@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp There are still lots of unanswered questions, many you yourself have rightfully brought up. But i am not seeing contradictions.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570448213957824513

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp Iâ□□ve seen confusion around where the $22M has gone due to the AATIP name confusion. This is all a semantic mess since AATIP is 2 things. Sometimes itâ□□s AAWSAP, sometimes itâ□□s the post-AAWSAP working group. What else is there?

2022-09-15T16:21:36+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570447751858769923

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp As for what specific investigations, Iâ□□d love to know. We know at least Nimitz and Roosevelt. Those involved said there were many incidents UAP w/ service members. Not sure how we can get a hold of that info as if it exists, itâ□□s likely classified.

2022-09-15T16:19:17+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570447169085386753

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp This is what Iâ□□m asking though:

What things are being disregarded? Nobody is challenging that this was an adhoc group after AAWSAP. Iâ□□m just trying to figure out what is being taken issue with here. I donâ□□t see much in the way of contradictions if we follow the reporting.

2022-09-15T16:15:01+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570446097419739136

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp And for the record, Iâ□□ll always put the word of a journalist who has corroborated with multiple people over the word of a single official. Especially an official who wasnâ□□t even present to comment on these matters.

2022-09-15T16:13:44+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570445773531381765

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp He didnâ□□t say they were specifically wrong about that. Plus Lacatski wasnâ□□t involved once he was out in 2010. Why would we know about what happened once AAWSAP ran out of funding? That was years after he left.

2022-09-15T16:00:48+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1570442517908451329

@blackvaultcom @ChrisUKSharp So this is where I start having a hard time understanding. Is the concern stem from not knowing who assigned Elizondo this duty? Because the adhoc nature of AATIP post-AAWSAP has been reported as such since the NYT 2017 article.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FctVJRNagAQkfX8.jpg

The Defense Department has never before acknowledged the existence of the program, which it says it shut down in 2012. But its backers say that, while the Pentagon ended funding for the effort at that time, the program remains in existence. For the past five years, they say, officials with the program have continued to investigate episodes brought to them by service members, while also carrying out their other Defense Department duties.

Other: Although most of the UAP described in our dataset probably remain unidentified due to limited data or challenges to collection processing or analysis, we may require additional scientific knowledge to successfully collect on, analyze and characterize some of them. We would group such objects in this category pending scientific advances that allowed us to better understand them. The UAPTF intends to focus additional analysis on the small number of cases where a UAP appeared to display unusual flight characteristics or signature management.

@stevebozz1 AATIP is a distraction and the tip of an iceberg.

These are good questions youâ□□re asking, but keep in mind, IMO, his work pre-2017 became somewhat validated when the ODNI report basically agreed with this assessment of the situation. https://twitter.com/BryanDBender/status/1137154648199061504

@MadScientistPod i think Tim's analysis is spot on here. Since AAWSAP was...what it was, I don't think it ever got much traction with the rest of the DoD. It's non-funded cousin "AATIP" after AAWSAP died? Much more traction.

@a01744 @JeremyUnidenti1 ICYMI, hereâ□□s a clip of Elizondo explaining how he started at AATIP(AAWSAP?). The whole interview w/ @blackvaultcom is well worth a watch if you havenâ□□t seen it yet.

@a01744 @JeremyUnidenti1 Youâ□□re applying a motive when we just donâ□□t have enough information. We have a lot more info re: Elizondoâ□□s bonafides then we do to the answer to this question. I could hazard a few guesses but weâ□□re all in the dark here.

@MiddleOfMayhem 1/2 I agree with you. Everything needs to be investigated, and every thread pulled on. All I meant by my above tweet is that when discussing events in this book, I see many speaking about it as if itâ□□s the current state of affairs. Thereâ□□s a throughline here without a doubt,

In all seriousness, yes. The sightings at Skinwalker prob never can be. Involvement with the DHS & a briefing with the SecDef? That can be. The Appendices are also great. Prob more, but I'm only a few chapters in.

All this talk of AATIP & AAWSAP is 100% worth having, but donâ□□t forget itâ□□s a discussion about events in the past. AAWSAP being 10+ years ago. A lot has gone down since then.

Again, if this issue in our airspace is real & a concern, then it being a program is irrelevant. What was discovered? Who was briefed?

@MickWest @DScott12321 This was from an abstract from over a year ago from the same scientists. It seems more likely that they did the UAP study after picking up these things during prior observation?

Kudos to a user from the Metabunk forum for this:

DAYTIME OBSERVATIONS OF SPACE INTRUSIONS

B.E.Zhilyaev, V.N.Petukhov, V.N.Reshetnyk, A.P.Vid'machenko, I.R.Buriak
Main Astronomical Observatory of National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine, 03143, Kyiv, 27 Zabolotnoho St, Ukraine,
zhilyaevv@mao.kiev.ua

Daytime observations of space intrusions have their own specifics. The brightness of the daytime sky is 4-6 magnitudes per square arc second. This makes it possible to observe stars up to magnitude 3 during the day with small telescopes. Objects of observation can be bright meteors, objects of artificial origin and of unknown nature. Devices and technologies for observing intrusions in the daytime sky have been developed. The hardware allows for subsecond exposures and a dynamic range of up to 96 decibels. The software implements 2D and 3D filtering and pattern recognition. We demonstrate observations of traces of meteor intrusions in the daytime sky, as well as objects of unknown nature with unusual properties for which we find no rational explanation.

@BryanDBender @Lucybelle47 @ChrisKMellon While I agree with that, having a bunch of unknown things directly where our pilots train certainly would seem like an adversarial Intel effort. Hard to tell if theyâ□□re taking that possible threat seriously given Kendallâ□□s blasÃ© comments and seeming lack of cooperation by USAF.

@TheQuengineer @zcichy @Aviation_Intel Nor did the Navy have to formally announce the Navy FLIR videos were authentic and remained unidentified.

@TheQuengineer @zcichy @Aviation_Intel If this is the case, Congress REALLY isnâ□□t doing a good job. If we shouldnâ□□t be talking about it, why call for a public ODNI report? @TheUfoJoe @InfiniLuc By the way, do we know who that source was? I donâ□□t remember Jacobsen mentioning a name either, but 2 sons, 1 a state senator, another an FBI agent, has me thinking somebody bored online may have already figured it out? :grinning_face_with_sweat:

@TheUfoJoe @InfiniLuc The fact that this source has changed his story, (even with the reason provided by Knapp) certainly makes his word pretty shaky to me. One way or another, he was ok openly lying to a journalist. I do find it interesting that the son who was a state senator encouraged Knapp first.

@strategic_doubt @zcichy @Aviation_Intel Thereâ□□s plenty of criticism to be had with some outlets with their click-motivated articles and fact-checking. Iâ□□m thinking more of in-depth investigative journalism. There are plenty of talented defense journalists out there who AFAIK arenâ□□t giving this the time of day.

@strategic_doubt @zcichy @Aviation_Intel Then Bob Woodward wrote about it, and it was front page news. This is why I believe journalism has a duty here.

IMO, for the most part, theyâ□□re really falling short. I guess anything tangential to â□□UFOsâ□□ is taboo in many newsrooms?

@TruthofTerAvaya I guess the thing about that is, it's hard to know much more unless the USG suddenly wants to share (not gonna happen :grinning_face_with_sweat:) or some nat sec/defense journalists look into it. If it is as you are suggesting it may be, that's quite a story in and of itself.

@MHuntington7 @ddeanjohnson But the briefings go far beyond just the committees. They include the WH (likely the Nat Sec Council), Joint Chiefs, Intel agencies, Vice Chiefs and top brass, NASA, and even contractors.

@MHuntington7 @ddeanjohnson The whole point is they donâ□□t know what they are yet. The ODNI report says as much. My pinned thread on my profile is my attempt to catalogue all known briefings in one place (up to June 25th). In Congress, these were briefings to the actual committees.

@JasonColavito Ah, gotcha. Yup, the Pentagon is just made up of people. People can believe some weird stuff. Which is why this low information zone is so dangerous. Do some of these top officials say these things because of belief or data? Some say data. But we also canâ□□t see said data. So :man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:

You're creating extremes where there are none.

People aren't allowed to say the same idea twice? How is Elizondo expressing his opinion = him claiming he's the first person to ever have said it?

I guess confirmation bias goes both ways. The fact that prominent skeptics are hypothesizing that the Ukraine UAP study is a hoax for propaganda efforts seems like a pretty insane stretch to me.

â□□Weâ□□re being invaded. You know whatâ□□ll really win over the Americans? UFOs!â□□ @trelayne @JasonColavito Growing UAP activism? No way. Thatâ□□s not a sector large enough for targeting. Per Jason, the military and scientific community have next to 0 interest in these studies. Most of this is from the efforts of a few well placed lobbying efforts. How can both of these things be true?

@MickWest Hey Mick,

This study is definitely not a peer reviewed paper doesnâ□□t try to present itself as so. Wonâ□□t argue with you itâ□□s flawed and bizarrely scant on details, but if the objects were caught by both observation stations many KMs away, I think an insect is out of the question.

@bradjohansson21 @EKAdams Iâ□□m talking about nat sec / defense journalists. Shane Harris from the WaPo seems very intrigued by all of this. Julian Barnes has done some reporting too (but should do more).

Journalists that have had nothing to do with UFOs.

@HorusOwl Luckily, this new legislation calls for all UAP data (yes, all) from any agency has to be handed over. By law. That may yield some very interesting reveals for congress. The DoD IG is watching. I'd hope that's motivation enough for NORAD and all the rest to play ball.

@TheProjectUnity @James57136915 @JamesRigney3 The reason vaccinated people can now spread the virus (albeit far less likely to) is because of variants. @MHuntington7 We just donâ□□t have a perfect account of what happened after the 2017 account broke. But the New Yorker article shows someone in charge thought this was worth briefing to people. Congress agreed and asked for more.

subject to official investigation until years after the incident, when an errant file landed on the desk of someone who decided that it merited pursuit.) "What we needed," the former Pentagon official said, "was something like the post-9/11 fusion centers, where a D.O.D. guy can talk to an F.B.I. guy and an N.R.O. guy—everything we learned from the 9/11 Commission."

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FAwDTWMUUAQYbZd.jpg

Within a month of the Times article's publication, the Pentagon's U.A.P. portfolio was reassigned to a civilian intelligence official with a rank equivalent to that of a two-star general. This successor—who did not want to be named, lest U.F.O. nuts swarm his doorstep—had read Kean's book. He channelled the cascade of media interest to argue that, without a process to handle uncategorizable observations, rigid bureaucracies would overlook anything that didn't follow a standard pattern. At the height of the Cold War, the government had worried that the noise of lurid phantasmagoria might drown out signals relevant to national security, or even provide cover for adversarial incursions; now, it seemed, the concern was that valuable intelligence wasn't being reported. (The Nimitz encounter didn't become subject to official investigation until years after the incident, when an errant file @MHuntington7 Everybody lobbies. Itâ□□s Washington. What I find interesting is that after being initially briefed, they continuously asked for more info, got the ODNI involved. Then after that the DepSecDef got involved. Seems like whatever theyâ□□re lobbying, it was worth everyoneâ□□s attn.

@MHuntington7 Yes, there was lobbying. Briefings at first mostly from a currently unknown @AdamGorightly @UAPorSAP All reporting from reputable nat sec journalists have said it is is incredibly unlikely to be ours. All black projects after all are supposed to be reported to the gang of 8. I think the potential for an adversary is much more their concern.

@MHuntington7 Yes. See my pinned thread here. Also Congress is the one who asked for the UAPTF, and more briefings. After the ODNI report? Bill language for even more briefings. On a regular basis. Just look at statements from Schiff, Carson, or Warner.

@UAPorSAP That is absolutely not their motivation. Their motivation is national security. I donâ□□t think they know what it is, and donâ□□t want to be caught being lazy around a potential adversarial incursion(s).

When the story of AATIP broke, Congress had every chance to get embarrassed and never talk

They didnâ□□t.

Instead, they asked for briefings. What they were told has now led to calls for a permanent â□□UFOâ□□ office with congressionally mandated updates.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1442911606657011713

@bradjohansson21 Right. So unless you think Coulthart is just lying, the question becomes, are these people who have otherwise sober responsibilities within our government making crazy stuff up? Do they believe this crazy stuff? Is this crazy stuff real? Are they intentionally misinforming?

https://twitter.com/_/status/1442911096277397505

2021-09-28T17:19:42+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1442901844326453255

@bradjohansson21 But I have a feeling you're taking Coulthart's statements as "this is a fact" rather than "this is what this person told me."

There's a very big difference between reporting and editorializing. Coulthart himself has said he won't believe it unless he sees it for himself.

2021-09-28T17:18:16+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1442901486204166146

@bradjohansson21 Unless you happen to be a journalist, you can't do anything with it. It's reporting. Take it or leave it. If you don't accept anonymous sources, then you can just ignore it. Anonymous sources weren't made up in Ufology. They're commonplace in defense/ nat sec reporting.

2021-09-28T16:48:09+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1442893904773201941

@bradjohansson21 This seems like it would be option 2? Anonymous to us, but not anonymous to Coulthart. After reading his book and listening to these interviews, I can tell you that the # of ppl heâ□□s spoken to is enough for it to be a problem, IMO. This isnâ□□t just 4 people.

If youâ□□re jumping to conclusions that this is UAP related without any details, that may be another sign that you are too deep in this bubble.

Shake off that bias. Step back. There are many reasons why this could be taking place. Not everything revolves around UAP.

Albeit not super in-depth, the more scientists who iterate on collecting data for this kind of phenomenon, the better we all benefit. Ukraine has some busy skies atm, but what they observed is interesting. https://twitter.com/motherboard/status/1569684854354202624

@JonesSmythe Not to mention PBB has been described as a way to explain away cases. The purpose of this interagency entity is to catalogue data in an efficient manner. However the devil will be in the details. TBD on if it will have any teeth or actually do what itâ□□s goals are stated as.

@JonesSmythe It hasnâ□□t even been created yet, so there are no details. But PBB was only within the USAF, and wasnâ□□t even public at first. This will be created under orders from Congress, w/ mechanism in place to report to congressional committees. Thatâ□□s far less insular than PBB was.

@MHuntington7 @alicia_carrie @keithkloor Semantics, IMO. Phenomenon could = many answers. Singular only in the sense that the answer(s) are currently unknown.

At least I hope ppl arenâ□□t assuming that whenever someone says that word, they think that person only thinks thereâ□□s one answer.

@AthertonKD This doesnâ□□t account for physical objects being sighted where sensor tracks are located, nor the ODNIâ□□s report saying these are likely physical objects. If it IS a sensor issue, this is an awful and potentially dangerous way to deal with it. Iâ□□d be more worried about adversaries.

@MHuntington7 @UAPmike @rpowell2u Without it, most grad students and PhD candidates arenâ□□t going to risk their careers researching a topic that might ice them out of a future.

@MHuntington7 @UAPmike @rpowell2u We agree on that. But a vast majority of scientific grants are government grants. I donâ□□t see the NSF giving out grants unless the USG views it as an avenue worth pursuing. I believe weâ□□re on that path. If we want universities to research UAP, the government has to be on board.

@UAPmike @MHuntington7 @rpowell2u I think whether itâ□□s 60 Minutes or Congressâ□□ legislature, any action that shows the public that this isnâ□□t just the â□□UFOlogyâ□□ BS this topic car be known for, is movement towards global engagement by those who should be involved.

