland.

The book includes declassified records that prove that UFOs are one of the most highly classified and most elusive subjects the U.S. Government has ever dealt with. He then gives his candid thoughts on Luis Elizondo, the former head of the Secret Pentagon UFO program, and the current work by To the Stars Academy, including the developing story of UFO reporting being implemented by the U.S. Navy.

Guest Bio: John Greenwald, Jr. began researching the secret inner workings of the U.S. Government at the young age of fifteen. He targeted such groups as the CIA, FBI, Pentagon, Air Force, Army, Navy, NSA, DIA, and countless others. Greenwald utilized the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) to gain access to thousands of records. He accumulated an astonishing number of documents on topics related to UFOs, the JFK Assassination, chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons, and top secret aircraft. Over two million pages later, and the Black Vault website was created. Greenwald has been featured on television networks such as The History Channel, Discovery Channel, A&E, and NBC.

On episode 103 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined once again by Joey Chait, an ex-member of the church of Scientology. In part 2 of this series, they discuss what happened after Joey was kicked out of the infamous "Sea Org" for being gay. Then Joey runs us through the incredible story of how and why he was sent to federal prison, testified under oath about what he endured in his lifetime with the church of Scientology, and what happened when he finally left completely.

Then, Joey describes his interactions with the mysterious, new leader of Scientology, David Miscavige, and his complete hijacking of the entire religion. Joey then answers listener questions to help clear up misconceptions and confirmations about the church, its followers, and what comes next for him as an ex-member speaking out against Scientology.

Guest Bio: Joey Chait is a former member of the Church of Scientology and was raised in the cult since birth. He was forced into Scientology training courses at a very young age, and worked in the family business, with his Scientology family for most of his life. In 2016, Joey decided to publicly speak out against Scientology, including his story of being gay and growing up in a homophobic cult. Joey continues to speak publicly about the abusive practices of Scientology and is currently writing an autobiography about his life in the cult. On episode 102 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by Joey Chait, an ex-member of the church of Scientology. Born into this highly controversial religion, Chait navigated his way up the ranks of the Church's many "spiritual" levels to become a prominent member. But it all came crashing down with a string of events so disturbing that it led to him leaving Scientology behind, along with losing his entire family in the process.

In part 1 of this series, we learn the incredible creation myth of the religion itself, the horrible things Chait endured, and what prompted him to finally break free at a very unfortunate cost.

On episode 101 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes Lance Mungia to the show. Mungia is the director of the recently released documentary, Third Eye Spies

For more than 20 years the CIA used psychic abilities in a top-secret program. You paid for it; you deserve to know about it. A psychic spy program developed during the Cold War escalated after a Stanford Research Institute experiment publicized classified intel. As a result, the highly successful work of physicist Russell Targ was co-opted by the CIA and hidden for decades due to the demands of 'national security.' But when America's greatest psychic spy dies mysteriously, Targ fights to get their work declassified; even if it means going directly to his former enemies in the Soviet Union to prove the reality of ESP to the world at large. Mungia runs us through some of the most compelling moments from the documentary, and then he shares, for the very first time, his personal UFO story.

Guest Bio: Lance Mungia is an American screenwriter and film director of the film Six-String Samurai and co-writer/director of The Crow: Wicked Prayer for Dimension Films. Mungia also wrote and directed the short film Garden for Rio, produced at Loyola Marymount University, where he attended as a film student. To learn more, visit: <http://www.wakinguniversefilms.com>

On episode 98 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan looks into the dark and disturbing topic of deaths within the UFO research community. Throughout the years, several individuals investigating UFOs and various other fringe topics were found dead in the most mysterious and tragic of ways. Were these simply suicides or unfortunate fatalities? Or was there a more nefarious and conspiratorial angle to their deaths?

The stories of Max Spiers, Morris K. Jessup, Dorothy Kilgallen, Frank Edwards, Ron Rummel, and Phil Schneider are explored in great depth. Are these stories just fuel for conspiracy theory, or could they possibly beg the question; if you dig deep enough into UFOs, do you risk being monitored, targeted, and permanently silenced for knowing, and possibly divulging too much?

Greetings Earthlings!

Each week, I tirelessly bring you the best possible content I can with the SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES podcast, for no cost to you. It is my passion, and I love doing it. Through my research and resources, I bring guests on the show from all walks of life to discuss a topic that has scared, excited, mystified and compelled us for almost a century; UFOs. But that's not it. The show also dives into other topics such as the paranormal, cryptozoology, folklore, and sometimes the occasional conspiracy theory. But at the heart of it is the passion to explore the unknown. And with your help, I'd like to make this a full-time job and livelihood, so that I can dedicate my time fully to uncovering these mysteries, bringing the topic to the mainstream, and ask new questions of and enigmatic and unforgiving mystery of the ages.

Rest assured: the main show will ALWAYS remain FREE. But, if I receive enough financial support per month, I'll have the means to create merchandise for you, produce extra episodes + bonus content, and bring you high-quality videos and live streams of interviews, investigations, and events. I'll also be able to spend more time focussing on writing books and articles about these topics, something I simply don't have the free time to do right now. But with your help, you'll receive more and more content in all formats, and you'll make this UFO researcher one happy guy! I

On episode 93 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes author and professor of religious studies, Diana Walsh Pasulka to the show to talk about her new book, American Cosmic: UFOs, Religion, Technology.

More than half of American adults and more than seventy-five percent of young Americans believe in intelligent extraterrestrial life. This level of belief rivals that of belief in God. American Cosmic examines the mechanisms at work behind the thriving belief system in extraterrestrial life, a system that is changing and even supplanting traditional religions. Over the course of a six-year ethnographic study, Pasulka interviewed successful and influential scientists, professionals, and Silicon Valley entrepreneurs who believe in extraterrestrial intelligence, thereby disproving the common misconception that only fringe members of society believe in UFOs. American Cosmic explores the intriguing question of how people interpret unexplainable experiences and argues that the media is replacing religion as a cultural authority that offers believers answers about non-human intelligent life and the enigmatic phenomena often connected to all this... UFOs.

On episode 92 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes back Karl Pfeiffer to the show. His most recent documentary series, HELLIER, released this week. We talk all about how it came to be, who is involved with this highly enigmatic series, and what to expect as the series and investigation both move forward in the most mysterious of ways.

HELLIER is a five-part, cinematic documentary series following an investigation into unsolved mysteries, impossible synchronicities, and a web of high strangeness which stretches from the heart of Appalachian coal country. Driven by a plea for help from a man under supernatural assault, a small crew of paranormal researchers, led by the Traveling Museum of the Paranormal & Occult's Greg & Dana Newkirk, find themselves in a dying coal town, where a series of strange coincidences leads them to a decades-old mystery with far-reaching implications.

