

What's Going On?

The United States purchased some jet fuel...

We're not talking several gallons, or several thousand gallons, we're talking BIG BUCKS--$304,088,352 to be exact! Shall we guess they got a good deal; at least as good as we do at our corner service station? If so, that is over 300 million gallons. Put it another way, that's enough to fill 100,000 large home-sized swimming pools; enough to give every American a gallon and have enough left over for almost all Canadians! And this doesn't include anything other than jet fuel. What do they know that we don't?

Your Tax Dollar At Work

The Air Force's latest boondoggle is in trouble, again. Their Theater High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system failed again. But this is something we've become accustomed to. To date the program has cost us $3.1 Billion, and they have yet to have single hit-to-kill intercept!