2021-09-20T17:07:36+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1439999696072679424

@UAPmike @MHuntington7 @rpowell2u Nothing is 1:1. I donâ□□t think anybody is saying the report is the ONLY reason everything is happening, but those whoâ□□ve been talking about this issue for years are saying that itâ□□s much easier to talk about it publicly and still be taken seriously now.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1439999147982000131

@MHuntington7 @UAPmike @rpowell2u Both entities cited the ODNI report as chief reason for them happening. Iâ□□m just going by what those in charge are saying.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1439996183028457473

@MHuntington7 @UAPmike @rpowell2u I donâ□□t think Project Galileo would have necessarily found the funding beforehand. Or if the push for the UNâ□□s involvement. Or the AIAA conference. Lots of serious and sober people feel like thereâ□□s more permission to talk about this now.

2021-09-20T16:52:15+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1439995834490187778

@MHuntington7 @UAPmike @rpowell2u PR isnâ□□t science, but PR does help with funding. If weâ□□re talking the 80/20 principle here, having the ODNI and Congress take this topic more seriously helps tremendously. The more society views this as an actual problem, the easier it will be to address said problem.

@JasonColavito (1/2) As for congress, the major jump you are making is that they are interested BECAUSE Mellon has "tricked" them. We don't even know for sure what exact role Mellon had in the briefings. We don't know what was said or what info was shared.

Given the body of evidence, I'd say the probability is far higher it is adversarial than our own. If it IS our own, heads will (and should) roll.

@MickWest @ThanosAlpha @JeremyUnidenti1 @hughespj1 @saucerlit @ufotruthdigger @SwinkInc There are far more than these two options. This isn't binary.

Adversaries
Non-state actors (including contractors breaking the law)
Atmospheric phenomena

> “Where we got our videos from, the ones we put out – well, they had 26. And that was one very small branch of a bigger tree. Some of the videos have UFOs 10 feet away from the F/A-18, tracking them for 20 minutes and it’s all on camera! The UFO’s going 600 miles an hour, the pilot’s freaking out screaming and this thing is just scanning the plane for a whole 20 minutes.

Worth noting: as of April 2020, the objects seen in the 3 Navy videos still remain "Unidentified."

Some seem to think they have been identified since. That does not seem to be the case.

BRIEFING CARD

April 30, 2020

UAP Videos

Media Interest: National, international and special interest media have been been particularly interested in three Navy videos of encounters with unidentified aerial phenomena (UAPs) which have been circulating in the public since December 2017 after an unauthorized release. DoD officially released the videos on April 27, 2020.

Top Line Messages

- We take reports of incursions into our airspace – by any aircraft, identified or unidentified – very seriously, and investigate each one.
- Safety and security is our primary concern.
- We released these videos to clear up misconceptions about them.
- We released now because a lengthy review process finally completed.
- We wanted to be fully transparent about the release of the videos.
- What we posted were the complete video files for all three.
- The videos were not released earlier because they had not been cleared for general public release.
- The aerial phenomena in the videos remain characterized as "unidentified."
- As the investigation into UAP reports involves intelligence methods, we will not be providing any further information on these videos.

Supporting Facts (releasable)

- There has been an increase in incursions by UAPs and unauthorized aircraft into training ranges and other designated military air space in recent years.
- The November 2004 video (aka "FLIR") was taken from aircraft from USS Nimitz when off the west coast. The two Jan 2015 videos (aka "GOFAST" and "GIMBAL") were taken from aircraft from USS Theodore Roosevelt when off the east coast.
- There have been numerous FOIA requests for these videos; only now have they been deemed releasable.
- The review included a determination that releasing the videos would not impinge on any subsequent investigations of military air space incursions by UAPs.

@HiiVibez @SenBillNelson @MargaretHoover @Condorman6 It seems fairly logical. There is a precedent for Russia and China wanting to kill us if not at least dominate the geopolitical scene. If itâ□□s unknown, then â□□motivesâ□□ are also unknown. If there are any. Conversations down this rabbit hole all rely on assumptions.

@LuisCay99862776 @media_skyhigh @PostDisclosure Itâ□□s also a key part of oversight for USAPs & Waived USAPs. If the gang of 8 doesnâ□□t know about some black project, the SecDef should. @BrentlyLee @dave_beaty @MysteryWire @devgru1980mi @grahammessick Iâ□□ll say this again, because I feel like youâ□□re missing what Iâ□□m putting down here. If youâ□□re asserting Graves never saw them on radar? Wrong. He has. Heâ□□s made it clear multiple times at multiple places.

Has he seen the objects w/ his own eyes as Rose asked? No.

@BrentlyLee @dave_beaty @MysteryWire @devgru1980mi @grahammessick How is what Graves is saying here going against what Iâ□□m saying? He never physically saw an object with his own eyes. Everything Iâ□□m saying is straight from him, or journalists talking to other pilots who flew in the same region.

@BrentlyLee @dave_beaty @MysteryWire @devgru1980mi @grahammessick If they sometimes saw a physical object and definitely saw the corroborating radar tracks every day, what exactly is the issue? Theyâ□□re training and on mission. They canâ□□t fly by and check for a 6ft object going 100s of mph every day.

@bradjohansson21 @zcichy Right. But thereâ□□s a pretty big assumption made on how often or much they were used. Thereâ□□s so little information available (which SUCKS), we have to be @JasonColavito @UAPmike @rgh_ufos @MickWest Something I think we all can agree on. The way the Pentagonâ□□s PAO and media have been handling all of this has been awful. A lack of clarity creates a vacuum that will be filled by pseudoscience and conspiracy theories. It doesnâ□□t have to be this way.

(U//FOUO) On 9 Mar 18, AFOSI Detachment 334 (DET), Pentagon, Washington, DC, received confirmation from Civ (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) Unauthorized Disclosure Office, 1550 Crystal City Drive, Arlington, VA the videos released by SUBJECT to the media were determined to be U//FOUO. (b)(6); submitted the videos to Civ (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) Division Head, Naval Air Warfare Center - Aircraft Division, Naval Air Station Patuxent River, MD, who in turn submitted the videos to Civ (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) Deputy Security Manager, FA-18 Program Office, Naval Air Station Patuxent River, MD, who sent the lead to the Radar and EO_IR IPT office. The result was "No sensitive symbology or other items of concern."

(U//FOUO) On 12 Mar 18, DET 334 conducted an interview of (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) explained the videos did not go through the proper channels to obtain their declassification, although the videos are U//FOUO. (b)(6); stated the videos would not undergo the formal declassification process just because they were inadvertently released to the public. (b)(6); relayed there was no indication the videos were classified in the first place. (b)(6); stated 100% of all F-18 videos go through his office for declassification and public release. (b)(6); stated the videos which SUBJECT released never went through his office. (b)(6); explained there were no identifying features on the videos to determine when or where the videos came from in order to find out who would have originally classified them. This made it difficult to find the exact video. (b)(6); explained individual units kept track of their footage, but did not keep every video. Some videos were kept for training purposes and some for situations such as SUBJECT's public release of unauthorized videos (b)(7)(E) (U//FOUO) On 13 Apr 18, (b)(6); contacted SA (b)(6); (b)(7)(C) and confirmed that after conducting an official classification review, the three videos obtained by SUBJECT were confirmed to be UNCLASSIFIED. (b)(6); stated the Unauthorized Disclosure Program Management Office considered the matter closed.

CONCLUSION:

AFOSI Det 334 considers this matter closed and will forward the appropriate documentation to the Under Secretary of Defense Intelligence, Pentagon, Washington DC for action.

@stevebozz1 @zcichy For statements such as this, what evidence is there? Those who call these folks liars, does it go beyond a feeling?

Because numerous members of Congress have said that these "craft" are doing just that if the data is correct.

2021-08-20T21:56:17+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1428838324169363460

@stevebozz1 @zcichy This is why more data collection efforts has been requested. To ensure that is not the case.

Again, that likelihood decreases when multiple sensors that work in different ways all pick up the same signature. The report itself said that in those cases, they are likely physical.

@zcichy @keithkloor The fact that they had to finally acknowledge a lack of complete data, change reporting policies, and create a new entity to funnel said data seems like an admission that there has been a lack of due diligence. At least IMO.

@keithkloor Great. If the DoD abides by this policy, why did the objects remain around the East Coast for years? Or why did the drone swarm buzzing the carrier group on the West Coast not get shot down? Actions arenâ□□t in line with policy, which creates questions that have yet to be answered.

@keithkloor Youâ□□re not wrong, but what they say is backed up by documentation. Clearly this isnâ□□t problem only unique to them. One of the major points at this presentation was getting more pilots to report and talk about it.

@markamaskey Well, there are a lot of assumptions made there. First, letâ□□s try and approach the issue scientifically (and publicly) and see what comes up. We havenâ□□t even really tried yet.

@keithkloor Wonâ□□t argue with you there, but it remains a fact that aviators keep running into unidentified things in the air without warning. Sometimes dangerously close. Occasionally these things exhibit unexplainable flight characteristics. Why shouldnâ□□t aviators talk about it?

@keithkloor Even the DNI report acknowledges these things as a flight safety risk to our aviators. Is it not reasonable for the AIAA to address that?

@UAPorSAP @ddeanjohnson @BrianDunning Iâ□□ve had some great chats w/ Mr. Cogswell about this, but have had no luck with Dunning. Iâ□□d love to know how he squares that opinion with all recent news.

Maybe when he says UFOs he means an alien craft as opposed to something our sensors canâ□□t identify?

@UAPorSAP @ddeanjohnson @BrianDunning I heard the podcast, and this tweet of his at the top here sums up what he said in it pretty well. Unless Iâ□□m misreading it, heâ□□s saying this group convinced the world and media the USG is taking this seriously when itâ□□s in fact not.

Do you think the USG's interest is purely from their hard lobbying?

The USSF is a military service that organizes, trains, and equips space forces in order to protect U.S. and allied interests in space and to provide space capabilities to the joint force (unless itâ□□s something that makes us feel awkward).

@JasonColavito I think this paragraph in the article explains why pretty well. Space force doesnâ□□t just mean space. It has access to many sensors and satellites:

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E8YaJXcVcAIile7.jpg

"It makes perfect sense," said one former intelligence official who is advising the military in the planning, citing its more expansive geographic responsibilities than other military branches and access to global — and even galactic — surveillance technologies through the U.S. Space Command. "There is no limit to the Space Force mission. It doesn't have a geographic boundary like the other services."

But asking for the UAPTF was the SSCIâ□□s way to get more info. Didnâ□□t work immediately, but Hickâ□□s new effort made that gambit a success @bpleasies @zcichy @UAPExpeditionGr @GalileoProject1 I agree with you there! But as someone who thinks that things get exponentially easier with the stigma reduced, the USG being more open on this topic would certainly go a long way.

@bpleasies @zcichy This isnâ□□t just the Senate. You have the DNI and the DoD essentially saying itâ□□s possible these things are physical a d potentially advanced. If this is all a lie, so many freaking institutions within our government are lying. Itâ□□s a level of conspiracy I just canâ□□t believe.

@bpleasies @zcichy But Schiff and Carson are saying the same thing. Albeit less emphasis on how intent they are in saying whether advanced tech is 100% being displayed. This is a bipartisan topic. Both seem to be on the same page.

@bpleasies @zcichy You ainâ□□t wrong. But he still was the Chair of the SSCI and now is the Vice Chair. He is one of the gang of 8 and is privy to classified info many others are not. We canâ□□t just ignore that. Iâ□□m no fan of Rubio to put it lightly, but if a Sen is lying about UFOs, well, thatâ□□s news

@zcichy But to your point, IMO, the fact that Rubio has consistently said these things are showcasing tech that is very advanced is probably why heâ□□s not just saying â□□Drones n shit.â□□

Question now is, what is he seeing that is convincing him these things are advanced?

@zcichy I canâ□□t imagine a circumstance where they would touch this touchy subject unless the data theyâ□□ve seen shows thereâ□□s a reality to this. The UAPTF Report says as much. At the very least this is potentially an adversary, and congress wasnâ□□t informed when they should have been.

@JeremyUnidenti1 @MiddleOfMayhem @WitnessCitizen @YouTube Well, sure. That's impossible re: an incident from 20+ years ago,though. Contact with Kurth

Up until now, I know of only two researchers who have spoken to Kurth about his part in the Nimitz encounters. Journalist Giuliano Marinkovic located Kurth, and on 28 October 2017 managed to contact him by telephone. Giuliano put some questions to Kurth, but Kurth's response effectively was "I did something and I can't talk about it."

In the Scientific Coalition for UAP Studies document titled "A Forensic Analysis of Navy Carrier Strike group Eleven's Encounters with an Anomalous Aerial vehicle," it is revealed that researcher Robert Klinn also conducted a telephone interview with Kurth, on 9 November 2017. The document states:

> "He did not want to talk any details due to a commitment to a former employee but indicated to Mr Klinn that he knew Paco well and that 95% of what was written in the FighterSweep article was correct"

As part of the new paper, Lambright explores the role of Kurth in the 2004 incident. Lambright quotes Kurth as follows:

> "I was called for an interview to be a Program manager at BAASS and accepted the job. Nobody in Bigelow companies or anyone associated with BAASS knew anything about the Supersonic Tic Tac event until I told them about it. I interviewed some of the witnesses and wrote a report about the event and submitted it. My report started the entire sequence of subsequent reports and investigation into the events."
> "I am fairly sure in my hiring interview, Colm Kelleher, who did the interview, did not know about the event."

Asked for further details about the actual event, Kurth responded:

> "That's when they vectored Fravor's flight toward the Unidentified Contact. After a few minutes when my checks were completed, I accepted their vector toward the Unidentified Contact. I had Fravor's flight on radar and was directly over the top of them when they were visually observing the Supersonic Tic Tac. I was not on the same radio frequency as Fravor's flight. I saw the visual disturbance in the water (which had been previously and accurately reported) and that is what I used as my reference point to orbit overhead. The disturbance in the water cleared suddenly. It all seemed odd to me at the time...I never saw the object physically myself."

I will explore Lambright's analysis concerning the origins of AATIP, in a later post.

What sort of evidence has led these senators to signal such a shift from the dismissive mindsets of the past?

Our sources indicate that military and intelligence community analysts are confident that neither Russia nor China has produced the extraordinary flying devices described in the most compelling encounters. Brigadier General Richard Stapp, director of the Pentagon's Special Access Program Central Office (i.e., "black" program HQ), has reportedly told inquisitors that the mysterious objects being encountered by the military were not related to secret U.S. technology. Similar sentiments that this doesn't jive with any type of classified U.S. technology have been shared with us by recently retired Air Force generals, former CIA executives, and "black" program veterans from the storied and shrouded Area 51.

Nevertheless, the SSCI directive understandably charges the Director of National Intelligence to consider "any links they [UAP] have to adversarial foreign governments, and the threat they pose to U.S. military assets and installations."

Briefings received by political leaders have certainly included incidents in which extensive military and intelligence resources have been expended. These include multi-day observations by the Nimitz carrier strike group in November 2004 of high-performing UAPs off the coast near San Diego. Legislators have likely also been offered analysis of similar mysterious airborne objects encountered by naval pilots of the Roosevelt carrier group off America's East Coast in 2015.

@DustinOsakada @MiddleOfMayhem This article is guessing at the origin of these unidentified @DustinOsakada @MiddleOfMayhem Why should every case be viewed separately? IMO, thereâ□□s no way to really get a concrete answer for past incidents, but if you have military witnesses and top brass saying the same thing for 70 years, it should at least be acknowledged.

DEPUTY SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
1010 DEFENSE PENTAGON
WASHINGTON, DC 20301-1010

JUN 25 2021

MEMORANDUM FOR SENIOR PENTAGON LEADERSHIP
COMMANDERS OF THE COMBATANT COMMANDS
DEFENSE AGENCY AND DOD FIELD ACTIVITY DIRECTORS

SUBJECT: Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Assessments

A recent report from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) highlights the current challenges associated with assessing Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) occurring on or near DoD training ranges and installations. It is critical that the United States maintain operations security and safety at DoD ranges. To this end, it is equally critical that all U.S. military aircrews or government personnel report whenever aircraft or other devices interfere with military training. This includes the observation and reporting of UAPs.