Guest Bio: Karl Pfeiffer (Executive Producer, Director, Editor, Cast), has always been passionate about the mysterious, uncanny, and supernatural in the world around him. In 2009, he won the first season of Syfy's Ghost Hunters Academy and went on to appear on Ghost Hunters International. While serving as the Resident Paranormal Investigator of Colorado's famously haunted Stanley Hotel for five years, he directed and edited the web series, Spirits of the Stanley for the Dark Zone web network and conducted 250

2019 01 07 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/I9chKAmLyjs> Somewhere in the Skies Project Blue Book #RyanSprague #ProjectBlueBook #HistoryChannel Transcript Link

On episode 90 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by both David O'Leary and Sean Jablonski, the creators and showrunner of Project Blue Book, the highly anticipated new television show on the History Channel.

Project Blue Book is based on the true, top-secret investigations into Unidentified Flying Objects (UFOs) and related phenomena conducted by the United States Air Force from 1952 to 1969. The investigations were headed by the noted astronomer, J. Allen Hynek.

What prompted creator, David O'Leary to pen a script based on the life and career of J. Allen Hynek? What cases did he find most compelling to bring to the mainstream? And just exactly what is up with that alien in the tube that we keep seeing in many of the publicity photos?

Next, Ryan speaks with co-writer and showrunner, Sean Jablonski. He runs us through the inception of the show, to casting, researching, and eventually producing and running the entire endeavor. How close to real-life is the show? And what can expect in the first season? All this and more in this week's jam-packed episode on Project Blue Book.

Guest Bios:

2018 12 30 Ryan Sprague https://youtu.be/LxWPnVihg_A Somewhere in the Skies Confessions of a UFO Investigator #RyanSprague #ProjectBlueBook #ShaneHurd

On episode 89 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes Shane Hurd to the show. After the Phoenix Lights Incident of 1997, Hurd felt compelled to start looking into the UFO phenomenon and would eventually become a MUFON Field Investigator.

Transcript Link

Hurd discusses some the most compelling cases he has personally investigated through MUFON. He then dives deep into some of the articles he's written at Rogue Planet. What famous UFO event is the late John McCain connected to? And why are UFOs so damn silent? This and much more on this week's show!

Guest Bio: Shane Hurd has spent his career in the fields of Civil Engineering, Geographic Information Systems, Information Technologies, and is a graduate of Arizona State University's Certified Public Manager program. As a member of the space race generation, he has been a lifelong space and science nerd, and sci-fi geek. It was the Phoenix Lights Incident in his hometown of Phoenix, Arizona that sparked his interest in UFOs. Since that time, he has studied the subject and ultimately joined MUFON as a field investigator. He is a musician, amateur astronomer, horse owner, and enjoys a good bourbon now and then.

On episode 87 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by a group of journalists for the 2018 UFO Year in Review. The group includes the founders and content creators of Rogue Planet, Jason McClellan and Maureen Elsberry. Rounding out the group is Mike Damante, contributing writer for the Houston Chronicle and creator of Punk Rock and UFOs.

The group discusses three stunning sighting reports that all involved pilot witnesses and all included official FAA audio documentation. They also give their reviews of the recent documentary, Bob Lazar: Area 51 & Flying Saucers. The conversation then veers into alien territory with some amazing discoveries this past year in the astronomical and astrobiological fields. And the year wouldn't be complete without a hefty amount of To the Stars Academy conversation. So sit back, pop open the champagne, and let's ring in the new year with a look back at UFOs in 2018!

On episode 86 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by John Greenewald, the creator and moderator of The Black Vault.

The Black Vault is the largest privately run online repository of declassified government documents anywhere in the world. With more than 2 Million pages of documents to read, on nearly every government secret imaginable, The Black Vault is known worldwide for getting down to the truth... and nothing but. Every document in its archive was obtained through the Freedom of Information Act. Begun in 1996, at the age of 15, John Greenewald, Jr., began hammering the U.S. Government with FOIA requests to obtain information. The Black Vault is the result of that near two-decade effort. And today, we talk about how it all began, the most important documents he came across pertaining to UFOs, and then we do a deep dive into AATIP, the supposed Secret Pentagon UFO Program, and the critical observations John has come across in relation to the head of the program, Luis Elizondo. We wrap things up talking about a stunning amount of never-before-seen documents pertaining to the CIA's involvement in a Behavioral Modification program that involved mind control and other MK ULTRA-like experiments.

For nearly seven decades, we have attempted to establish a viable approach to studying the UFO phenomenon. Yet, whether through the lens of science, philosophy, religion, psychology, or history, it can be argued that few concrete determinations about the true source and purpose of UFOs have emerged. Sprague theorizes that by observing trends present in case reports of the phenomena and assessing their implications, perhaps some data can be gleaned.

Could the experience and aftermath of a reported UFO event actually shape the evolution of the phenomena? This lecture will be a personal journey through the hearts and minds of witnesses and experiencers, guiding us towards an entirely human approach to what many consider an alien phenomenon.

On episode 84 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes back Jeremy Corbell to the show to talk about his latest film, Bob Lazar: Area 51 & Flying Saucers.

Bob Lazar remains the singular most famous and controversial name in the world of UFOs. The reason you know about Area 51 is because Lazar came forward and told you about it. His disclosures have turned his life upside-down and he has tried to stay out of the spotlight. For this reason, he has never let any filmmaker into the private world of his daily life - that is - until now. Corbell's film explores Lazar's claims through the decades - providing rare and never before revealed footage - guaranteed to alter the landscape of the debate. And today, we cover some of the biggest controversies surrounding the Lazar mythos and Corbell's approach to covering this story, over thirty years in the making.

We are moving into a strange new world of “enhanced humans,” or even “post-humans.” In other words, a transhuman world. Science is now on the verge of re-defining the human species, which could happen within our lifetimes. Richard Dolan will explain the main developments for us to track and will bring a counter-argument to the utopian claims that transhumanism will solve the problems of the world: there is perhaps an equal or greater danger that the coming transhumanism will result in a permanent biologically-based caste system.

When Ryan wasn't speaking, moderating panels, and facilitating UFO witness sessions, he was invading the vendor hall and green room to bring a collection of interviews from some of the most notable speakers at this three-day event.

You'll hear from many UFO researchers, Ancient Aliens contributors, and even some audio from exclusive panel discussions, including a Q&A with Paul Hynek, son of the acclaimed astronomer, J. Allen Hynek. Guests also include Richard Dolan, Nick Pope, Ramy Romany, Travis Walton, Alejandro Rojas, Karen Brard, Stephen Bassett, Jason McClellan, Dr. David Floyd, and Patrick Harnett.

With attendance growing at this event every outing, it is clear that the UFO and alien topics are inching ever closer to the mainstream, and Ryan was fortunate enough to be in the middle of it all. And now, you will too. This is one for the books, so sit back, strap in, and remember, we're not saying it's aliens... but... you know the rest!

On episode 81 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we return to UFOs in full force with an explosive interview with a military veteran, retired police detective, and current UFO investigator, James Clarkson. After lecturing about government secrecy pertaining to UFOs, an elderly woman approached him and told him that she agreed that the government wasn't sharing with the public all they knew about UFOs. Upon asking her how she knew, Clarkson was intrigued by her answer; "Because I worked there..."

Clarkson runs us through some of the more compelling aspects of both June Crain's life and her handling of possible materials from the Roswell UFO incident.

We also get the inside scoop on why Clarkson quit MUFON and recently rejoined, and his personal thoughts on To the Stars Academy and the future of UFO research.