The report also confirmed that the scope of UAP activity expands significantly beyond the purview of the Secretary of the Navy, who heads the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF), and suggested process improvements to ensure timely collection of consistent data on UAP. Consistent with these recommendations and to improve partnership with the ODNI and other non-DoD organizations, I direct the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security to develop a plan to formalize the mission currently performed by the UAPTF. The plan should:

1. Establish procedures to synchronize collection, reporting and analysis on the UAP problem set, and to establish recommendations for securing military test and training ranges.

2. Identify requirements for the establishment and operation of the new activity, to include the organizational alignment, resources and staffing required, as well as any necessary authorities and a timeline for implementation.

3. Be developed in coordination with the Principal Staff Assistants, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretaries of the Military Departments, and the Commanders of the Combatant Commands and with the DNI and other relevant interagency partners.

All members of the Department will utilize these processes to ensure that the UAPTF, or its follow-on activity, has reports of UAP observations within two weeks of an occurrence.

@OmniTalkRadio Years later, I wonder if Bender is making progress on any info re: other programs. He certainly have quite the quote to NPR back in the day.
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E7MjaMMUUAUjxwC.jpg

GARCIA-NAVARRO: I mean, the other part of this is that we've been hearing for so long that there's been secret government programs looking into UFOs. And you seem to have uncovered that, at least briefly, this was true.

BENDER: Well, I think we uncovered at least one of these government efforts to look at these unexplained phenomena. We were told that there are other programs that other agencies - perhaps, the CIA, perhaps, the individual military branches, the Air Force, the Navy - could likely have their own. But, you know, the Pentagon looking into UFOs or looking into unidentified flying objects is not new. This is sort of the 21st century version of some of the research the Pentagon did many years ago.

Moments after the sighting on July 14th, the USS Kidd entered into a condition of restricted communications designed to enhance operational security and enhance survivability. This is noted throughout many of the logs as "River City 1." During the events, the ships often engaged "emissions control," or EMCON, protocols designed to minimize their electronic emissions profile.

Less than 10 minutes after the sighting, the USS Kidd advised the USS Rafael Peralta of the situation. The USS Rafael Peralta logs show that at around 10:00 PM it activated its own SNOOPIE team. They also show that reports of additional sightings were coming in from the USS John Finn.

@ThanosAlpha @GrantLavac @EndUAPSecrecy I agree that games like this arenâ□□t only not necessary, but if played, wouldnâ□□t be using UFOs.

Iran and China are perfectly usable & tried and tested scapegoats.

2 ideas that I think we can reasonably say â□□byeâ□□ to thanks to recent to bill language and FOIA docs:

A.)These congressional actions are all just about drones and near-peer technology

B.)Incidents with pilots are very rare, and this is issue is blown up out of proportion.

@TruthofTerAvaya @MickWest @MiddleOfMayhem Thatâ□□s what I meant. No active pilots can speak out to the media without approval. The Nimitz, Roosevelt and Omaha incidents are all backed up with documentation. Havenâ□□t heard of any of other incidents hitting mainstream, but none of this is just the pilotâ□□s word.

@TruthofTerAvaya @MickWest @MiddleOfMayhem Asking pilots to go on 60 minutes or the NYT and lie seems a bit too conspiratorial to me, but this is why hearings under oath would be useful. We need an environment where lying has major consequences.

DEPUTY SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
1010 DEFENSE PENTAGON
WASHINGTON, DC 20301-1010

JUN 25 2021

MEMORANDUM FOR SENIOR PENTAGON LEADERSHIP
COMMANDERS OF THE COMBATANT COMMANDS
DEFENSE AGENCY AND DOD FIELD ACTIVITY DIRECTORS

SUBJECT: Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Assessments

A recent report from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) highlights the current challenges associated with assessing Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) occurring on or near DoD training ranges and installations. It is critical that the United States maintain operations security and safety at DoD ranges. To this end, it is equally critical that all U.S. military aircrews or government personnel report whenever aircraft or other devices interfere with military training. This includes the observation and reporting of UAPs.

The report also confirmed that the scope of UAP activity expands significantly beyond the purview of the Secretary of the Navy, who heads the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF), and suggested process improvements to ensure timely collection of consistent data on UAP. Consistent with these recommendations and to improve partnership with the ODNI and other non-DoD organizations, I direct the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security to develop a plan to formalize the mission currently performed by the UAPTF. The plan should:

1. Establish procedures to synchronize collection, reporting and analysis on the UAP problem set, and to establish recommendations for securing military test and training ranges.

2. Identify requirements for the establishment and operation of the new activity, to include the organizational alignment, resources and staffing required, as well as any necessary authorities and a timeline for implementation.

3. Be developed in coordination with the Principal Staff Assistants, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretaries of the Military Departments, and the Commanders of the Combatant Commands and with the DNI and other relevant interagency partners.

All members of the Department will utilize these processes to ensure that the UAPTF, or its follow-on activity, has reports of UAP observations within two weeks of an occurrence.

@JasonColavito @BrianDunning I guess this is where we disagree. I donâ□□t see calling for congressional hearings as a lack of haste. The DNI has already stated they will be sending a follow up to congress within 90 days of the prelim report.

@neiltyson there is certainly a chance that some of the reported 143 incidents were the result of glitches. However when 80 cases are from multiple sensors? If youâ□□re talking about chance, the exact same glitch happening on different capabilities at the same time is unlikely.

@JMuzc7 I think itâ□□s potentially a lot of things, but probably more institutional than any kind of hidden effort. Itâ□□s a very hard story to report on. I think most editors probably donâ□□t want journalists to work on it, and many journalists still think thereâ□□s nothing to all this.

2021-07-08T20:49:05+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1413238735139786752

@bradjohansson21 I also don't think it should be ruled out. We don't have the data. But 15 miles is absolutely nothing in designated airspace that big. If that IS the answer, then that's pretty embarrassing for everyone involved, doubly so for the DoD drawing our attention to it.

2021-07-08T20:46:56+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1413238191939743744

@BryanDBender @ScolesSarah We all know that allowing conspiracy theories to fester is not a good idea. It is my hope we see improved transparency from the Pentagon on this. Otherwise, that void will be inevitably filled by wild and dangerous imaginations.

@bradjohansson21 3/ doesn't really solve much of the underlying issue. Which is why the back and forth of these videos always felt a little besides the point to me.

Unless more data is released to the public, we'll never have the certainty needed to make talking about it worthwhile, IMO.

@bradjohansson21 1/Sure. But the DoD specifically said the video "remains unidentified." If they could identify it as a jet, wouldn't they say so? Seems an odd choice of words for an entity that loathes saying "We don't know."

@TheBeatWithAri @neiltyson @AriMelber The report addresses this as a possibility.

However there are a large # of cases that show the same data from â□□multiple sensors.â□□ This would require the exact same flaw in every capability. Iâ□□m not sure @neiltyson read the report before going on? http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E5MFDgQVoAAZx0T.jpg

- Most of the UAP reported probably do represent physical objects given that a majority of UAP were registered across multiple sensors, to include radar, infrared, electro-optical, weapon seekers, and visual observation.

In a limited number of incidents, UAP reportedly appeared to exhibit unusual flight characteristics. These observations could be the result of sensor errors, spoofing, or observer misperception and require additional rigorous analysis.

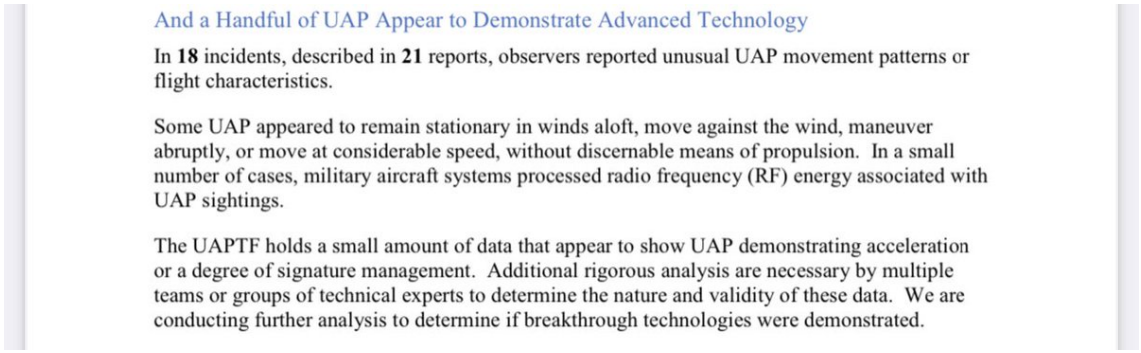
@JasonColavito When the report mandated by congress says they possess a small amount of data that shows fast accelerations and signature management in your protected airspace, wanting to get more data and take this seriously seems pretty reasonable?

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4-6UohUYAk9T-D.jpg



And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

@orel94934645 @Aviation_Intel Iâ□□m not speaking of the Nimitz incident, nor is this article. It actually states how anamolous some of the cases remain to be. Again, there probably isnâ□□t one overall answer here.

@JasonColavito If some of these â□□UFOsâ□□ are proven to actually move in the ways some sensors & eyewitnesses seem to be hinting they do, that is akin to us saying â□□nothing to see hereâ□□ at cases of nuclear propulsion in the 1800s.

@orel94934645 Itâ□□s quite a read, but definitely worth it. @Aviation_Intel has written a truly excellent article. He makes a very, very strong case. This alone should be good enough reason to do what the DNI is doing. Yet even weirder stuff is being seen.

@orel94934645 As a matter of fact I have the belief that thereâ□□s a good chance at least some of these are indeed China & (maybe) Russia. Thereâ□□s no reason all of these things have to be the same answer.

1010 DEFENSE PENTAGON
WASHINGTON, DC 20301-1010

JUN 25 2021

MEMORANDUM FOR SENIOR PENTAGON LEADERSHIP
COMMANDERS OF THE COMBATANT COMMANDS
DEFENSE AGENCY AND DOD FIELD ACTIVITY DIRECTORS

SUBJECT: Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Assessments

A recent report from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) highlights the current challenges associated with assessing Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) occurring on or near DoD training ranges and installations. It is critical that the United States maintain operations security and safety at DoD ranges. To this end, it is equally critical that all U.S. military aircrews or government personnel report whenever aircraft or other devices interfere with military training. This includes the observation and reporting of UAPs.

The report also confirmed that the scope of UAP activity expands significantly beyond the purview of the Secretary of the Navy, who heads the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF), and suggested process improvements to ensure timely collection of consistent data on UAP. Consistent with these recommendations and to improve partnership with the ODNI and other non-DoD organizations, I direct the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security to develop a plan to formalize the mission currently performed by the UAPTF. The plan should:

1. Establish procedures to synchronize collection, reporting and analysis on the UAP problem set, and to establish recommendations for securing military test and training ranges.

2. Identify requirements for the establishment and operation of the new activity, to include the organizational alignment, resources and staffing required, as well as any necessary authorities and a timeline for implementation.

3. Be developed in coordination with the Principal Staff Assistants, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretaries of the Military Departments, and the Commanders of the Combatant Commands and with the DNI and other relevant interagency partners.

All members of the Department will utilize these processes to ensure that the UAPTF, or its follow-on activity, has reports of UAP observations within two weeks of an occurrence.

6/UAPTF is working to receive more data from the USAF and FAA.

This is a doozy:

"The USAF began a six-month pilot program in Nov 2020 to collect in the most likely areas to encounter UAP and is evaluating how to normalize future collection, reporting, and analysis..."

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4wfW_9VIAUEy-P.png

The majority of UAP data is from U.S. Navy reporting, but efforts are underway to standardize incident reporting across U.S. military services and other government agencies to ensure all relevant data is captured with respect to particular incidents and any U.S. activities that might be relevant. The UAPTF is currently working to acquire additional reporting, including from the U.S. Air Force (USAF), and has begun receiving data from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

- Although USAF data collection has been limited historically the USAF began a six-month pilot program in November 2020 to collect in the most likely areas to encounter UAP and is evaluating how to normalize future collection, reporting, and analysis across the entire Air Force.
- The FAA captures data related to UAP during the normal course of managing air traffic operations. The FAA generally ingests this data when pilots and other airspace users report unusual or unexpected events to the FAA's Air Traffic Organization.
- In addition, the FAA continuously monitors its systems for anomalies, generating additional information that may be of use to the UAPTF. The FAA is able to isolate data of interest to the UAPTF and make it available. The FAA has a robust and effective outreach program that can help the UAPTF reach members of the aviation community to highlight the importance of reporting UAP.

5/The report mentions pilots had at least 11 near misses with these objects. That is unacceptable. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4weg7LVEAEtzpa.png

Ongoing Airspace Concerns

When aviators encounter safety hazards, they are required to report these concerns. Depending on the location, volume, and behavior of hazards during incursions on ranges, pilots may cease their tests and/or training and land their aircraft, which has a deterrent effect on reporting.

- The UAPTF has 11 reports of documented instances in which pilots reported near misses with a UAP.

4/ 18 of these incidents showed unusual capabilties. Interestingly, some of them had RF energy associated with them. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4weVpIUcAA3WPn.png

And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

3/A majority of these 144 reports come from THE LAST TWO YEARS due in part thanks to the revamped reporting policies. 80 of them had multiple sources of data (the ones we should be paying attn to) http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4weILYVkAEz0We.png

After carefully considering this information, the UAPTF focused on reports that involved UAP largely witnessed firsthand by military aviators and that were collected from systems we considered to be reliable. These reports describe incidents that occurred between 2004 and 2021, with the majority coming in the last two years as the new reporting mechanism became better known to the military aviation community. We were able to identify one reported UAP with high confidence. In that case, we identified the object as a large, deflating balloon. The others remain unexplained.

- 144 reports originated from USG sources. Of these, 80 reports involved observation with multiple sensors.
    - Most reports described UAP as objects that interrupted pre-planned training or other military activity.

2/The USAF adopted The Navy's UAP reporting policies in 2020. That's news to me at least.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4wd7QrVgAEr12K.png

Limited data and inconsistency in reporting are key challenges to evaluating UAP. No standardized reporting mechanism existed until the Navy established one in March 2019. The Air Force subsequently adopted that mechanism in November 2020, but it remains limited to USG reporting. The UAPTF regularly heard anecdotally during its research about other observations that occurred but which were never captured in formal or informal reporting by those observers.

1/ #ufotiwtter I think this report is a big deal.

IMO, here's a quick highlight reel of key points in the UAPTF Report that initially felt important.

Again, The UAPTF has data from MULTIPLE sensors, not just anecdotal stories.
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4wdmBcVUAIjMcs.jpg

- Most of the UAP reported probably do represent physical objects given that a majority of UAP were registered across multiple sensors, to include radar, infrared, electro-optical, weapon seekers, and visual observation.

52/"Everyone who's paid enough attention to it understands they need to take it seriously."
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rkaVBUcAE5srY.jpg

"Everyone who's paid enough attention to it understands they need to take it seriously," said former deputy defense secretary David Norquist, who set up a task force in 2020 to investigate UAPs. "But once you go beyond that circle, you get people who are understandably resistant because of the tinfoil hat stigma."

For most serious people inside the Pentagon studying the strange incidents, the former officials said, the investigation is not about proving whether or not aliens are visiting Earth and buzzing Navy pilots. Rather, it's about trying to understand what is behind these otherwise unexplainable encounters in US airspace. In particular, some officials are concerned that they might be some kind of next-gen technology deployed by China or Russia.

"If [these objects] had the flag of Russia on the side, we wouldn't be having this conversation," Norquist said. "Every one of these would be reported; everyone would be on top of it."

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rkYuvUUAAW4Iz.png

Erasing the stigma

In August 2020, Norquist publicly announced the formation of a task force to study the matter. The goal, he said, was in part to remove the stigma of pilots talking about strange things they saw. Officials wanted to "start educating our pilots and get them to the point where they understand this is credible enough [that] we really need you to report this and you shouldn't be afraid that you're going to get grief from the department because you said this."

At that point, the former official said, the small task force working the issue understood that the data surrounding these encounters -- including radar and other technical information that theoretically couldn't be spoofed or attributed to pilot misperception -- pointed to a real event.

"You sort of had to get the ritual joke out of the way," Norquist said. "But everyone who dealt with it, when they saw the information understood, it is sufficiently credible [and] we need to find out why."

Government officials in Japan later divulged to the media that they had discussed the topic in a meeting with Esper in Guam. When I asked the former Pentagon official about other foreign governments, he hesitated, then said, “We would not have moved forward without briefing close allies. Citing safety and security concerns, Gradisher vowed to "investigate each and every report."

He said, "We want to get to the bottom of this. We need to determine who's doing it, where it's coming from and what their intent is. We need to try to find ways to prevent it from happening again."

> “There’s a lot of interest on the committee,” said Sen. Mark Warner (D-Va.), who chairs the Intelligence panel and has learned of sightings off the coast of his home state. “When you have this much visual and radar evidence that there is something … we’ve got to get an answer.”

33/Finally, right before this was tweeted, Politico published another article full of quotes from congress Really hammering home that whatever these are, some appear to show a technological leap, and that we just really donâ□□t know what they are.
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rf5WGVoAMSSxW.png

> “There have been questions about the sightings and whether they’re natural phenomena, whether they’re drones, whether they’re weather balloons or vehicles from nation-states or non-state actors spying on our military or spying on U.S. citizens,” said Rep. André Carson (D-Ind.), who chairs a key subpanel on the Intelligence Committee.
>
> “It’s always concerning when some of our foreign adversaries have a competitive technological edge over us,” added Carson, who participated in the briefings.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rf5WGVoAMSSxW.png

> Rubio, whose perch on the Intelligence Committee puts him in a selective group of eight lawmakers privy to the nation's most sensitive intelligence, said he has “no reason to believe” that the report will give credence to theories about extraterrestrials. Instead, he said, the report will detail “advanced technologies that we don’t possess [that] are in our restricted airspace almost on a nightly basis now.”
>
> “How do we not take that seriously?” he added.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rf16sVUAAAZQd.png

> “There’s stuff flying in our airspace and we don’t know who it is and it’s not ours. So we should know who it is, especially if it’s an adversary that’s made a technological leap,” said Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.), the vice chair of the Senate Intelligence Committee.
>
> “We don’t know,” Rubio added. “But how can we have stuff flying over restricted military airspace and not even be curious — not to mention concerned — about who it is and why they’re here?”

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rf0TsVoAId7Ei.png

> Sources familiar with the briefings said the officials walked through the steps the Pentagon is taking to try to identify the unexplained sightings and figure out their source or sources. Pentagon officials also used the briefings to highlight the potentially advanced nature of the technology being used.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rfFx6VgAI4k-z.png

Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Calif.), the committee chairman, implied that the briefing was eye-opening, but also declined to get into specifics ahead of the release of a public report.

“It was an interesting briefing,” he said. “I did learn things that were certainly new to me. But I think I’m going to leave it at that.”

Rep. Andre Carson (D-Ind.), who has been heading efforts on the UFO inquiry, said Americans should expect an eventual public hearing on the report’s findings.

“We’re looking forward to having a public hearing at some point,” he said. “I mean, there’s some national security concerns that we want to take into consideration.”

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rfB_rVoAEvxDr.png

Rep. Mike Quigley (D-Ill.) said that, if anything, the landmark report shows that UFOs are finally being taken seriously.

“The stigma is gone,” he said. “Now that’s as big a change in policy as I’ve witnessed about this issue in my lifetime. So the fact that they are taking this sort of thing seriously for the first time, I think, is important.”

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rfFx6VgAI4k-z.png

“We take the issue of unexplained aerial phenomena seriously to the extent that we’re dealing with the safety and security of US military personnel or the national security interests of the United States, so we want to know what we’re dealing with,” said Rep. Sean Patrick Maloney (D-NY).

“I think it’s important to understand that there are legitimate questions involving the safety and security of our personnel, and in our operations and in our sensitive activities, and we all know that there’s [a] proliferation of technologies out there,” he continued. “We need to understand the space a little bit better.”

Added Rep. Val Demings (D-Fla.), “You know it’s always about our safety and security — our national security is [priority] number one — and so that’s really the area where we really focused on this morning.”

A couple of years ago, as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I was briefed on what those Navy pilots saw, and I have talked to the Navy pilots. They are quite convinced. And these are realistic folks. This isn't some UFO tin-foil hat kind. These are pilots who locked their radar on it. They tracked and then they saw it move so fast that they couldn't believe it. And then they went and tracked it again, locked their radar on it in a new position. So there's some phenomenon that we need to explain.

Why NASA?

NASA is a natural place. Part of NASA's science missions is the search for extraterrestrial life (SETI). When we bring a sample back from Mars ... what we'll be looking at is, are there any examples of fossils that might indicate that there were some kind of life, millions and millions of years ago?

Another example: We just had now a sample return on its way from the asteroid Bennu. In that sample, will we see anything in the elements that we get back that would indicate these are the composite elements that could have formed life?

So this is a serious effort by NASA, and it's been a mission of NASA. And therefore, me asking the top scientist here if he would focus some of his research on what might be this phenomenon that we are seeing — that the military pilots are — it all fits with NASA's mission for extraterrestrial intelligence.

Two sources familiar with the matter tell The Debrief the IG Office's decision to launch the evaluation was prompted by complaints from congressional leadership regarding the DoD's handling of the UAP topic.

While the Senate Select Intelligence Committee is responsible for directing June's highly anticipated Advanced Aerial Threats Report, sources say it was representatives of the Senate Armed Services Committee who prodded the Inspector General Office's recent involvement. The IG Office did not immediately respond to questions by The Debrief regarding the inspiration behind the evaluation.

3/ Gideon Lewis-Krausâ□□ must-read New Yorker article points out the 2017 NYT articleâ□□s biggest impact: By pointing out the idea that the US Government may be interested in UFOsâ□¦ it made the US Government interested in UFOs. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4rWNd4VEAQjDSU.jpg

Kean is unwavering in her belief that she and an insider exposed something formidable, but a former Pentagon official recently suggested that the story was more complicated: the program she disclosed was of little consequence compared with the one she set in motion. Widespread fascination with the idea that the government cared about U.F.O.s had inspired the government at last to care about U.F.O.s.

Within a month of the Times article's publication, the Pentagon's U.A.P. portfolio was reassigned to a civilian intelligence official with a rank equivalent to that of a two-star general. This successor—who did not want to be named, lest U.F.O. nuts swarm his doorstep—had read Kean's book. He channelled the cascade of media interest to argue that, without a process to handle uncategorizable observations, rigid bureaucracies would overlook anything that didn't follow a standard pattern. At the height of the Cold War, the government had worried that the noise of lurid phantasmagoria might drown out signals relevant to national security, or even provide cover for adversarial incursions; now, it seemed, the concern was that valuable intelligence wasn't being reported. (The Nimitz encounter didn't become subject to official investigation until years after the incident, when an errant file landed on the desk of someone who decided that it merited pursuit.) "What we needed," the former Pentagon official said, "was something like the post-9/11 fusion centers, where a D.O.D. guy can talk to an F.B.I. guy and an N.R.O. guy—everything we learned from the 9/11 Commission."

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations. "The U.A.P. issue is being taken very seriously now even compared to where it was two or three years ago," the former Pentagon official said.

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy The irritating framing the NYT did of talking about aliens aside, a majority of the 120+ incidents investigated in the report remain unaccounted for. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E4mRzqBVUAEVoPn.jpg

The report determines that a vast majority of more than 120 incidents over the past two decades did not originate from any American military or other advanced U.S. government technology, the officials said. That determination would appear to eliminate the possibility that Navy pilots who reported seeing unexplained aircraft might have encountered programs the government meant to keep secret.

But that is about the only conclusive finding in the classified intelligence report, the officials said. And while a forthcoming unclassified version, expected to be released to Congress by June 25, will present few other firm conclusions, senior officials briefed on the intelligence conceded that the very ambiguity of the findings meant the government could not definitively rule out theories that the phenomena observed by military pilots might be alien spacecraft.

@bradjohansson21 @zcichy @MickWest Well let me make it very clear not only have I never said they are the same thing, but I donâ□□t personally believe them to be either. Itâ□□d be silly to @bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy Iâ□□m just talking about the extent of the briefings here. This is how this all started.

You seemed to think this was limited to a few ppl, and Iâ□□m just saying that the top levels are being involved. https://twitter.com/bradjohansson21/status/1407809539051823110

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy Youâ□□re losing me here. Iâ□□m not trying to talk about aliens. The report is stating there are a lot of â□□its.â□□ Theyâ□□re not our tech, and they remain unidentified.

2021-06-23T21:33:21+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1407814055226609666

@bradjohansson21 @zcichy @MickWest Considering it all falls under something unidentified, how could it not? What ppl should be asking is why it took that group to make the USG start taking daily sightings of UAPs off the east coast for years seriously. Thatâ□□s why congress is pissed. They were never informed.

@bradjohansson21 @zcichy @MickWest I think maybe where weâ□□re missing each other is I never said it had to be â□□hyper-advancedâ□□ 1000s yrs in our future tech. This could all be near peer tech and still be front page news.

2021-06-23T21:29:08+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1407812993417547780

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy It could all be aliens. It could all be China. My only point is that itâ□□s a big deal, the gov is taking it seriously, and to say otherwise is to not look at the events taking place. No matter the result, apparently itâ□□s not ours. So thereâ□□s been an intelligence issue.

@bradjohansson21 @zcichy @MickWest There have been many classified briefings. The ones youâ□□re talking about w/ Davis were quite a while ago. Yet the briefings continue. Who is giving them isnâ□□t available knowledge to us. But if you think itâ□□s just Davis you are incorrect. All I could figure out was one: https://twitter.com/SicCoP1/status/1382009589571313665 @bradjohansson21 @zcichy @MickWest Those â□□individuals/offices involved in the briefingsâ□□ are some of the highest ranking officials in our gov. If thatâ□□s not big enough then what is?

Where specifically is the line for you where this all becomes a major story regardless of the outcome?

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy Itâ□□s is objectively provable who has been briefed. Iâ□□m making a pretty big update to this thread which should be out later today, but I donâ□□t think one can argue this has been in front of too many to be nothing. If it IS nothing, then thatâ□□s a massive issue. https://twitter.com/SicCoP1/status/1360363911183171584

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @zcichy If those briefings are going to the SecDef, the Joint Chiefs, gang of 8, and DNI? Hell yeah thatâ□□s what Iâ□□d consider hijacking.

Given the leaked report by NYT, we already know that thereâ□□s SOMETHING there, although what it is seems to be unknown.

Regardless of how many started it, itâ□□s now front &center of the mediaâ□□s attn & takes the resources and time of VERY important ppl who work to keep us safe.

If people are into cases of unidentified things in the air, a vast majority are gonna be like this. The FAA is seemingly real interested in this. Donâ□□t see why Mick or ppl on Twitter canâ□□t be.

@MickWest @LuAngeles @InvNightSchool @JonesSmythe @BenHansen00 Yes 100% agreed, Mick. I donâ□□t know why or how my tweet above was made into an argument. I think we all can agree that if the testimony checks out it doesnâ□□t explain whatever these pilots saw. Just what was in the video.

@LuAngeles @InvNightSchool @JonesSmythe @MickWest @BenHansen00 Well yeah. Nobody has said there was. I personally think this is likely our own military. But again, Mickâ□□s explanation of the video falls short of actually explaining what was seen if others outside of this cockpit also saw what was reported.

It would seem the difference btwn us is that Iâ□□m ok with that being a TBD, and you have assumed itâ□□s just plain false until proven otherwise?

@Miles90234527 Unknown at this point. Iâ□□d imagine the evinced would have to be pretty ironclad to say anything like that with confidence. But the interest from congress bodes well for more efforts to collect data that may be a little more public than whatever entities exist deep inside.

The other change reported by Vice is that the group will now divide suspected UFOs into two categories: those that are determined to be "man-made" and those that cannot be determined to be man-made. The language itself may be new or even suggestive, but the government has been publicly identifying plenty of suspected UFOs as human-made objects, like weather balloons, for over 70 years. In the report, this section is just saying the objects identified as human-made will be shifted out of the UFO office's inbox and into someone else's.

All this means the news, as far as UFOs go, may not be that shocking after all. But it is interesting that these offices are all catching up with the times: definitions "shall be updated to include space and undersea, and the scope of the Office shall be inclusive of those additional domains with focus on addressing technology surprise and 'unknown unknowns.'" Here, "technology surprises" refers to sudden advances in applied science or technology, or the use of a known technology in a surprising way. Unknown unknowns are exactly what they sound like—@Lynda_Katerra I'd rather not get too specific, but I've seen a couple of tweets today and in the last few days that, IMO, is close to falling into this category. It's a trend that I don't like seeing.

It's the vast minority but that doesn't mean we shouldn't call it out and speak up.

Calling out sexist bullshit isn't "policing tone."

It's called "calling out bigotry."

We're all on the same team here. Anybody saying someone else's opinion matters less because of gender, sex, orientation, race, etc needs to do better.

@AnnaWhitty2 Be very careful as antidepressants should not be stopped cold turkey. That can make you feel even worse for a time. If you got anti-depressants then you must have seen a psychiatrist? Is there any way to go back to them? Perhaps just a different one could be a solution.

@rogerglassel Iâ□□m curious to see if the new report will emphasize how allegedly advanced some of the tech reported in these incursions is. That is what makes this more interesting than plain old drones. Itâ□□s the possibility of being leapfrogged by adversaries and our IC not knowing.

(3/2) Prob true of everywhere, but I think a lot could be gained by being a little more comfortable in the space of â□□not knowing.â□□ We donâ□□t need to try to come to a conclusion on this current sequence of events yet if the information is lacking.

@paulkimballfilm Not saying that is what will happen , but I wouldnâ□□t take current media coverage (which already is way higher than I expected considering the report isnâ□□t even out yet) as any sign of whatâ□□s to come. Only the actual news will.

@paulkimballfilm @JasonColavito Reid's interest isn't what makes this news, or it'd have been news in 1996. It's the fact that many in Congress and the DoD are suddenly very interested and demanding answers after receiving classified briefings. That understandably raises some eyebrows.

@LaurieDecatur @garrett714 Incorrect on both accounts. First, Mellon is the one who gave the videos to the NYT.
Second, if you look at the FOIA'd Elizondo and DOPSR emails, you will see it was "cleared for open publication." http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E3oJsFOVEAEMhUK.png

> On the same day as Elizondo's follow-up, another email from an individual whose name has been redacted stated, "Just to be clear… we should consider these files to be SECRET//NOFORN until I am able to establish that they are to be considered U//FOUO [for official use only]."
>
> Two weeks later, on August 23, Elizondo sent another follow-up email to DOPSR saying, "If it is easier for you or more streamline, then please consider our request for unrestricted release." The following day, an employee with DOPSR replied, "If the service-level OCA verifies to me (simple one-sentence email is fine) that removing the metadata from the videos makes them UNCLASSIFIED, please feel free to move forward with release." Two other individuals, one from OUSD(I) and the Navy, were CC'd in the email response.
> Through the same FOIA request, Popular Mechanics obtained a copy of the form used to request the release of the videos. Dated August 24, 2017, the form contains a DOPSR stamp, which indicates "Cleared For Open Publication."