On episode 79 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we continue our Halloween Series with a listener story we've titled, "The Demon Upstairs." Then we take a haunted history tour of Milwaukee and it's many ghostly tales with this week's special guest, Allison Jornlin.

#RyanSprague #SomewhereInTheSkies #HauntedTales

As the leading haunted history researcher and tour guide in all of Milwaukee, Allison runs us through some of the most compelling cases of ghostly activity to come out of this Midwestern city. From the tragic death of a young boy beckoned to a lake by an evil spirit to an entire major league baseball team encountering paranormal activity. We hear about a private organization that educates priests in exorcisms and deliverance and we ask the question; can a ghost leave behind footprints? This and much more as we continue to count down to Halloween!

Guest Bio: Allison Jornlin founded Milwaukee's first haunted history tour in 2008. When she's not teaching fourth graders at a local elementary school, she conducts ghost tours in the Third Ward and down Milwaukee's haunted main street, Wisconsin Avenue. She assists businesses and paranormal investigation teams with in-depth historical research. As an admirer of anomalies researcher Charles Fort, she frequently provides expert commentary on a variety of Fortean topics for the podcast, See You on the Other Side.

- On episode 74 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks with documentary filmmaker, Jonathan Berman, about his latest film, Calling All Earthlings, based on the life and work of George Van Tassel.
- #RyanSprague #JonathanBerman #CallingAllEarthlings
- In 1947, George Van Tassel, a Howard Hughes employee and confidante, suddenly quits working for his mentor and ditches the straight life, moving deep into the Mojave Desert where he and his family sleep under a rock. He leaves behind a tattered Los Angeles in the grips of postwar paranoia, opting for the quietude of the Joshua Tree area. It is during an August 1953 full moon that Van Tassel has an encounter with extraterrestrials, who give him the information to build a rejuvenation machine he dubs “The Integratron.”
- Is Van Tassel crazy or could the Integratron really work? FBI agents try to halt the army of eccentrics who gather in the desert to create a collective, possibly threatening reality on the edge of the American Dream. A gentle inquiry into alternative culture, the story is told by the current residents of the Joshua Tree area, who must defend against rampant militarism and commercialization, all while still waiting for their spaceship.

- On episode 73 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Jeremy Corbell returns to the show to discuss his latest film, Hunt for the Skinwalker.
- Based on the best-selling book by George Knapp & Dr. Colm Kelleher, Hunt for the Skinwalker is an intimate and unnerving portrait of the events surrounding the most extensive scientific study of a paranormal hotspot in human history.
- This Utah ranch includes sightings of orbs, UFOs, animal mutilations, unknown creatures, poltergeist-type activity, and many other inexplicable incidents. An exhaustive, multidisciplinary scientific study began in 1996, spearheaded by an enigmatic Las Vegas billionaire. A team of PhD-level investigators was deployed to collect evidence and spent more than a decade on the ground, interviewing witnesses, searching for explanations, and directly confronting an unknown intelligence. Recent headlines have revealed that a second, government-funded but confidential study was initiated by the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA). This second investigation was designed to determine if the phenomena at the ranch might have national security implications or could point to technological breakthroughs.
- The shroud of mystery hanging above Skinwalker Ranch and the Uintah Basin has fascinated director Jeremy Corbell for years. He finally journeyed to the property to interview eyewitnesses

Eileen Moreland went out to milk the cows one morning in the South Island town of Blenheim. She returned home about eighty minutes later with an extraordinary story. "You may think I am mad," she told police, "but I saw a flying saucer." After reporting the incident to the police, the local Air Force Base got involved and began to privately investigate the report. What they uncovered, and the events that followed, would both haunt the Air Force investigators and the Moreland family for many years to come.

This is the incredible story; "Finding Mrs. Moreland: How One Woman's UFO Claim Exposed Paranoia and Fear in 1950s New Zealand." Set to the backdrop of the Cold War, this little known UFO event was covered in great detail by a New Zealand journalist named Charlie Gates. In association with Gates and the news site, Stuff Limited, this audio documentary consists of Gates' massive article in its entirety.

On episode 71 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by UFO journalist, Jason McClellan and UFO blogger and academic, MJ Banias. The three sit down, whiskey in hand, to discuss the recent happenings over at To the Stars Academy of Arts and Science. With the announcement of a new research project known as The Acquisition and Data Analysis of Materials (A.D.A.M), things are getting very interesting in the UFO field and beyond.

With this project, Tom DeLonge, Luis Elizondo, and the rest of the science team will recover materials that are said to have possibly been from downed UFO craft. With the assistance of TTSA member, Hal Putoff, and a group of scientists, these materials will undergo rigorous analysis to determine its composition and possible origins. But will we be privy to what they find? And if they do determine these materials to be from off-planet, what comes next?

Ryan, Jason, and MJ weave their whiskey-fueled way through the project including its pros, cons, and what may come next for the future of To the Stars Academy and even the future of UFO research on a grander scale. As you can imagine, it was a critical conversation that could only take place Somewhere in the whiskey!

They pull up a stool at the cosmic watering hole, crack open a couple beers, and let it rip. From skeletons and mummies being touted as aliens... to the dated and inaccurate Air Force-appointed acronym of "U.F.O"... to their thoughts on the new History Channel television series, Project Blue Book, which both praises and completely botches our "UFO Dad"; J. Allen Hynek.
Round two of drinks finds the guys answering listener questions with brutal honesty. What do they really think of Billy Meir? What cases do they wish they could personally investigate and what conclusions would they come up with? Did aliens really ask a chicken farmer for jugs of water, and in return, cooked him some pancakes? And what do they think is the biggest misconception when it comes to the UFO topic and study of it?

On episode 67 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes Mike Damante back to the show to discuss his newly released follow-up book, Punk Rock and UFOs: True Believers.
Punk Rock and UFOs: True Believers is a call to arms to the common populace and UFO community to come together to better understand the unexplained. It tackles topics like the process of belief, religion, mythology, popular culture, disclosure, media, advances, science, the unexplained, the UFO phenomena becoming mainstream all in a thought-provoking package aimed at the common reader, as well as the UFO community.
In a time where UFOs are slowly creeping more and more into the mainstream consciousness, it is important that we as a society WANT to know the truth, and are actively seeking it. The book is a wake-up call to the every-day person and looks to bridge the gap to the UFO research community. The book was written to simultaneously synergize both groups to a higher level of thinking. This, and so much more, is discussed this week. We also get Mike's thoughts on the developments happening with To the Stars Academy and we even dive into his own personal beliefs on if we are truly being visited by some sort of non-human intelligence(s).

2018 07 23 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/skUa1e1cbY> Somewhere in the Skies The Brooklyn Bridge UFO Abduction

On episode 66 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan shares the incredible story of the Brooklyn Bridge UFO abduction. In New York City, on November 30th, 1989, Linda Napolitano was seen emerging from an apartment building window twelve stories above the ground accompanied by three small alien figures. Suspended within a blue beam of light, Linda and her captors were lifted into a large reddish-orange glowing UFO, which then moved off in the direction of the Brooklyn Bridge. Noted abduction researcher, Budd Hopkin, conducted an exhaustive investigation of the case. Several witnesses, including a world political leader, saw - and later independently corroborated - this event. It is the evidence of numerous and influential eyewitnesses to this abduction that shatters all previous patterns of UFO encounters.