@JasonColavito 1/Well, this is the issue that many who care about oversight and transparency are worried about. If this is true, the Gang of 8 wasn't informed. They should have been. Remember Reid attempted to make AATIP have SAP status. He was denied. He tried to get deeper info at Lockheed.

@Altouiz @zcichy @Dogbert34664346 @TheUFOTrail @trelayne @fringequest Depends on what someone perceives as â□□starting.â□□ It all bleeds together. You could argue it started years ago thanks to George Knappâ□□s recc to Reid in â□□96 to check out Bigelowâ□□s NIDS conference on UFOs That got Reid interested. The US government has long been reluctant to disclose any information related to numerous reported sightings of unidentified flying objects encountered by military pilots in restricted airspace. Multiple sources told CNN that for years the Defense Department has tried to avoid committing too many resources to what still amounts to a fringe priority.

But a steady drumbeat of pressure from lawmakers has now forced the Pentagon and the US intelligence community to acknowledge an uncomfortable truth: these encounters represent a potential security threat that simply cannot be explained.

"The sense I have from the briefings I've sat in on is nobody knows what to do about it. There's not a policy prescription and that's why there is such a hesitancy to deal with the issue," Rep. Michael Waltz, a Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, told CNN in a recent interview.

"But it's disturbing either way, you know, is this alien life or do adversaries or someone else have capabilities that far exceed anything we have the ability to understand track or counter? Either way it's really bad," said Waltz.

@stevebozz1 @keithkloor @strategic_doubt I never said every single instance is that. Just that the possibility of any of them could be Russia or China is problematic. At least this is what I took from the article. Am I misreading something?

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E3ZAsYiUYAAuQmL.jpg

Many of the more than 120 incidents examined in the report are from Navy personnel, officials said. The report also examined incidents involving foreign militaries over the last two decades. Intelligence officials believe at least some of the aerial phenomena could have been experimental technology from a rival power, most likely Russia or China.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E3ZAsYiVgAITW1W.jpg

One senior official briefed on the intelligence said without hesitation that U.S. officials knew it was not American technology. He said there was worry among intelligence and military officials that China or Russia could be experimenting with hypersonic technology.

He and other officials spoke on the condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak publicly about the classified findings in the report.

Russia has been investing heavily in hypersonics, believing the technology offers it the ability to evade American missile-defense technology. China has also developed hypersonic weaponry, and included it in military parades. If the phenomena were Chinese or Russian aircraft, officials said, that would suggest the two powers' hypersonic research had far outpaced American military development.

@AdamGorightly @Course_Catalog @TheUFOTrail Lol. You're creating a false stance for a disparate group of people that they don't even have, man. I'm not sure what to really say. The only thing in common with ppl on #ufotwitter is their curiosity about... UFOs. I'm sure some ppl on the far right love him. Most don't.

The report concedes that much about the observed phenomena remains difficult to explain, including their acceleration, as well as ability to change direction and submerge. One possible explanation — that the phenomena could be weather balloons or other research balloons — does not hold up in all cases, the officials said, because of changes in wind speed at the times of some of the interactions.

WASHINGTON — American intelligence officials have found no evidence that aerial phenomena witnessed by Navy pilots in recent years are alien spacecraft, but they still cannot explain the unusual movements that have mystified scientists and the military, according to senior administration officials briefed on the findings of a highly anticipated government report.

The report determines that a vast majority of more than 120 incidents over the past two decades did not originate from any American military or other advanced U.S. government technology, the officials said. That determination would appear to eliminate the possibility that Navy pilots who reported seeing unexplained aircraft might have encountered programs the government meant to keep secret.

But that is about the only conclusive finding in the classified intelligence report, the officials

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E3P3geZVUAQjmw7.jpg

One senior official briefed on the intelligence said without hesitation that U.S. officials knew it was not American technology. He said there was worry among intelligence and military officials that China or Russia could be experimenting with hypersonic technology.

> “Despite cost overruns and ongoing delays, there has never been a serious political threat to the SLS from Congress or the White House,” Dreier noted. “This is independent of whether Democrats or Republicans are in control.”
>
> It also has helped that the SLS program is stationed at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., the home state of Shelby, the longtime chairman of the appropriations committee. The program has created about 13,000 jobs and pumped $2.4 billion into the state’s economy, and he has vigorously defended the program.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FbQYzPMaUAM4XkF.jpg

Especially in 2019, when Bridenstine floated the idea of sidelining the rocket. At the time, Shelby released a statement saying: “While I agree that the delay in the SLS launch schedule is unacceptable, I firmly believe that SLS should launch the Orion.”

Privately, his aides angrily chastised NASA officials.

The next day, Bridenstine reiterated his support for the SLS program in a blog post, saying the agency is “committed to building and flying SLS,” while NASA officials realized the technical challenges of switching rockets midstream.

Since then, however, Shelby announced he would retire at the end of this year, leaving the SLS without one of its most ardent supporters.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FbQYzPNagAAfg5K.jpg

All of which has led to a chorus of protest from the rocket's critics, who deride it as the "Senate Launch System," saying it does more to create jobs in key congressional districts than open new frontiers of exploration.

That's in large part because construction of the rocket and the Orion spacecraft is spread out so that every state has jobs connected to the program. In all, the SLS supports about 25,000 jobs nationwide, with a total economic impact of $4.7 billion, according to NASA.

In addition to primary contractor Boeing, key contractors are some of the most powerful, and influential, in Washington: Aerojet Rocketdyne, Northrop Grumman and the United Launch Alliance, a joint venture of Lockheed Martin and Boeing.

In his analysis, Dreier noted that every single year since the program began in 2012, the SLS has received additional funding from Congress above what NASA had requested. In all, the SLS has received an additional $335 million, or 22 percent above NASA's requests, on average per year.

@MickWest Were these things captured by both trackers? If so, a close insect isnâ□□t an option, them being 120km away from each other. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FbMrIKoUIAA11GF.jpg

OBSERVATIONS AND DATA PROCESSING

For UAP observations, we used two meteor stations installed in Kyiv and in the Vinarivka village in the south of the Kyiv region. The distance between stations is 120 km. The stations are equipped with ASI 178 MC and ASI 294 Pro CCD cameras, and Computar lenses with a focal length of 6 mm. The SharpCap 4.0 program was used for data recording. Observations of objects were carried out in the daytime sky. The brightness of the sky, depending on the state of the atmosphere and the distance from the Sun, ranges from minus 3 to minus 5 stellar magnitudes per square arc minute. We have developed a special observation technique, taking into account the high speeds of the observed objects. The exposure time was chosen so that the image of the object did not shift significantly during exposure. The frame rate was chosen to take into account the speed of the object and the field of view of the camera. In practice, the exposure time was less than 1 ms, and the frame rate was no less than 50 Hz. Frames were recorded in the .ser format with 14 and 16 bits. Violation of these conditions leads to the fact that objects will not be registered during observations. To determine the coordinates of objects, the cameras were installed in the direction of the zenith or the Moon.

@TheUFOTrail @zcichy It may not specifically be a DoD problem, but Iâ□□d argue itâ□□s in the DoDâ□□s best interest. Iâ□□m afraid of seeing a narrative war all over again between these Q believers and whatever information may be dripping out the Pentagon over the years.

@MadScientistPod @MiddleOfMayhem @JasonColavito Youâ□□re skipping over a massive part: their support of the stigma. How many careers have been ruined because service members and pilots reported something they actually saw? This. The Pentagonâ□□s response to all of this is also fanning the flames of conspiracy. Long-term, I think if this course is not corrected, we will look back and see a major missed opportunity. When framed as unidentified objects are consistently breaching our protected airspace and potentially putting our service members in danger? It has some more urgency. Pilots almost crashed into one in 2014.

2/Adversarial drone, ET/UT, some advanced bionic seagull, no matter what it is, this clearly makes the case we better get to the bottom of it. Our major warfighting assets, and more importantly our service members, are being put in potential danger and that is unacceptable.

1/I'm no radar expert, but if @JeremyCorbell's latest actually shows what we think it does, IMO it is the biggest video in the modern history of this topic. How can you deny this isn't an issue to take seriously when the data shows our carriers are being swarmed?

@Dogbert34664346 Yeah, exactly. This is the story. This is where our journalist's attention should be. Congress was illegally being kept out of the loop. People were not doing their jobs at the expense of our service member's potential safety. All because "UFOs" are an inconvenient topic.

@keithkloor What I find the most eyebrow-raising and curious is that the DoD IG has started an evaluation into the topic and how the DoD has handled it. The breadth is impressive, and the IG carries a big stick.

Yet next to no one is talking about it.

If theyâ□□re reporting on the incursions and the briefings officials receive, the connections in your article are certainly worth noting, but also not really the story.

@Facelessbureau1 @AFSUnidentified Unfortunately context keeps getting utterly lost. Too many will keep accepting possible prosaic explanations until more compelling data is released. 2021-05-22T16:58:07+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1396148380296957955

@blackvaultcom Also says AATIP was shut down after it was defunded in 2012. That also wasnâ□□t the case, although maybe this is annoying semantics? Since it didnâ□□t have a budget and was bootstrapped by Elizondo & a collection of others, maybe they continued to call it AATIP, but Pentagon wonâ□□t.

2021-05-22T16:55:27+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1396147710453903362

@blackvaultcom A few things jump out at in this release. The number one most glaring being the assertion that the UAPTF wasnâ□□t created until the DoD statement on Aug 4th. The SSCI language clearly mentioned the UAPTF in black and white. That was, what, late June? So that is clearly incorrect. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E2Ac8VmUUAERXaG.jpg

AATIP vs. UAP Task Force (UAPTF)

The UAPTF is not a continuation of AATIP. Since the majority of reporting about UAP observations in recent years came from naval aviators, the Department of the Navy had been leading assessments of UAP incursions into DOD training ranges and designated airspace since approximately 2018. Beginning in 2019, DOD undertook efforts to formalize the good work done by the Navy for DOD. Former Deputy Secretary Norquist approved the establishment of the UAPTF on Aug. 4, 2020.

Now, the key part out of the above, is this:

"In developing the reports and exploring how to create a 'center of expertise,' the contract allowed for research drawn from a wide variety of sources, including reports of UAPs. However, the examination of UAP observations was not the purpose of AATIP."

@rogerglassel @ResearchUap Hence the push for more resources and a permanent clearinghouse where data can be funneled and analyzed. Consistent incursions into our protected airspace is a problem & should be met with an equal level of action in order to get to the bottom of it.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1395499299077693441

@rogerglassel I feel like so many conversations are about the likelihood of this or that, whilst ignoring the things and incursions in front of us. A broader effort to collect more data would be far more productive.

OF: Senator Gillibrand
SG: Yes
OF: I want to thank you on behalf of so many of my friends and colleagues for your UAP reform support.
SG: Oh yes yes yes!
OF: I have some questions
SG: Yes

OF: When can we expect a public hearing regarding UFOs and UAP specifically with these reforms in place?

SG: Ok so I'm supposed to get a report in the next, I think, month or two, they briefed our staff but it wasn't very significant, not a lot of information. They're building the office right now and they understand what the mission is. So, I met the guy who is in charge of the office he understands he is supposed to work with the private sector and all of the people who have the all of data and information. He is also asked to go back and look at all of the archival data, he has not been able to get access to it. As you can imagine it is probably siloed in all sorts of places. So his job is to try to get access to all of it and if he can't I said just go forward if you can't get the historic stuff get what's in the private sector, get the private sector data like FAA data, correlate it, investigate all the other things that are current and just create a state of the art office. And he's committed and they're taking it seriously and they're not going to hide it because there are so many of us now on the intel committee and armed services that we're going to stand by the service members who documented this stuff. They have video they have radar they have heat sensors they have everything.

OF: Materials

SG: They have it! So I'm not going to let it go, I'm 100% committed and if you have information and want to help me, why don't I get your card and we'll collaborate.

OF: Can I interview you I'm trying to do a public affairs show about this.

In all seriousness, the DoD claims to not know what these things are, and that should be enough to investigate further.

@AFSUnidentified Maybe this is an unpopular opinion, but I actually think this is great. This is what Comedy Central does (Itâ□□s a major cable network to anyone not living in the US). If anything, this is a pretty incredible indicator of how big this story has gotten.

@ScolesSarah @ThanosAlpha Indeed. A DoD IG complaint has actually been filed by Elizondo as it IS a very odd discrepancy. @LtTimMcMillan has been pretty vocal on just how odd and out of character the PAO situation has been on this topic in comparison to others. Hopefully more clarity is incoming.

1/A few nuggets from 60 min that are nice to have from a source like this. Numbered in this thread:

1. Looks like AATIP was most definitely an informal boot strapped portfolio after funding was lost. However, not just Elizondo, but a melange of serious officials AND SCIENTISTS

"Narrator: After receiving classified briefings on UAPs, Senator Marco Rubio called for a detailed analysis..."

This above seems to run counter to these briefings being prosaic and boring. Why would the chair (at the time) of the SSCI call for more details?

"Mellon: So, it's not us. That's one thing we know.

Whitaker: We know that?

Mr. @SethShostak you said today on @CBSSunday that â□□if UFOs are around, they donâ□□t do much.â□□

Would you not consider consistently breaching protected airspace for years where our pilots train enough?

This stigma is causing us to ignore potential nat sec issues.

@Pogue @CBSSunday Mr Pogue, this segment was framed, as was made apparent by Shostakâ□□s prominent role in it, around the ETH (which has no public hard facts to back it up) instead of the very real and verifiable nat sec issue of consistent incursions by UAPs in our protected airspace. A shame.

Where we part ways is that he sees the non-interest as confirmation that it's not true, while I see it as a dereliction of journalistic duties.

2021-05-14T05:31:34+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1393076498966351879

@MickWest What available evidence is there? Personal accounts say there was radar data backing up these fantastical claims. Iâ□□ve never heard anything about briefings on only prosaic incidents.

The only thing Iâ□□m arguing is to be wary of being so certain w no evidence of any kind.

Nor does it explain why any of them would say thereâ□□s things showing technological capabilities beyond our own.

What classified evidence r they seeing?

This is a question for Elizondo or the UAPTF. But you have multiple ppl saying the data exists and it is compelling, so to make any judgment is to do so w/ a zero amount of actual information.

@JohnELTenney @interloc15 I guess this is where we disagree. Pieces in The New Yorker, NYT, 60 min, Politico, WaPo. @UFOmabz 1/ Maybe. But isn't that nat sec news worth reporting on?
Also, multiple things point to that not solely being the case. Widely circulated intel reports talk about technologies exhibiting tech so advanced that "non-human" is listed as a possibility.

@UFOmabz As opposed to the counterargument?

I'd argue that these briefings should be more than enough evidence to get nat sec journalists involved. I'm not claiming these briefings are evidence of any specifics on what UAPs are, but it IS evidence the USG takes the issue seriously.

3/It seems to me that if this is all bullshit, then that means that those sworn to protect us are just batshit crazy? That seems worth digging into just as much as the possibility that non-human craft are invading our airspace.

Is there a middle ground I am missing here?

https://twitter.com/_/status/1392938630021193729

2/These briefings have unequivocally happened as there is more than enough documented evidence for them. If the argument is that these lawmakers and military officials are being fed nonsense intel at these briefings, then I would say that's a pretty big deal and a huge story, no?

@hollywoodufos Have you read this part of Rogowayâ□□s massive article? Iâ□□m not so sure the ability to do this much longer will even be possible:

Also I think you meant to tag @jamescfox ;) http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1Jee1XUUAI4XaZ.jpg

In addition, Navy and Air Force fighters will soon be flying with advanced infrared search and track pods daily, giving them a passive form of long-range detection and yet another sensor to bring to bear on low radar cross-section UAP contacts. You can read about how this technology could have a major impact when it comes to detecting and tracking UAP targets in this past post of ours.