The highly dramatic and controversial accounts of Linda and the witnesses have left both the believers and skeptics debating the Brooklyn Bridge abduction up until today. To further the debate, Ryan invites Peter Robbins to the show. Robbins is a UFO researcher, author, and former assistant to Budd Hopkins. Robbins runs us through his personal experiences with both Hopkins and Linda, and sheds light on this dark and disturbing case like never before.

Then Ryan sits down face-to-face with Jennifer Stein and Peter Robbins, co-producers of the award-winning documentary, Travis: The True Story of Travis Walton.

Driving home after a day of clearing brush in the forest, six lumberjacks come upon a 40-foot disk hovering silently over the crest of a ridge. As if spellbound, Travis Walton jumps from the passenger side of the truck, running towards it for a closer look. That decision on November 5th, 1975, would change him forever. The 21-year-old logger from Snowflake, Arizona was struck by a powerful blue beam of light from the craft. He disappeared for five days, igniting a firestorm of controversy aimed at the logging crew who were the last to see him. Travis Walton's 1975 experience comes alive as he recounts the ordeal.

TRAVIS combines new and archived interviews with the logging crew, police and the polygraph examiner. Walton explains how this event changed his life forever, as the media, skeptics and debunkers attacked him, his friends and family. UFO experts explain why this story continues to astound investigators, astrophysicists and journalists as they investigate for reliable evidence of other worlds,

The book, comprised and edited by Robbie Graham, features over a dozen authors from around the world who have contributed their thoughts, theories, and approaches to studying the UFO phenomenon. The essay, titled, "Frankenstein and Flying Saucers: Creating, Destroying, and Re-animating a Phenomenal Monster," draws parallels between the universally praised story of Frankenstein's monster and the ever-evolving, devolving, and monstrous phenomena and study of UFOs. As you'll hear in the essay, Ryan draws from the work of theorists and researchers including Carl Jung, Jacques Vallée, Jenny Randles, David Clarke, and Greg Bishop. It considers the enduring appeal of the UFO in modern culture, ufology's long (and perhaps futile) struggle for legitimacy, and the questionable inclination of so many UFO researchers to label the phenomenon as "extraterrestrial." Ryan does not discount the possibility of otherworldly visitation, but he ushers the reader gently down other avenues of inquiry and suggests we may sooner come to grips with the nature of the UFO phenomenon by seeking to unravel the complexities of human cognition and our own perceptual apparatus. Purchase the book here: https://www.amazon.com/UFOs-Reframing-Debate-Robbie-	Transcript Link

2018 04 09 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/EHK7RjBz4So> Somewhere in the Skies The Truth Is In The Numbers On episode 51 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan welcomes author, journalist, and UFO researcher, Cheryl Costa to the show. Along with Linda Costa, Cheryl recently published UFO Sightings Desk Reference: United States of America 2001-2015, which includes over 121,000 sightings. She lists the top UFO hot spots, according to the data, and sighting reports down to the county level. Anyone can use the book to find out how many sightings there have been in their area, and how it stacks up against other parts of the US.

Transcript Link

In this interview, Cheryl talks about her discoveries while compiling the data. She also digs deep into where the UFO topic is heading in terms of mainstream coverage in the media. We also get a sneak peek at a play Cheryl's written about UFOs.

Guest Bio: Cheryl Costa is a native and resident of upstate New York who saw her first UFO at age 12. A military veteran, she's a retired information security professional from the aerospace industry. She's been a speaker at the International UFO Congress and at the MUFON Symposium. Cheryl writes the UFO column "New York Skies" for SyracuseNewTimes.com. Besides being a journalist, she's also a published playwright and author. She holds a bachelor of arts degree from the State University of New York at Empire State College in entertainment writing. To read her articles, visit: <http://www.syracusenewtimes.com>. 2018 04 02 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/m931ieJpguw> Somewhere in the Skies Stanton Friedman The End of an Era On episode 50 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks with esteemed nuclear physicist and UFO researcher, Stanton T. Friedman. With the recent announcement of his retirement from the field, Stanton brings listeners on a journey of over forty years of memories, experiences, and theories. He sets the record straight on what he's learned and where the phenomenon and studies are heading as a new generation of ufologists step up the plate. Transcript Link

Guest Bio: Nuclear Physicist-Lecturer Stanton T. Friedman received his BSc. and MSc. Degrees in physics from the University of Chicago in 1955 and 1956. He was employed for 14 years as a nuclear physicist by such companies as GE, GM, Westinghouse, TRW Systems, Aerojet General Nucleonics, and McDonnell Douglas working in such highly advanced, classified, eventually cancelled programs as nuclear aircraft, fission and fusion rockets, and various compact nuclear powerplants for space and terrestrial applications.

He became interested in UFOs in 1958, and since 1967 has lectured about them at more than 600 colleges and 100 professional groups in 50 U.S. states, 10 Canadian provinces and 18 other countries in addition to various nuclear consulting efforts. He has published more than 90 UFO papers and has appeared on hundreds of radio and TV programs including on Larry King in 2007 and twice in 2008, and many documentaries. He is the original civilian investigator of the Roswell Incident and co-authored Crash at Corona: The Definitive Study of the Roswell Incident. This book is a companion to the groundbreaking ideas that began with Mike Clelland's earlier book, The Messengers. It is a further exploration of the connection, both symbolic and literal, between owls and UFOs. There is a strangeness to these accounts that defies any simple explanation. Each chapter tells a deeply personal story where these mysterious experiences are explored in depth. The ancient mythology of the owl is repeating itself within the modern UFO report. What plays out is a journey of transformation, with an owl at the heart of each story. And in this episode, Mike tells some of those incredible stories and where they may fit in the entire UFO mystery and beyond. Transcript Link

Guest Bio: Mike Clelland's 2015 book, The Messengers, was met with high praise. In it, he explores the mysterious connection between owls, synchronicities and UFO abduction. It was his first-hand experiences with these elusive events that have been the foundation for his research. The book is also a personal memoir and a journey of self-discovery. His website, <http://www.hiddenexperience.blogspot.com>, explores these events and their connection to the alien contact phenomenon. It also features extended audio interviews with visionaries and experts examining the complexities of the overall UFO experience. Mike is also considered an expert in the skills of ultralight backpacking and is the author and illustrator of a series of

2018 03 12 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/uViSorUMvgw> Somewhere in the Skies Fear and Loathing on the Trail of the Saucers

Ryan speaks with Bryce Zabel, television/film producer and writer. They discuss his recently released alternate history novel, Once There Was a Way: What if the Beatles Stayed Together? We know The Beatles let it be, but what if they worked it out instead? It's a great new adventure full of twists and turns that never were, but might have been. Then, Zabel brings us down the fascinating trail he's traveled in the worlds of ufology and Hollywood and where they often intersect.