USAF

> An F-15C equipped with a Legion pod that carries an advanced IRST.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1Jee1XVgAAhcM2.jpg

I could go on and on here. The bottom line is that a lot more people running military sensor systems will be able to detect hard-to-spot targets in the very near future. This will drastically increase the data set on anomalous events and will make many more people aware of this unique problem, which could make it much harder to keep under wraps.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1Jee1XUUAI4XaZ.jpg

The Air Force is building out new sensing layers in space, especially ones that can detect and track hypersonic missiles careening through the atmosphere at extreme speeds. These new remote sensing layers will be able to see and track things we've never seen or tracked consistently before. The massive Long Range Discrimination Radar in Clear, Alaska, will provide radar data of an unprecedented fidelity over a huge area—it's literally capable of reliably verifying ballistic missile countermeasures and decoys from reentry vehicles. U.S. Space Force is contracting out an array of telescopes to optically track objects in orbit and to detect suspicious changes in those objects' activity. On top of all this, new artificial intelligence (AI) enabled software will make automatically detecting and tracking strange targets on all types of sensors easier than ever before.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1Jee1XUUAA0hKl.jpg

The truth of the matter is that, in addition to drone swarms and balloons, if something more exotic is truly out there, it will likely be detected much more frequently in the very near future than it has in the past. In fact, the establishment of the fully supported fusion cell I describe may not end up being a choice due to the changes that are about to occur in sensor technology.

Just as we reported on a big revolution in radar and networking technology that allowed these objects to be discovered more frequently by fighter aircraft and other platforms starting roughly a decade or so ago, an even bigger one is just about to come to pass. Far more sensitive and capable radars will soon equip America's new and potentially even some of its older warships. The U.S. Army is revitalizing its surface-to-air sensor systems with similar radars that are vastly superior to their progenitors, including gallium nitride-based AESA arrays.

Anyone who thinks that itâ□□s possible for this â□□UAP problemâ□□ to just completely go away again needs to re read this part of @Aviation_Intelâ□□s epic piece:

#endUAPsecrecy http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1ESS5OUYAEQRr0.jpg

I could go on and on here. The bottom line is that a lot more people running military sensor systems will be able to detect hard-to-spot targets in the very near future. This will drastically increase the data set on anomalous events and will make many more people aware of this unique problem, which could make it much harder to keep under wraps.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1ESS5OUYAEQRr0.jpg

The truth of the matter is that, in addition to drone swarms and balloons, if something more exotic is truly out there, it will likely be detected much more frequently in the very near future than it has in the past. In fact, the establishment of the fully supported fusion cell I describe may not end up being a choice due to the changes that are about to occur in sensor technology.

Just as we reported on a big revolution in radar and networking technology that allowed these objects to be discovered more frequently by fighter aircraft and other platforms starting roughly a decade or so ago, an even bigger one is just about to come to pass. Far more sensitive and capable radars will soon equip America's new and potentially even some of its older warships. The U.S. Army is revitalizing its surface-to-air sensor systems with similar radars that are vastly superior to their progenitors, including gallium nitride-based AESA arrays.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1ESS4mVcAM-qLT.jpg

The Air Force is building out new sensing layers in space, especially ones that can detect and track hypersonic missiles careening through the atmosphere at extreme speeds. These new remote sensing layers will be able to see and track things we've never seen or tracked consistently before. The massive Long Range Discrimination Radar in Clear, Alaska, will provide radar data of an unprecedented fidelity over a huge area—it's literally capable of reliably verifying ballistic missile countermeasures and decoys from reentry vehicles. U.S. Space Force is contracting out an array of telescopes to optically track objects in orbit and to detect suspicious changes in those objects' activity. On top of all this, new artificial intelligence (AI) enabled software will make automatically detecting and tracking strange targets on all types of sensors easier than ever before.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E1ESS5EUUAAymyl.jpg

In addition, Navy and Air Force fighters will soon be flying with advanced infrared search and track pods daily, giving them a passive form of long-range detection and yet another sensor to bring to bear on low radar cross-section UAP contacts. You can read about how this technology could have a major impact when it comes to detecting and tracking UAP targets in this past post of ours.

@AdamGorightly @TheUFOTrail @paulkimballfilm Iâ□□d rather be a naive sucker who ends up being wrong â□□this time,â□□ than a cynic who believes change will never come. More transparency is feasible.

I think as long as weâ□□re grounded in reality, change to an extent is inevitable:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0oMfa4VIAQgk1O.jpg

I could go on and on here. The bottom line is that a lot more people running military sensor systems will be able to detect hard-to-spot targets in the very near future. This will drastically increase the data set on anomalous events and will make many more people aware of this unique problem, which could make it much harder to keep under wraps.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0oMfa4VIAQgk1O.jpg

The Air Force is building out new sensing layers in space, especially ones that can detect and track hypersonic missiles careening through the atmosphere at extreme speeds. These new remote sensing layers will be able to see and track things we've never seen or tracked consistently before. The massive Long Range Discrimination Radar in Clear, Alaska, will provide radar data of an unprecedented fidelity over a huge area—it's literally capable of reliably verifying ballistic missile countermeasures and decoys from reentry vehicles. U.S. Space Force is contracting out an array of telescopes to optically track objects in orbit and to detect suspicious changes in those objects' activity. On top of all this, new artificial intelligence (AI) enabled software will make automatically detecting and tracking strange targets on all types of sensors easier than ever before.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0oMfa7VkAAFadw.jpg

In addition, Navy and Air Force fighters will soon be flying with advanced infrared search and track pods daily, giving them a passive form of long-range detection and yet another sensor to bring to bear on low radar cross-section UAP contacts. You can read about how this technology could have a major impact when it comes to detecting and tracking UAP targets in this past post of ours.

> An F-15C equipped with a Legion pod that carries an advanced IRST.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0oMfa4VoAA4Oix.jpg

The truth of the matter is that, in addition to drone swarms and balloons, if something more exotic is truly out there, it will likely be detected much more frequently in the very near future than it has in the past. In fact, the establishment of the fully supported fusion cell I describe may not end up being a choice due to the changes that are about to occur in sensor technology.

Just as we reported on a big revolution in radar and networking technology that allowed these objects to be discovered more frequently by fighter aircraft and other platforms starting roughly a decade or so ago, an even bigger one is just about to come to pass. Far more sensitive and capable radars will soon equip America's new and potentially even some of its older warships. The U.S. Army is revitalizing its surface-to-air sensor systems with similar radars that are vastly superior to their progenitors, including gallium nitride-based AESA arrays.

@kentbye @MadScientistPod @TheUFOTrail @LtTimMcMillan I think it's a great conversation to have in universities, roundtables, summits, and the like. But at the Pentagon?

@MadScientistPod @kentbye @TheUFOTrail @LtTimMcMillan I agree! Which is why your werewolf and portal comment tempted me to respond, lol. @MadScientistPod @TheUFOTrail @LtTimMcMillan I donâ□□t disagree but has the â□□Bigelow teamâ□□ been involved since 2017? You have intel reports circuiting widely, and those all over the USG talking about it. I donâ□□t see where Bigelow even comes into this anymore.

2021-05-05T01:41:24+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1389757085982748673

@MadScientistPod @TheUFOTrail @LtTimMcMillan While the origins do have some â□□quackeryâ□□ as they say, AATIP has been around since late 2000s. I feel that quite a few are focusing on â□□Bigelowâ□□s circleâ□□ as a liability, but not including all thatâ□□s taken place and the data alleged collected since.

2021-05-05T01:29:12+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1389754015617982471

@MadScientistPod @TheUFOTrail @LtTimMcMillan That was BAASS & AAWSAP, not AATIP, right? If the data that multiple people have claimed exists and checks out, I think that is very much going to the focus of their attn.

@ToddRaymondL @droneologists @uncertainvector @StandForBetter For whatever reason he thinks that is the case. But No way heâ□□s still a federal employee if that was him breaking his security oath. Itâ□□s a very real and serious crime.

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia So if the UAPTF comes out and says there is irrefutable data that something anomalous is going on, you're still going to not believe it unless you see the data yourself, correct?

@LtTimMcMillan @calamitymike 1.)Do you think this is a direct result of the recent reporting that not all agencies are being cooperative in giving the UAPTF what they need in order to fulfill the SSCI's request, or is there more at play here?

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia But I haven't seen it being framed that way. That is your own subjective perception that I don't think holds up to inspection. CNN, NBC, NYT, WaPo, Politico, The Hill, The New Yorker, & more are all covering this as a real nat sec issue. I have seen no mention of "space ghosts."

2021-05-04T18:07:20+00:00

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia I don't. But those who have been briefed or privy have said there is. So we should at the very least consider it possible instead of believing it doesn't until more information comes out.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1389641745625882628

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia I agree the origins of all of this are dicey, but if our most sophisticated systems are showing irrefutable data that there's a reality to this problem, I don't see how the origins matter anymore.

2021-05-04T17:59:49+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1389640925693939714

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia Since we have no idea what is in these briefings, it's hard to really give a well-informed opinion of anything beyond the fact that whatever is in them is apparentyl compelling enough to justify further action and investigation.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1389640450898743296

@JasonColavito @Rett94291220 @Debriefmedia And the person giving the briefings I'm assuming helped create said briefings. Those briefings are what have yielded nearly all congressional action so far. So I'd say the briefers and briefings are a super big component of all this.

Perhaps referencing the stonewalling by some to the UAPTF (as reported by Bender at Politico?) Pic below is from recent @Debriefmedia article. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0jrKZSVoAQNECh.jpg

> Two sources familiar with the matter tell The Debrief the IG Office's decision to launch the evaluation was prompted by complaints from congressional leadership regarding the DoD's handling of the UAP topic.

> While the Senate Select Intelligence Committee is responsible for directing June's highly anticipated Advanced Aerial Threats Report, sources say it was representatives of the Senate Armed Services Committee who prodded the Inspector General Office's recent involvement. The IG Office did not immediately respond to questions by The Debrief regarding the inspiration behind the evaluation.

Big difference between listening and 100% believing every word, although most debunkers seem to lose that detail. @JasonColavito @shadowsmagazine Yup :grimacing_face:.

In all seriousness, we just don't know what happened or who told who what. Besides the DIA, I don't think officials didn't start getting involved until AATIP, which had a much more specific scope than the weird paranormal-ness of AAWSAP. @ the end of the day, data wins.

We need answers, not conspiracy theories.

@JasonColavito @shadowsmagazine (2) We can confirm that Mr. Jay Stratton (DISL, ONI NIMITZ), a senior analyst at the Office of Naval Intelligence (DISL = Defense Intelligence Senior Level) gave at least some of these briefings. We don't know exactly who specifically is in the UAPTF, but we do know many briefings of top-level officials occurred: https://twitter.com/SicCoP1/status/1360363911183171584?s=20

@ExoExplorer3 @JasonColavito @shadowsmagazine It's also unclear as to how many know and how much. Nat sec issues generally aren't topics openly talked about which makes all of this so hard to gauge.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1388911675168804864

@ExoExplorer3 @JasonColavito @shadowsmagazine John Brennan and James Woolsey have also said similar things. As for current Democratic lawmakers, they have a very brief window to get a lot done before the midterms. I wouldn't touch this topic right now either. Just my speculation as to why we may have not heard more.

@ExoExplorer3 Ah yes, I remember this. Before this New Yorker article, I believe this was the best proof we had that Esper was indeed briefed by the UAPTF. Many on here said it wasn't enough, so it's good to have another piece of info to add to the body of evidence. https://omnitalkradio.weebly.com/journal/esper-and-kono-discussed-ufos-during-recent-guam-meeting

New evidence of confirmed briefings?

:eyes::eyes::eyes:

While some of these have been confirmed via FOIA, I believe these havenâ□□t if The New Yorkerâ□□s reporting is to be trusted:

â□¢Sec Def Esper

â□¢Some Joint Chiefs

â□¢DNI (obviously)

â□¢Officials in Japan

â□¢â□□Close Alliesâ□□ http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0RrX1yUUAQp5tu.jpg

Elizondo never got to Mattis, but his successor managed to get briefings in front of Mark Esper, the Secretary of Defense, as well as the director of National Intelligence, the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, the Senate Armed Services Committee, and several members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Government officials in Japan later divulged to the media that they had discussed the topic in a meeting with Esper in Guam. When I asked the former Pentagon official about other foreign governments, he hesitated, then said, “We would not have moved forward without briefing close allies. This was bigger than the U.S. government.”

Reading @MiddleOfMayhemâ□□s latest. Goughâ□□s odd specificity in her statement re: assignments w/ Elizondo was exactly what I thought: a disingenuous â□□threading of the needleâ□□ that isnâ□□t necessarily false but certainly not in good faith.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0PNBQ5XsAU4Pdr.jpg

Elizondo also stuck up for himself, bluntly telling The Post, “There are some people in the Pentagon that still don’t like me very much. I think they’re pissed at me for the way I left. They’re now trying to thread the needle, saying, ‘He had no assigned responsibilities with AATIP.’ I had no assigned responsibilities because I was working Gitmo for [the Department of Defense]. These assigned duties [exploring the reality of UFOs] were coming from the legislative branch.”

Insisting that he had plenty of assigned responsibilities in this area, Elizondo added, “There are enough people now in the Pentagon and on the Hill who know exactly who I was and what I did. And, you know, it’s going to hurt [my detractors’] credibility.”

@Deepneuron @Aviation_Intel For some reason I could only post one pic in that tweet. Hereâ□□s the rest: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0Kg4tCVUAMZqRU.jpg

In addition, Navy and Air Force fighters will soon be flying with advanced infrared search and track pods daily, giving them a passive form of long-range detection and yet another sensor to bring to bear on low radar cross-section UAP contacts. You can read about how this technology could have a major impact when it comes to detecting and tracking UAP targets in this past post of ours.

USAF

> An F-15C equipped with a Legion pod that carries an advanced IRST.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0Kg4stUYAgxO5n.jpg

The Air Force is building out new sensing layers in space, especially ones that can detect and track hypersonic missiles careening through the atmosphere at extreme speeds. These new remote sensing layers will be able to see and track things we've never seen or tracked consistently before. The massive Long Range Discrimination Radar in Clear, Alaska, will provide radar data of an unprecedented fidelity over a huge area—it's literally capable of reliably verifying ballistic missile countermeasures and decoys from reentry vehicles. U.S. Space Force is contracting out an array of telescopes to optically track objects in orbit and to detect suspicious changes in those objects' activity. On top of all this, new artificial intelligence (AI) enabled software will make automatically detecting and tracking strange targets on all types of sensors easier than ever before.

@Deepneuron This excerpt from @Aviation_Intelâ□□s big piece also lays out in plain terms why more answers may be inevitable: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/E0KgtNCVEAIe9B6.jpg

The truth of the matter is that, in addition to drone swarms and balloons, if something more exotic is truly out there, it will likely be detected much more frequently in the very near future than it has in the past. In fact, the establishment of the fully supported fusion cell I describe may not end up being a choice due to the changes that are about to occur in sensor technology.

Just as we reported on a big revolution in radar and networking technology that allowed these objects to be discovered more frequently by fighter aircraft and other platforms starting roughly a decade or so ago, an even bigger one is just about to come to pass. Far more sensitive and capable radars will soon equip America's new and potentially even some of its older warships. The U.S. Army is revitalizing its surface-to-air sensor systems with similar radars that are vastly superior to their progenitors, including gallium nitride-based AESA arrays.