Transcript Link

After his recent talk at the International UFO Congress, Zabel navigates the crazy maze of UFOs and where he stands on the way we perceive both the phenomena and the often divisive study of it. We then get a sneak peek at some of his UFO films and television projects in development, including exclusive news on a very well known actor who recently signed on to play a major role in one of the projects.

Guest Bio: A winner of the prestigious Writers Guild award for screenwriting, Bryce Zabel has created and produced five primetime television series, including Dark Skies and The Crow, and worked on a dozen TV writing staffs (Lois & Clark, Taken). A produced feature (Atlantis, Mortal Kombat) and miniseries writer (Blackbeard, Pandemic), Bryce's latest film, The Last Battle, will be shot by StudioCanal next year in Europe. He was the first writer since Rod Serling elected to serve as Chairman/CEO of the Television Academy. Transcript Link

On episode 45 of the SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES podcast, Ryan speaks with Brad Abrahams, director of Love & Saucers.

This is the story of David Huggins, a seventy-two-year-old who lost his virginity to an alien woman-among a hundred other E.T. encounters- and chronicled it all in surreal paintings, few of which have ever been seen. Until now.

Ryan and Brad discuss the film in depth, diving deep into the bizarre accounts of Huggins and what the people in his life think about it all. No matter your thoughts of alien abduction, the film examines one man's struggle with reality and the world around him, culminating in a very human story about an otherworldly lifetime of experiences. Check out the film at <http://www.loveandsaucers.com>

Guest Bio: Brad Abrahams is a director from Canada, currently residing in the U.S. His work has been seen on CNN, Fast Company, Wired, Vice, Huffington Post, Cosmopolitan, Gawker, LA Times, The Verge, Indiewire, and film festivals around the world. His first feature-length film, Love & Saucers, has garnered multiple awards and recently received worldwide distribution.

On episode 44 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by the newly appointed director of Research for the Mutual UFO Network (MUFON), Chris Cogswell. Ryan has been pretty vocal about his thoughts on MUFON in the past, and with news of a new Director of Research, he opened the floor to listeners and beyond the put Chris to the test.

How did Chris get involved with MUFON? What are his credentials? And just exactly what are his plans to completely overhaul the way MUFON handles its research and investigations? His answers were extremely invigorating and refreshing to a MUFON skeptic.

Ryan and Chris also discuss some very ambitious theories on UFOs and how these theories can be applied to the future of UFO research both in and out of MUFON. They then dive deep into Chris's own show, THE MAD SCIENTIST PODCAST.

Guest Bio: Chris Cogswell is a PhD in Chemical Engineering, host of The Mad Scientist Podcast, and the newly appointed Director of Research for MUFON. His research focused on the use of nanomaterials for sustainability improvements to existing systems. He hopes to bring MUFON's methods and ideas into the 21st century, and be critical of the ideas and theories floating around UFOlogy today. On episode 43 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we continue our journey with Peter Robbins through the mysterious death of James Forrestal. This is PART 2 of the series.

On May 22nd, 1949, Forrestal fell to his death from the sixteenth-floor window of Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he was treated for "depression". An official U.S. Navy Medical Review Board convened on his death, after examining all doctors and witnesses who were in the vicinity. They could not establish the reason for Forrestal's fall. The peculiar circumstances of Forrestal's death, and the U.S. government's withholding of the complete report of the review board until 2004 has led to much speculation and controversy.

What many are not aware of is that Forrestal has also been connected to the controversial MJ-12 group, an alleged secret committee of scientists, military leaders, and government officials, formed in 1947 by an executive order by then U.S. President, Harry Truman, to facilitate recovery and investigation of alien spacecraft. Before his departure as Secretary of Defense, Forrestal had a mental breakdown, which ultimately led to his untimely death. What did he know? What was he told? And what exactly happened to him in the hospital as he plunged downward into tragedy and questionable history?

Guest Bio: Peter Robbins is an investigative writer, author, and lecturer, best known for his books, columns, articles, radio commentaries, interviews and conference talks. He has appeared as

- Bob Lazar claims to have worked on reverse engineering extraterrestrial technology at a site called S-4, near the Area 51 test facility, and that the UFOs use gravity wave propulsion. When he broke the story to KLAS news, all hell broke loose, and we now know of Area 51 primarily because of Bob Lazar.
- With audio documentation from Lazar himself, and featuring investigative news reporter, George Knapp, we hear all about how the story came to be. We also hear criticisms of the story from UFO researcher, Stanton Friedman. We wrap things up hearing about recent developments discovered by investigative filmmaker, Jeremy Corbell. This episode navigates the crazy maze that is Bob Lazar and his incredible story of flying saucers and the facility that may have possibly reverse-engineered them.

On Episode 02 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan talks about the mysterious case of a young man that has supposedly gone missing in Brazil. Left behind in his bedroom is a conspiracy theorist's dream come true; cryptic messages, occult-like symbols, a series of self-published books completely in code and a large, hand-made statue of a 16th-century philosopher. This entire story is made all the more intriguing after learning the young man was obsessed with aliens, a hand-painted portrait left hanging on the wall showing him dressed as the late philosopher, and an alien being holding him on the shoulder. Is this story the mystery of the year? Or is it an intricate prank or performance piece set to fool the online community?

Next, we hear from Ryan's guest, noted author and radio personality, Micah Hanks. They speak about a fascinating UFO sighting that Hank's personally researched and investigated, and then they dig deep into the famous Cash/Landrum UFO case and the mysterious Frederick Valentich disappearance. They round out the conversation looking at the work of Allan Hendry, an investigator for the Center for UFO Studies (CUFOS) throughout the late 1970s, whose work alongside J. Allen Hynek resulted in his book, The UFO Handbook: A Guide to Investigating, Evaluating and Reporting UFO Sightings.

On the premiere episode of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, host, Ryan Sprague, introduces the listeners to the show and then speaks with historian and author, Richard Dolan, about the media and UFOs. They also discuss the possibility and forms of disclosure that may occur in a new American political era, and then they wrap things up by confronting the future of UFO studies.

Richard Dolan is the author of two volumes of history, UFOs and the National Security State, both ground-breaking works which together provide the most factually complete and accessible narrative of the UFO subject available anywhere. He also co-authored a speculative book about the future, A.D. After Disclosure, the first-ever analysis not only of how UFO secrecy might end, but of the all-important question: what happens next Richard's latest work, UFOs for the 21st Century Mind, provides a fresh treatment of the entire subject. In it, he discusses the important sightings, the encounters, the politics, the cover-up, ancient aliens, the bizarre science, disclosure, and offers advice on being both critical and open-minded in today's world. Like his previous three books, it asks fresh questions and offers new insights to further our understanding of the UFO mystery.

Richard hosts a weekly radio show, The Richard Dolan Show on KGRA Radio, is a frequent guest on Coast-to-Coast AM. He is currently featured on several television series and documentaries, including Ancient Aliens, Hangar One: The UFO Files, and Close

On episode four SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks with Annie Jacobsen, author of Phenomena: The Secret History of the U.S. Government's Investigations Into Extrasensory Perception and Psychokinesis. Annie goes into great detail on how the U.S. obtained extremely bizarre nazi documents after WWII that had to do with studying psychic phenomena. These studies would then be manipulated and reformed to be researched by the U.S. Government under the direction of the C.I.A. This culminated into several decades of working with psychics and remote viewers who would spy on the Soviets during the Cold War. Annie brings us up to date on many of these covert projects and how they have evolved into a whole new cyber and mind war in today's military industrial complex. And yes... we touch on ufology. So don't fret!