@engineeringamy It had nothing to do with this specific community. It has to do with the future efforts of journalists on this topic. Next time they ask Gough about this topic, she now has to respond to their inquiries about. Reidâ□□s letter. Itâ□□s about pushing the PAO for more information.

@engineeringamy I mean sure, thatâ□□d be nice, but I canâ□□t imagine these groups of people care about what some people on Twitter think. Elizondo did go into some more detail of that timeline in @blackvaultcomâ□□s interview. Iâ□□m not following what you mean in your last sentence.

Chris Mellon also replied to SilvaRecord.com:

> "I know Lue was hosting interagency meetings at the Pentagon on the UAP issue and arranging briefings for senior officials in 2017, to include individuals who reported directly to General Mattis.
>
> It was also clear that he was transitioning his UAP responsibility to another individual on the OSD staff as he prepared to leave. I met that individual as well as Navy officials and others whom Lue was working with on the UAP issue at the time. He seemed to be doing everything possible to get the attention of the leadership to warn them of what was occurring off the East coast and elsewhere."

Dr. Hal Puthoff told me:

> “In the media conflicting stories have been circulating as to whether Luis Elizondo was or was not in the position as a manager of the AATIP program for the Undersecretary of Defense for Intelligence (USDI) in the Pentagon. As a Senior Advisor and contractor for the AATIP program I can state unequivocally that Elizondo did fulfill this role as I personally participated in numerous classified meetings in his office and prepared documents to be used in various briefings concerning program development.”

AFAIK For @LueElizondoâ□□s bonafides, we have on the record:
Reid
Mellon Puthoff
Davis
Multiple Nat Sec reporters
2 Pentagon spokesperson statements

On the other side we have:

1 Pentagon spokesperson statement.

Can we be done with this ridiculous argument?

HARRY REID

Senate Majority Leader, 2007-2015
Senate Democratic Leader, 2005-2017

United States Senate, 1987-2017
United States House of Representatives, 1983-1987

April 26, 2021

To whom it may concern:

As the United States Senate Majority Leader, I worked with Republican Senator Ted Stevens of Alaska and Democratic Senator Dan Inouye of Hawaii to secure $22 million of funding for what would become known as the Advanced Aerospace Threat Identification Program (AATIP), an unclassified but unpublicized investigatory effort dedicated to studying Unidentified Aerial Phenomena.

As one of the original sponsors of AATIP, I can state as a matter of record Lue Elizondo's involvement and leadership role in this program. Mr. Elizondo is a former intelligence officer who has spent his career working tirelessly in the shadows on sensitive national security matters, including investigating UAPs as the head of AATIP. He performed these duties admirably.

Sincerely,

HARRY REID

I could go on and on here. The bottom line is that a lot more people running military sensor systems will be able to detect hard-to-spot targets in the very near future. This will drastically increase the data set on anomalous events and will make many more people aware of this unique problem, which could make it much harder to keep under wraps.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/EzNOBO-VEAMYwGE.jpg

In addition, Navy and Air Force fighters will soon be flying with advanced infrared search and track pods daily, giving them a passive form of long-range detection and yet another sensor to bring to bear on low radar cross-section UAP contacts. You can read about how this technology could have a major impact when it comes to detecting and tracking UAP targets in this past post of ours.

> An F-15C equipped with a Legion pod that carries an advanced IRST.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/EzNOBO9UUAc4x26.jpg

The truth of the matter is that, in addition to drone swarms and balloons, if something more exotic is truly out there, it will likely be detected much more frequently in the very near future than it has in the past. In fact, the establishment of the fully supported fusion cell I describe may not end up being a choice due to the changes that are about to occur in sensor technology.

Just as we reported on a big revolution in radar and networking technology that allowed these objects to be discovered more frequently by fighter aircraft and other platforms starting roughly a decade or so ago, an even bigger one is just about to come to pass. Far more sensitive and capable radars will soon equip America's new and potentially even some of its older warships. The U.S. Army is revitalizing its surface-to-air sensor systems with similar radars that are vastly superior to their progenitors, including gallium nitride-based AESA arrays.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/EzNOBO9VkAQNRKl.jpg

The Air Force is building out new sensing layers in space, especially ones that can detect and track hypersonic missiles careening through the atmosphere at extreme speeds. These new remote sensing layers will be able to see and track things we've never seen or tracked consistently before. The massive Long Range Discrimination Radar in Clear, Alaska, will provide radar data of an unprecedented fidelity over a huge area—it's literally capable of reliably verifying ballistic missile countermeasures and decoys from reentry vehicles. U.S. Space Force is contracting out an array of telescopes to optically track objects in orbit and to detect suspicious changes in those objects' activity. On top of all this, new artificial intelligence (AI) enabled software will make automatically detecting and tracking strange targets on all types of sensors easier than ever before.

@CxScotland @IGN Iâ□□ve seen it. Doesnâ□□t address the issue: Our leadership is getting classified briefings on this topic. Theyâ□□re saying itâ□□s a serious issue. And itâ□□s not ours. It also makes judgments on FLIR videos but ignores all the data the DoD also has and yet still couldnâ□□t identify.

@PredatoryPanic While possible, this would also severely damage the credibility of our military. This wasn't just confirmed to be taken by the Navy, but actively used by the UAPTF in their investigations. Unless the UAPTF used it to say "This looks like a UFO, but it's not."

Either this is an unknown entity that needs serious study or the current UAPTF and DoD analysts @TheUFOTrail @Al_Cadogan @LueElizondo @ChristopherKMe4 @GadiNBC So I just donâ□□t track the competence criticism when theyâ□□ve gotten more done in the USG than in 60 years. Itâ□□s not perfect, and the messaging from TTSA was awful, but you canâ□□t argue w the results so far.

2021-04-17T00:14:33+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1383212247715962881

@TheUFOTrail @Al_Cadogan @LueElizondo @ChristopherKMe4 @GadiNBC I agree TTSA acted irresponsibly. But it is thanks to Mellon and Elizondo that we may potentially finally get an answer to that question. We are close to having a clearinghouse dedicated to it. If it ends up being created, we have their work to thank.

@Al_Cadogan @TheUFOTrail @LueElizondo @ChristopherKMe4 @GadiNBC Any changes came from a decision from the DoD. Mellon and Elizondo just used relationships and shared information. So it sounds like @TheUFOTrail means the DoD and Senateâ□□s competence is in question?

Most of the action on the USG level (reporting policies, UAPTF) has occurred because of those 2. Doesnâ□□t mean anyone should worship them. We then got clarification from pilot witnesses on key claims about what they and their squadron mates had experienced before pursuing what was an inconvenient hypothesis for many—that at least some of what these aircrews and vessels were encountering were not an exotic unexplained phenomenon at all, but were in fact adversary drones and lighter-than-air platforms (balloons) meant to stimulate America's most capable air defense systems and collect extremely high-quality electronic intelligence data on them. And this is critical data, incidentally, that is very hard to reliably obtain otherwise.

@fringequest @blackvaultcom @LuAngeles I agree. However, she is a bit irregular as a PAO though given her past work, and being the go-to person whenever anything is tangentially related to UAP.

Donâ□□t forget what Tyler Rogoway had to say about his experience as a journalist; http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Fa5jlT_VEAA1c7Y.jpg Simply put, my experience with Susan Gough has been the worst I have had with any of the Defense Department's public affairs personnel, ever. What has transpired, or more accurately what hasn't transpired, over the last six months leaves me with no confidence or trust in this official representing the DoD on the issue. This is not personal in any way. She may be a wonderful person, but her behavior has been a clear example of everything the Pentagon's media operations should not be and it certainly is not due to a lack of training or experience. Her resume is impressive and may even be concerning to some who are seeking some morsel of truth regarding this bizarre and historically tortured issue.

My experience is not unique in any way. Others who are working this story have had similar experiences almost to a laughable degree. The reason why so many journalists are interacting with her at all on this issue is that she now holds the entire media/public affairs portfolio on UFOs within the DoD. Sometime shortly before I submitted my questions, the decision was made to funnel every request regarding this issue to her and her alone. The services no longer had control of their own messaging on the matter. Why this decision was made has not been made clear.

@blackvaultcom @LuAngeles I can only speculate. But he did acknowledge to Elizondo he knew it was wrong, or at the very least said he was not happy with how they were handling it.

@LuAngeles @blackvaultcom Iâ□□m for it. That is left to the realm of journalists and great days like TheBigPhoneHome asking Congress for increased transparency from the DoD.

@TheUFOTrail @l3athal101 @mesolithicguy @TheUfoJoe @dave_beaty @rogerglassel The Chief of Naval operations has mentioned the Kidd incidents remain unidentified and Rubio has said our IC doesnâ□□t know what it is. Thatâ□□s certainly more than just the TTSA. Why would a UAPTF even exist if the USG knew what these were?

OLA is responding to interest from staff members of both chambers of Congress, led by the national security advisors to Senators McConnell (majority leader) and Schumer (minority leader) and will also likely include House staff, as well as staff from the Armed Services Committees. With N2N6 concurrence, Mr. Jay Stratton (DISL, ONI NIMITZ) will brief Congressional staff in a classified session on Tues 7 May on the Navy's efforts in this area.

@Lynda_Katerra @dave_beaty @g_knapp @LtTimMcMillan @Aviation_Intel Ah. I didn't realize the HAZREP wasn't reported by the pilots. I need to learn more about it.

Well, then that could be the answer. Pilots could be saying they're seeing something, but no report was created by whomever is responsible.

@dave_beaty @g_knapp @LtTimMcMillan @Aviation_Intel It's a great question. How would Knapp know of these sightings since 2014 if there are no NOTAM or HAZREPs filed? Either pilots aren't filing them, they are hidden, or Knapp wasn't told the truth. I'd like to think Knapp corroborated that before publishing. It's all very odd.

@PamelaAdger @Davidlaz As chair (at the time) of the Senate Intelligence Committee, Rubio said exactly what I said above. He is concerned. As is Mark Warner. That committee requested a report the Pentagon is releasing a report late June:

@benjimaan22 This is what I mean from independent verification. Confirming from multiple other sources to make sure what 1 says is true is journalism 101. They claim theyâ□□ve done this. So as long as you believe Knapp and Corbell, if it IS an outright lie, then theyâ□□re also lying to congress.

@blackvaultcom Obviously itâ□□s a crazy and sad news day, but figured youâ□□d want a heads up on this @GadiNBC. A former CIA director telling this story is very eyebrow raising. That makes both Brennan and Woolsey going on the record.Looking forward to seeing what else he says in the video tonight.

@discernment_dr @RealCSharp I agree leaks are only harder now. Thatâ□□s why I think itâ□□s key that they be released on the level (at least legally). Only pressure from the public, journalists, or some massive event can elicit some release.

Sounds like you want the same thing that those pushing for #EndUAPSecrecy want. Answers and more data. Harry Reid and Mellon say the USG has plenty more. The onus is on those behind the UAPTF and our congress to apply pressure.

@zcichy What do they make of the DoDs resistance to give the UAPTF info? Given Mellon's comments about the IC not finding out about the Nimitz Tic-Tac until years later, do they Precisely. Either there is an unfathomable level of negligence in intelligence and dereliction of duty from those higher up in the CoC, some arguably illegal if not dangerous testing, or there have been assessments that havenâ□□t been shared.

@MrHustleMCR @TruthofTerAvaya Which to me is the best argument for opening this topic up. I wonder what else could be learned if all the stovepiping and compartmentalization wasn't so extreme. But then of course comes the counterpoint of it all. How will this knowledge be used?

@Berserk97981716 Itâ□□s exciting in the fact that it could be a great step in the right direction, but itâ□□s only a step. Perhaps some on here mistook that excitement for some bombshell announcement. If the report can help reduce stigma and have more take the issue seriously, itâ□□s a win, IMO.

@ExoExplorer3 @DaveG78237831 @dave_beaty These two excerpts donâ□□t make the case that speed combined w activity length hint at something not commercially available?

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/ExQr-6YUYAEk-0V.jpg

It is unclear why anyone would operate drones near Navy warships in such a brazen manner. Commercially available drones are not commonly capable of flying for such long durations across great distances with speeds in excess of 45 miles an hour. Based on the pooled data available from the deck logs, we estimate the drones traversed at least 100 nautical miles in the July 14th incident.

Furthermore, the drones were able to locate and catch a destroyer traveling at 16 knots in conditions with less than one nautical mile of visibility. Equally baffling, their operators appear to have coordinated at least five to six drones simultaneously. Then there is the question of line-of-sight control, and control methods in general, which make the capabilities described all that much more puzzling.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/ExQr-6YUYAEk-0V.jpg

The log reflects that the drone managed to match the destroyer's speed with the craft moving at 16 knots in order to maintain a hovering position over the ship's helicopter landing pad. To further complicate what was already a complex maneuver, the drone was operating in low visibility conditions (less than a nautical mile) and at night.

Why this ad?

By this point, the encounter had lasted over 90 minutes—significantly longer than what commercially available drones can typically sustain.

@ExoExplorer3 @DaveG78237831 But the Alguita was quickly dismissed as a likely option. If you read @dave_beatyâ□□s 2nd hand eyewitness accounts from the incidents, you may be left a little more unsure. @shuclarke @ExoExplorer3 I myself am not saying it's anything for certain. The fact that it's unknown is why I think it deserves more attention and investigation.

@shuclarke @ExoExplorer3 Social status, yes. As for status in government? I disagree. Their status is the only thing making their comments remotely interesting, as they are privy to briefings with materials that are otherwise classified. But you want to see more before having an opinion, I can dig that.

@shuclarke @ExoExplorer3 I also don't think "disclosure is around the corner." Could we get the USG to currently open up a bit more on the topic? Possibly. I think this impending report is a crossroads of sorts.

@shuclarke @ExoExplorer3 I'm aware of the history. I think there's a very real chance history could repeat itself. That doesn't mean cynicism should allow us to ignore the facts before us. I'm on here on this alt to help raise awareness. Nothing will happen if we all just sit around and say "why bother?"

@MickWest @KeithBasterfie1 Iâ□□m not expecting you to take Puthoffâ□□s word as law. You asked in this thread what Satellite data could mean. Itâ□□s an example. Hereâ□□s another from @Debriefmedia and @LtTimMcMillanâ□□s article today:

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Ew8E0ozVgAISVHe.jpg

"Some of the best evidence acquired has come from measurement and signature intelligence (MASINT), rather than from videos or still images," a source speaking under the condition of anonymity told The Debrief in November.

In a January article co-authored by The Debrief's Tim McMillan and Tom Rogan of the Washington Examiner, authors revealed through multiple surveillance and reconnaissance platforms; intelligence assessments had found the objects being classified as UAP appeared to be intelligently controlled, mechanical devices, capable of performing feats beyond current technological capabilities.

Some of these extreme performances said to have been captured include:

- "Transmedium" capabilities – Meaning capable of operating through the air and underwater.
- The ability to anticipate the responses by those they encounter.
- A propensity to appear with impunity near sites housing thermonuclear weapons.

Also revealed was the claim that amongst the "Five Eyes" intelligence networks – the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand – intelligence intercepts show foreign countries, such as Russia and China, are experiencing the same types of encounters.

4. "or have been picked up by satellite imagery" A very interesting statement indeed. There have long been accounts given of such satellite detected UAP. As long ago as 1988, researcher Jacques Vallee (Forbidden Science: Volume 3) in a diary entry dated 28 June 1988, speaking about Hal Puthoff, wrote:

> "Hal has seen a 2-inch thick file that details UFO observations by infra-red satellites: 'The objects arrive 3,000 miles above the Earth,' he told me. 'The satellites pick them up as they come near the surface and going away the same manner as they came in. Their infra-red signature shows a level of energy 15 times that of an aircraft carrier. But the data is so tightly classified nobody wants to talk about it.' "

@SocialistFT @MickWest @PostDisclosure Is it revolutionary? No. Itâ□□s still a big deal that can be added to the body of evidence. There are those out there who still believe Elizondo is full of it.