On episode 36 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by colleagues: Jason McClellan, MJ Baniyas, and Mike Damante to discuss the year in review.

Transcript Link

The boys begin with the late October UFO incident over Oregon where both commercial planes and fighter jets observed and scrambled an unknown aircraft. They then discuss the Oumuamua Asteroid story, the Kepler discovery of eight new alien planets, and then things get really recent as they go deep into the bombshell story of a secret Pentagon UFO program in connection with Tom DeLonge's To the Stars Academy.

The episode ends with the boy's discussing who they want to hear from more in 2018 and who they want to shut the hell up as well! It is a jam-packed episode and a perfect way to ring in the New Year.

2017 11 26 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/pwD6Yo2Qsig> Somewhere in the Skies Childhood UFO Encounters On episode 33 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan tackles a topic he never has before; childhood UFO sightings. And joining him is UFO researcher and blogger, Michael Huntington. They start with the 1917 Fatima encounter and work all the way up to the 1994 Ruwa, Zimbabwe school sighting. Transcript Link

What is it about children that invite some of the most interesting and bizarre UFO sightings into our mythology? And what does it tell us about how age plays a large factor when dealing with possible visitors from parts unknown? These questions and more will be covered in this week's conversation.

Guest Bio: Michael Huntington is a paranormal travel writer and UFO Researcher living in Cape Girardeau, Missouri. Each year, Michael travels - with his wife and two young boys - to dozens of strange and interesting locations throughout America: haunted abodes, cryptid sighting spots, and famous UFO encounter sites. The Huntingtons document their STRANGE TRAVELS on all social media, on the Strange Travels Blog, and in the soon-to-be-released "Strange Travels" book series. Michael has researched the UFO Mystery for over 40 years and frequently writes on issues related to Reform of Ufology and improving rational methodology. He has been interviewed on television and numerous radio programs discussing a variety of paranormal topics, his family's unusual travels, and the enigmatic UFO subject.

More so than any other medium, cinema has shaped our expectations of potential alien life and visitation. But what messages does Hollywood project to us about our possible otherworldly neighbors? From where do UFO movies draw their inspiration, and what other factors—cultural and conspiratorial—might influence their production and content?

Robbie brings us through his examination of the DNA that builds our perceptions of the UFO mystery. One strand of this DNA weaves real events, stories, and people from the historical record of UFOlogy, while the other spins and twists with the film and TV products they have inspired. It is a marriage of reality and mythology that perpetuates and manipulates everything we know, or at least think we know about UFOs.

Guest Bio: Robbie Graham has lectured around the world on the UFO subject and has been interviewed for the BBC, Coast to Coast AM, Canal+ TV, Channel 4, and Vanity Fair, among many others. His articles have appeared in numerous publications, including The Guardian, New Statesman, Filmfax, and Fortean Times. He holds first class degrees in Film, Television and Radio Studies and Cinema Studies from Staffordshire University and the University of Bristol respectively. 2017 11 05 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/wwjfh73Byu8> Somewhere in the Skies The Andreasson Abduction On episode 30 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan returns to UFOs with a detailed overview of the 1967 Betty Andreasson UFO abduction case. Transcript Link

One calm night, Betty was finishing dinner with her family when a group of non-human creatures entered her home, paralyzed her family into a state of suspended animation, and proceeded to abduct her and perform examinations on her aboard their craft.

This case is highly controversial and hotly debated. We'll hear from listeners on just what they think of the entire affair. We will then hear from Peter Robbins, UFO researcher and former assistant of the late abduction researcher, Budd Hopkins. What does Robbins make of this bizarre case? Could it all be an elaborate hoax? Or was Betty Andreasson taken aboard a craft in what she believed to be a half alien/half religious experience of cosmic proportions?

Guest Bio: Peter Robbins is an investigative writer, author, and lecturer, best known for his books, columns, articles, radio commentaries, interviews and conference talks. He has appeared as a guest on and been a consultant to numerous television programs and documentaries. Peter was born in Queens New York and studied art, design, and theater at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut. He received his BFA (painting, film history) from New York City's School of Visual Arts (SVA) where he also taught painting for a dozen years. In 1996, Bethel was parked in a desolate parking lot when two young boys began to knock on his window, begging and pleading for a ride home. What happened next would completely terrify Bethel and change the rest of his life. Transcript Link

Since this first account of these mysterious black-eyed children, thousands of stories have permeated through both word-of-mouth and online lore, sparking a phenomenon that has grown in both mystery and debate. Bethel recounts that harrowing night, how his story ultimately was leaked and went viral at the advent of the internet, and just exactly what he believes may lay behind the dark, soulless eyes of the black-eyed kids.

It is a perfect story to bring us closer to Halloween. Transcript Link

Then, Ryan sits down with researcher and host of INTO THE FRAY RADIO, Shannon LeGro. Shannon first recounts the singular experience she had as a child that set her on the path to investigating the strange and unknown.

Having recently surpassed the 100th episode, Shannon looks back on some of her most interesting interviews she's conducted which include a terrifying encounter with a bigfoot creature, the strange story of a dark entity that was followed up with a visit by possible Men in Black, and a lifelong string of events with the Fae.

Shannon then recalls her stay and subsequent investigation at Fox Hollow Farm, the location of the grisly murders of Herb Baumeister. With many claims of ghostly activity having been reported there, Shannon decided to spend the night by herself at the infamous farm.

Guest Bio: Shannon has been examining the paranormal since she was a teen, having had her own personal experience which started her on this path. Ryan then speaks with Seth Breedlove, documentary filmmaker and creator of Small Town Monsters, an independent film series that explores lost and bizarre history around the United States. Focusing on small town folklore, the team tells stories through the words and experiences of those who were most affected by them - residents and witnesses. Seth brings us on the fascinating journey of researching and filming his latest installment, Invasion on Chesnut Ridge, which tells the true story of one of the more bizarre places in America, and the unusual activity that has taken place there for decades. Delving into one of the most intriguing and unusual areas this side of the Bermuda Triangle, the film will tell the tale of the Kecksburg UFO crash, the Uniontown Bigfoot/UFO sightings, encounters with a large, prehistoric bird in Keystone State Park and much more.

2017 09 25 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/JKqSM8iWV6M> Somewhere in the Skies Dark Files and the Montauk Project

On episode 24 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks with Chris Garetano about his lifelong search for answers to the Montauk Project, said to have been carried out at Camp Hero on Long Island, NY.

Transcript Link

The government claims that this site is a shuttered military base that once protected Americans, but for decades endless rumors maintain that the United States government engaged in a pattern of covert behavior that saw it experiment on its own citizens in such programs as the Tuskegee Experiments and MK Ultra. Could Montauk's Camp Hero—with its rumors of mind control experiments, acid tests, child abductions, possible alien contact, and time travel have any truth behind it?

Chris is a filmmaker who released a documentary in 2015 titled, THE MONTAUK CHRONICLES, which covered these very rumors and accusations by those who claimed to have been there. Some admitted having participated in the experiments while some even claimed to have been those experimented on. The film was then expanded on in a recent History Channel special called THE DARK FILES. With a thorough investigation by Steve Volk, Barry Eisler, and Chris himself, they unravel the mystery one witness at a time and find stunning evidence that the Montauk Project may be shockingly all too real. Chris gives us the inside scoop on both the documentary and the television special and reveals some of the incredible evidence they uncovered in their dark and mysterious investigation.

This time, he speaks with author and researcher, Mike Clelland, about his book, The Messengers: Owls, Synchronicity and the UFO Abductee. Transcript Link

Without question, this is a classic by one of the most exciting new authors in the UFO field today. After reading it, your view of reality will never be the same. The owl has held a place of reverence and mystique throughout history. And as strange as this might seem, owls are also showing up in conjunction with the UFO experience.

Mike Clelland has collected a wealth of first-hand accounts in which owls manifest in the highly charged moments that surround alien contact. There is a strangeness to these accounts that defy simple explanations. This book explores implications that go far beyond what more conservative researchers would dare consider. But the owl connection encompasses more than the UFO experience. It also includes profound synchronicities, ancient archetypes, dreams, shamanistic experiences, personal transformation, and death. From the mythic legends of our ancient past to the first-hand accounts of the UFO abductee, owls are playing some vital role. This is also a deeply personal story. It is an odyssey of self-discovery as the author grapples with his own owl and UFO encounters. What plays out is a story of transformation with the owl at the heart of this journey.

Transcript Link

'IT' tells the story of seven children in Derry, Maine, who are terrorized by the eponymous being, only to face their own personal demons in the process. Adapted from the 1986 Stephen King novel, the 2017 film was directed by Andy Muschietti and written by Chase Palmer, Cary Fukunaga, and Gary Dauberman. It starred Bill Skarsgard, Jaeden Lieberher, Sophia Lillis, and Finn Wolfhard

With opening box office numbers skyrocketing through the roof, the film garnered a lot of positive reviews and buzz. But did it truly live up to the hype? This is a SPOILER HEAVY and very opinionated dissection of the film by two die-hard Stephen King fans and horror movie buffs in general. So grab your popcorn, hold on to your paper boats, and tune in to hear our thoughts on The Loser's Club. And maybe... just maybe... you'll float too!

2017 08 28 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/QJNWCV2HMLI> Somewhere in the Skies Spooked in Nova Scotia On episode 20 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, we take a slight detour from our normal ufological path to bring you a very special roundtable discussion that occurred during the East Coast Paranormal Conference in Liverpool, Nova Scotia on August 11th-13th. Keynote speakers at this conference included Micah Hanks, Greg Bishop, Paul Kimball, and Ryan Sprague. Transcript Link

In this roundtable discussion, the four speakers debrief on the weekend's events, what they each personally presented in their lectures, and their strange experiences while taking part in a paranormal investigation at the historically haunted Queens County Museum.

The four also speak about the many connections that can be made between UFO studies and other paranormal, supernatural, and esoteric topics. It was a weekend for the ages, and an experience all four won't soon forget. Special thanks go out to our gracious host, Paul Kimball, and to the conference organizer, Linda Refuse and the Crossed Over Paranormal Society for having us.

On episode 19 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan pulls a fascinating interview out of the vault over at INTO THE FRAY RADIO. This interview finds Ryan speaking with NY Times Best-selling author, Ben Mezrich, about his book, The 37th Parallel: The Secret Truth Behind America's UFO Highway, which chronicles the life and investigations of UFO researcher, Chuck Zukowski. Ben brings us on a deeply personal and fascinating journey into one man's search for answers to the mysterious cattle mutilation phenomenon, UFOs, and even a possible conspiracy by Bigelow Aerospace. This all culminates into a path of uncertainty and mystery across America known as the 37th Parallel.

Guest Bio: Ben Mezrich graduated magna cum laude from Harvard. He has published fifteen books, including the New York Times bestsellers The Accidental Billionaires, which was adapted into the Academy Award-winning film, 'The Social Network', and 'Bringing Down the House', which has sold more than 1.5 million copies in twelve languages and was the basis for the hit movie 21, and most recently the national bestseller 'Once Upon a Time in Russia'. 2017 08 14 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/3c8gx2JwVmA> Somewhere in the Skies Whiskey, UFOs, and Shaking the ET Hypothesis

On episode 18 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan sits down with MJ Baniyas. This was a deep conversation that could only be processed with whiskey in hand. In this case, it was Maple Whiskey for Ryan, and a 15-year-old scotch for MJ. As a cultural theorist and peripheral student of philosophy, MJ runs us through his thoughts on the UFO topic, the UFO subculture, and the many ways to approach ufology as we move forward in this deeply enigmatic and unapologetic topic. What does ufology have to do with capitalism? Is there room for skeptics and debunkers when it comes to the UFO question? And just exactly how can we move forward without even connecting aliens to the UFO mystery? All these questions and more are asked in this booze-fueled episode that shatters the UFO mythos and picks up the pieces in a whole new light.

Guest Bio: MJ Baniyas is a writer, blogger, and theorist with a background in Critical Theory, History, and Cultural Studies who critically and philosophically examines the weird, the strange and the anomalous. He was a former field investigator with MUFON, has been featured on multiple podcasts and contributes to Mysterious Universe and Rogue Planet. His work is also featured in a new book entitled UFOs: Reframing the Debate. He is also the creator of the blog, TERRA OBSCURA. This blog is aimed at critically exploring the culture, the people, and the ideas that shape what society considers inexplicable. Using aspects of philosophy, critical theory, and cultural studies, TO questions the common ideologies that form and inform our knowledge concerning bizarre incidents, anomalous paranormal events, UFOs, synchronicities, and other

This episode is dedicated to the memory of Jim Marrs (1943-2017)

On episode 17 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan speaks briefly about the recent passing of conspiracy legend and author, Jim Marrs. Then, he sits down with Peter Robbins, UFO researcher and author for an in-studio discussion. After a few beers, Robbins runs us through a brand new lecture he's currently shaping and refining on the following:

The lecture begins with questioning why 'we' respond to the subject of UFOs the way we do and how society was conditioned to understand that UFOs are nonsense. What constitutes 'proof,' or at the least, UFO related images we should consider taking seriously? What about 'ancient aliens' type images? What about other historical imagery? What we can learn from pre-digital UFO photographs, and what marks the 'real' ones as authentic? How did UFO news coverage, that is print journalism, impact public thinking in the 1940s? And what was the legacy it implanted in the public's psyches? How will the truth ultimately manifest itself? Alternate theories are examined and considered in this episode.