@MickWest @PostDisclosure Let me rephrase that tweet I just deleted. You can focus on both. But only one is worth any importance to anyone here. Your tweet above only focused on the benign one. News orgs have been doing this annoying BS forever.

@MickWest @PredatoryPanic @JudgeKowalski @PostDisclosure Itâ□□s not new. But when the same thing is said by multiple people, especially of such high rankings in the classified world, it further substantiates something. It becomes harder to say â□□well, thatâ□□s just what 1 person said.â□□

@MickWest @JudgeKowalski @PostDisclosure While I agree w your assessment of Ratcliffe, that doesnâ□□t change that all intelligence funneled to him. So the DNI is just lying about reports now? Heâ□□s only said what Elizondo has. And what Brennan hinted at.

@MickWest Youâ□□re really burying the lede here. Some producer on Fox News put previously debunked videos in a segment that had the former head of intelligence confirming this is an issue thatâ□□s being looked at. Shouldnâ□□t what Ratcliffe says be the focus? He doesnâ□□t choose what gets shown.

@MickWest @jeffers24511815 @RealCSharp I respect not basing your views off of evidence you canâ□□t see for yourself, but this is the DNI. While I am not a fan of Ratcliffe personally, the guy was literally the head of the intelligence community. He didnâ□□t â□□just hear it.â□□ He was the boss of it. Of it all.

@bradjohansson21 @DavidBWriter But the implied idea that the default position of all UAP reports should be aliens is just poor journalism. Not made any easier by the fact that major media outlets only seem to report this within the frame of it being alien craft.

Their job is to inform and give context.

2022-10-29T14:17:42+00:00

@bradjohansson21 @DavidBWriter We donâ□□t even know if it was the outstanding 143 reports. Article said many older ones still remain unidentified.

@paulsanderson I donâ□□t think heâ□□s seen it. The article just mentions interviews w officials who are familiar with the effort.

I also want to see what the report itself actually says.

2022-10-29T14:05:43+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1586358623071936512

@1911Moose @Teg_OM Totally. Donâ□□t forget though that there could be a collection bias at play. The report also points it out. Most civilians donâ□□t have the advanced radar that was detecting these things. While itâ□□a likely surveillance, we donâ□□t know for a fact that these are only at training ranges @bradjohansson21 Of course! They should be investigating and if the system is working, identifying more incidents. Once its identified, it goes to the proper channels.

Those werenâ□□t my criticisms.

2022-10-29T13:50:32+00:00

@1911Moose @Teg_OM Rogowayâ□□s article is one of my favorite ever and is about a million times better. I basically agree with it. Like it says, lots of these are probably adversaries. However, some remain truly anomalous & unexplainable. It was thoughtful and well researched.

@RiotSeeds @johnbruso @LuAngeles @singularitymike @BSquidding @MiddleOfMayhem @StevenCambian That could ring more true to me. I just have a hard time believing a ton of ppl are involved in some long orchestrated con. I donâ□□t have that much faith in my govâ□□s competence :grinning_face_with_sweat:.

If it is a big con, itâ□□s a pretty bad one, IMO.

2022-10-29T06:25:55+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1586240378595725312

6/ These are exactly the kind of incidents congress does NOT want looked into by the new UAP office.

In fact, they were very explicit about what SHOULD be looked at :backhand_index_pointing_down_light_skin_tone:. The very cases that the article mentions remain unidentified.

Most media continues to fail in this space.:man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:

5/Finally, the entire article goes to absurd lengths to repeat how these arenâ□□t all alien ships & many of them have now ended up identified.

Other than the irritating implication that the default is alien ships, if itâ□□s identified then, yay! Itâ□□s no longer a UAP.

4/AFAIK this is the first Iâ□□ve heard (granted anonymously) from actual gov officials on this being the case. Youâ□□d think maybe Nat sec reporters would talk a bit more about that, but no. In this article itâ□□s â□□errant junk.â□□ Since itâ□□s not aliens, we can move on. :man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:

2022-10-29T06:15:50+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1586240374275612672
3/What blows my mind even further is amidst their persistence to make everything about aliens, they casually admit that Chinese surveillance was what some of these incidents were.

Talk about burying the lede.

2022-10-29T06:15:50+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1586240372606238720
2/The fact that they describe incident reports of unidentified things as â□□extraterrestrial reportsâ□□ really says it all. The editors are so deep in the stigma, the Gray Lady canâ□□t stay remotely objective. May as well play X-Files music.

"Although the Pentagon's recent statement about my current employment at U.S. Space Force is a welcome change from previous efforts to obfuscate my role in the UAP topic, unfortunately, it does not undo the past couple of years of misstatements about my previous and continued service to my country.

“Perhaps this is a new and more transparent trend by DoD public affairs office members but only time will tell.

“On a positive note; however, it has truly been an honor and privilege to work with some of America's finest. The men and women at U.S. Space Force are some of the most capable and patriotic individuals I know and let it be known to all that may ask, they are taking the topic of UAPs very

> In another interview, conducted on August 27, 2020, by Kellie Meyer of Nexstar, Rubio brushed off suggestions by some that the UFOs of concern are actually secret U.S. military projects. "If we knew what they were, we'd find a different way to discuss it and you certainly wouldn't see this sort of demand for more attention to be paid because we'd know the answer," he said.

> Our sources indicate that military and intelligence community analysts are confident that neither Russia nor China has produced the extraordinary flying devices described in the most compelling encounters. Brigadier General Richard Stapp, director of the Pentagon's Special Access Program Central Office (i.e., "black" program HQ), has reportedly told inquisitors that the mysterious objects being encountered by the military were not related to secret U.S. technology. Similar sentiments that this doesn't jive with any type of classified U.S. technology have been shared with us by recently retired Air Force generals, former CIA executives, and "black" program veterans from the storied and shrouded Area 51.

According to Paglen, Fabian said he'd created the patch for him and his colleagues while working in a special access program (SAP) at Peterson Air Force Base, home of the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), the Space Force 21st Space Wing, and U.S Northern Command, in Colorado.

It's unknown which classified project the patch was created for, but Fabian says it was meant as a joke because of the program's extreme secrecy, including employees having to work from a Sensitive Compartmented Information Facility (SCIF).

Based on the image of a chained alien and "Alien Technology Exploitation" reference, we can assume the idea the government might be hoarding recovered alien technology in uber-secrecy, is at minimum, humorously discussed within the classified world.

The words at the bottom: "YltlhoboQo' Ja'" are Klingon for "Don't ask."

@TruthofTerAvaya But I am very much on the fence about some of the things heâ□□s done. For instance, I think Lazar is a fraud, or at the very least parts of his story are. Iâ□□ve tweeted before how I think his involvement in that has always been a major issue to me.

@TruthofTerAvaya This is why Iâ□□m happy to see an interview with him. So rarely do you get to hear him talk about himself or the topic. Gives me a better picture of the man. @TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail I agree with this 100%. We know next to nothing. Which is why I want this topic taken seriously so badly. We may never know even with the best minds on the case, but at least it's better than leadership putting their heads in the sand.

@TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail Agreed. Unpoular opinion here prob, but I think a good amount of experiencer stories just aren't what they seem, even if they truly believe otherwise. As for being trained to lie? Those in intelligence, sure. But Navy Pilots and Radar technicians are trained to lie too?

@MickWest @zcichy @TheUfoJoe I understand your POV, but this is where our stances part ways. I believe if we continually are having incursions of our military airspace and there's the potential the USG isn't taking it seriously because of some stigma, the public has a right to know.

@UfoStudy @Reddit_r_UFO Again I go back to statements from Congress and other IC leaders.

Not only have they referred to videos the public hasnâ□□t seen, but most importantly, data from multiple sensors all corroborating movements that go beyond our current understanding of physics.

@Reddit_r_UFO IMO like most things, the truth often lies somewhere in the middle.

2021-03-07T19:35:24+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368646483294130176

@TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail I agree, truth is objective. Perception is always subjective, and so I always take eyewitness accounts with that grain of salt. Hence why its terrible data. But 80% in the direction towards truth is better than nothing. This is the first I'm hearing about events that day being so

2021-03-07T19:31:48+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368645578624700418

@itsredactedYT It's a great question. Maybe, but it would depend on what it would be. Make it too vague and people could once again argue the military is just talking about identified drones

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368644445583765508

@itsredactedYT A majority of the public still isn't even aware of the term, IMO. I think the benefits far outweigh the cons. The word "UFO" has tainted connotations that can't be easily fixed.

2021-03-07T19:24:39+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368643779406688256

@TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail to label an experiencer as "crazy," but if you do the same to the jet pilot in charge of a 22 million dollar weapons platform? Well, it's a little harder to stick with that without then having to square with the fact that "crazy" people are responsible for these killing machines

---

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368643493455831040

@TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail Also, I think the testimony of experiencers should be taken more seriously. It should at least have a clearinghouse where it can all be recorded and stored as data itself. But people tend to take the words of those in responsible positions of military more seriously. It's easy @TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail But I'm curious why you think their testimony is bullshit? There are absolutely some details that don't line up with each other, but you think it's all a lie?

https://twitter.com/_/status/1368641765079613440

@TruthofTerAvaya @TheUFOTrail Hey friend! It's both. Reliable eyewitness testimony is considered proof in the court of law that can lock ppl behind bars, and IMO is more than enough to warrant further investigation by those in charge. When it comes to data in the world of science? It's near the bottom.

If after talking to witnesses on the Nimitz and Elizondo, Mick still stands by his initial assessment, everyone can stop wasting time trying to debate him and move on. @MickWest @michaelshermer @PostDisclosure I agree there. There are far more possible non-extraordinary explanations than extraordinary. The proximity to multiple testing sites and the object having no radar tracks is a certain cause for concern for the FBI. Especially in airspace travelled by commercial airliners.

2021-02-25T16:23:58+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364974427830513667

@MickWest @michaelshermer @PostDisclosure This is the first thing I replied to waking up though, and I think I misread â□□terrestrialâ□□ as a jet only. That being said just because a â□□UFO accountâ□□ is saying they donâ□□t think itâ□□s necessarily a jet given the evidence, doesnâ□□t mean theyâ□□re saying itâ□□s aliens.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364973391812255745

@MickWest @michaelshermer @PostDisclosure Shermer is making an arbitrary order of requirements. In a scientific publication being peer reviewed? Sure. But for an aerial safety hazard? Those investigating should let data and evidence guide the way. Itâ□□s an odd mystery and we do it a disservice to say itâ□□s â□□jet or aliensâ□□

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364970909753204737

@michaelshermer @MickWest @PostDisclosure 2/ Any cursory look into the history of this would see that this has been a consistent issue. No matter the answer, it warrants investigation until answers can be accounted for, wouldnâ□□t you agree?

@TheUfoJoe Itâ□□s a good question. Donâ□□t know if there is a way for us to ever know. Iâ□□m sure Spotify NDAâ□□s the crap out of anybody going on his show. 2021-02-24T17:10:25+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364623729464991746

@MickWest If this report was just the pilots audio, I would 100% agree with you. But wouldnâ□□t the tower be able to immediately let them know? And the FBI involvement? If it was another plane and deemed a potential safety hazard, wouldnâ□□t it go to the NTSB?

2021-02-24T17:06:52+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364622835650453506

@MickWest 3/ Iâ□□ll also add this. Pilots see other planes while flying every flight. Not saying mistakes canâ□□t happen, but combined with FBI involvement, this explanation seems rather unlikely.

2021-02-24T17:04:21+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364622204046991361

@MickWest 2/ Transponders are a thing. The pilot would have had a major heads up that he was crossing paths with another flight. Finally, the FBI has been confirmed to be investigating. That doesnâ□□t generally happen if they already know what it was.

2021-02-24T17:00:29+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1364621229106204672

@MickWest 1/ While objectively, this is a distinct possibility, there are a few issues here: one being this occurred at a different time than when the pilot radioed to the tower. Secondly, the tower would have easily been able to say, â□□Yes. Flight N738RJ just crossed over you.â□□

@de_varse @bradjohansson21 @GarryPNolan @rosscoulthart @7NewsSpotlight Here it is in the report. Ancillary reporting by NYT and WaPo use stronger language. No evidence these incidents were ours. If they are, the DNI doesnâ□□t know about it.

USG or Industry Developmental Programs: Some UAP observations could be attributable to developments and classified programs by U.S. entities. We were unable to confirm, however, that these systems accounted for any of the UAP reports we collected.

Foreign Adversary Systems: Some UAP may be technologies deployed by China, Russia, another nation, or a non-governmental entity.

@hughespj1 I think the big deal about the Tic Tac isnâ□□t radar evasion. All the others youâ□□ve mentioned (or anything else really) use a traditional combustion engine. If it is ours, weâ□□ve made a technological breakthrough that is truly extraordinary. Like splitting the atom.

Unless more comes to light, I just don't think anything else can be gained. When talking about it to journalists and those in gov, I think 2014/15 incidents are better because of the near miss. It's a safety issue.

Even if the FLIR is that of a plane (I have my doubts, but I agree with Mick that there's not enough evidence to 100% say for sure), it doesn't explain what 4 pilots saw.

> Our sources indicate that military and intelligence community analysts are confident that neither Russia nor China has produced the extraordinary flying devices described in the most compelling encounters. Brigadier General Richard Stapp, director of the Pentagon's Special Access Program Central Office (i.e., "black" program HQ), has reportedly told inquisitors that the mysterious objects being encountered by the military were not related to secret U.S. technology. Similar sentiments that this doesn't jive with any type of classified U.S. technology have been shared with us by recently retired Air Force generals, former CIA executives, and "black" program veterans from the storied and shrouded Area 51.

@keithkloor @TheUFOTrail Reid isnâ□□t â□□pplâ□□. Reid was the most powerful man in the Senate for years. Reid created AATIP. If he created the program and says who headed it, what more needs to be said?

@TheUFOTrail If they arenâ□□t verified to some researcherâ□□s liking, I can respect that. But @keithkloorâ□□s adamance is just the certainty youâ□□re complaining about but in the other direction. If anything there is more evidence to support Elizondoâ□□s claims as true.

@dsmethurst66 @PostDisclosure @MickWest As bizarre and unsettling as it is, the facts do seem to lead that at least some these UAPs are coming from our oceans and large bodies of water. Itâ□□s thoroughly creepy.

@darrenwinters @LtTimMcMillan @AFSUnidentified @SteveBassett @JeremyCorbell Tim doesnâ□□t editorialize, heâ□□s just reporting the facts. But you seem to be putting a lot of words and thoughts into his mouth. Most of what you wrote above is just not true.

@BobMcGwier_N4HY @SkyHub10 I love this! Legitimately some of the most important work being done, then. Data is needed the most. I will follow this closely.

Since the media has decided to go all out w this made up narrative, it would be a great time to make the case to congress to increase and resume funding for NASA, SETI, and NSF grants dedicated to astrobiology, exoplanets and the like. May as well take advantage of increased attn https://twitter.com/shannonmstirone/status/1360941906608357376

@BobMcGwier_N4HY 1/ Along these lines, it's a good question maybe you have ideas on, @BobMcGwier_N4HY: How do you create a reproducible experiment on UAPs? I don't know if we have the public data available yet. Which is the problem. We need more thought leaders in this field advocating for access

@OldEngineer47 @lucio_linae @AstroKatie Ms. Mack is a thought leader in her field, so what she says re: the topic matters. I think @lucio_linae is just making the case that if the government takes this mystery seriously, science should feel it can as well. No one should be saying what these things are, as we donâ□□t know