This is a podcast mash-up where Ryan and Sammy discuss their personal UFO sightings, what they love about horror movies, and their admiration for the 1993 film, FIRE IN THE SKY. Transcript Link
- FIRE IN THE SKY is the comprehensive story of a logger named Travis Walton who mysteriously disappears in 1975. Walton and co-workers accidentally discover a UFO and unfortunately, they all escape except Walton who is elevated aboard the bizarre aircraft. As time passes, the small town of Snowflake, Arizona begins to believe that the other loggers are covering up the murder of Walton. But when Walton shows up sometime later, his story of what happened is both incredible and downright terrifying.
- Sammy and Ryan dissect the film and go in depth about the dichotomy between the Hollywood version and the actual events that Travis Walton recounted to the public. It was a fresh take on this classic UFO film. Will there be a remake that follows Walton's version in a more accurate light? And what stunning revelations has Travis Walton brought forward about what truly happened to him on the craft that night? Tune in to find out.

On episode 15 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan is joined by David Jenkins. Jenkins is the creator and executive producer of the hit television series, PEOPLE OF EARTH, on TBS Network. The show is a gentle and modestly pleasing comedy about a support group for alien abductees, but as we learn in this interview, it's about much more. Jenkins explains the inception of the show, his thorough research into the UFO and abduction phenomenon, and where the show is heading with its second season premiering tonight!

Jenkins doesn't do podcast interviews often, let alone a UFO one, so it was a huge honor to have him on the show. It's also very clear that although the show may be considered a comedy, the heart and compassion brought forward by the creative team behind PEOPLE OF EARTH is palpable, and no matter your beliefs on the alien abduction phenomenon, this is a show worth watching, and a topic worth discussing as we continue to reach further and further out into the cosmos.

Guest Bio: David Jenkins received undergraduate degrees in political science and philosophy from Boston University, and an MFA in acting from New York University. While working as an actor in both New York and Chicago, he began writing plays, eventually founding a theater company called "Human Animals". PEOPLE OF EARTH is his first television project.

2017 07 17 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/g-FZbgV8J9U> Somewhere in the Skies UFOs as a Clockwork Orange

On episode 14 of SOMEWHERE IN THE SKIES, Ryan first reads an email from Tommy, a listener out of Fife, Scotland. Tommy recounts perhaps one of the strangest UFO encounters Ryan's ever come across. So strange in fact, that it seems as though something truly trickster-like was at play. Whatever Tommy saw, it seemed as though it were some sort of performance or display played out before his innocent eyes. This bleeds into the interview this week with filmmaker, Jeremy Corbell. Jeremy speaks of his recent experiences at Contact in the Desert, including introducing UFO researchers, Linda Moulton Howe and Jacques Vallée. Jeremy then dives deep into his own presentation, 'UFOs are a Clockwork Orange.' Could the UFO phenomenon be some sort of display set forth by an advanced artificial intelligence? Could the machines or objects we see somewhere in the skies be a projection whose source lay somewhere in time and space? And if so, are we truly helpless against its playful agenda? The conversation then moves into a shocking film of Jeremy's called 'Patient Seventeen', in which a surgeon claims to remove highly advanced implants which could represent nanotechnology microchips, supposedly embedded by aliens. We then move into Jeremy's current work with investigative news reporter, George Knapp, on the infamous Skinwalker Ranch. It was a vast and deeply compelling conversation in which Jeremy Corbell hopes to weaponize your curiosity.

They discuss his new film, Cosmic Whistleblowers. What began as one final attempt to interview the last living witnesses of the Roswell UFO incident of 1947 unexpectedly turns into a two year investigation of the UFO investigators themselves, in what some have said is the most revealing documentary ever made about the UFO issue. With incredible interviews given by retired military personnel with Top Secret clearance, ex-NASA officials and others who became embroiled in this extraordinary event, Cosmic Whistleblowers is the final and perhaps last chance at discovering the truth on the biggest UFO mystery of the last century.

2017 05 29 Ryan Sprague <https://youtu.be/Vd5Wemgxddl> Somewhere in the Skies The Roswell UFO Conspiracy In 2005, a book hit the shelves that completely shattered the Roswell UFO incident into pieces, and caused quite a stir in the UFO community and beyond. Rather than a crashed UFO piloted by alien beings, a new theory was brought to the table: a highly confidential, U.S. government-sanctioned program to conduct medical experiments on handicapped, disfigured, and diseased Japanese POWs, exploited as "expendable" victims by their captors and flown at high altitudes in advanced balloons and possible aircraft over the New Mexico desert. That book was Body Snatchers in the Desert: The Horrible Truth at the Heart of the Roswell Story. Now, author, Nick Redfern, has stirred the pot once more expanding on the information in a follow-up book, The Roswell UFO Conspiracy: Exposing a Shocking and Sinister Secret. Ryan speaks with Redfern about the new information he's uncovered concerning his original theories on what crashed in 1947, and who may have been responsible. As we head toward the 70th anniversary, is it possible that the most famous UFO incident of all time may, in fact, have had nothing to do with UFOs and aliens at all? Transcript Link

This notion of a psychic aspect to UFO sightings bleeds over into this week's discussion with guest, Susan Demeter-St. Clair. Ryan and Susan discuss several cases that she's researched where not only psychic and telepathic communications may have been involved, but that elements of high strangeness and the paranormal may, in fact, have more to do with the UFO question than we truly give it credit for. And how do these aspects affect the witness or experiencer during and after the event? It was a fascinating discussion about these often overlooked aspects of UFO reports that certainly raise new questions and possibly even reveal some answers.

Episode Summary: Ryan introduces us to a UFO sighting that occurred in 2004 in which the Mexican Air Force reported eleven UFOs during a routine patrol flight. Infrared cameras mounted on the plane were able to capture the UFOs. Radio transmissions and an official report given to the Mexican Secretary of Defense made this a very intriguing case that received very little attention in the United States.

The UFO topic is often seen through very western eyes within the United States. But many extraordinary cases have occurred both on the southwestern border and through the skies and grounds of Mexico. And one individual who has looked extensively into these cases is Ruben Uriarte. In this episode, he and Ryan discuss the strange case known as the Cisco Grove incident, in which a UFO witness spent an entire night fighting off an entire fleet of alien humanoids and a robot-looking being. Ruben also speaks of the 1975 Carlos de los Santos case in which a pilot encountered three saucer-shaped UFOs surrounding his plane. They end the conversation talking about a lesser known UFO crash over the town of Coyame in which a mid-air collision supposedly took place between a conventional plane and an unknown aircraft.

Annie goes into great detail on how the U.S. obtained extremely bizarre nazi documents after WWII that had to do with studying psychic phenomena. These studies would then be manipulated and reformed to be researched by the U.S. Government under the direction of the C.I.A. This culminated into several decades of working with psychics and remote viewers who would spy on the Soviets during the Cold War. Annie brings us up to date on many of these covert projects and how they have evolved into a whole new cyber and mind war in today's military industrial complex. And yes... we touch on ufology. So don't fret!

Left behind in his bedroom is a conspiracy theorist's dream come true; cryptic messages, occult-like symbols, a series of self-published books completely in code and a large, hand-made statue of a 16th-century philosopher. This entire story is made all the more intriguing after learning the young man was obsessed with aliens, a hand-painted portrait left hanging on the wall showing him dressed as the late philosopher, and an alien being holding him on the shoulder.
