Initiate and co-supervise theoretical research projects in collaboration with Prof. Gerald Cleaver (Director of the Early Universe, Cosmology & Strings Theory Group at CASPER) to develop general relativistic faster-than-light propulsion physics via Lorentzian traversable wormholes and warp drives.

Our first theory project is to characterize the spacetime type and its corresponding symmetry properties for selected traversable wormhole and warp drive spacetime metrics; use Wolfram Mathematica to calculate the Carminati and McLenaghan curvature invariants and produce their 3-dimensional plots; and then interpret the physical meaning of the plots.

Our second theory project is to apply the Gauss-Bonnet Theorem to selected warp drive spacetime metrics to determine whether they are a form of dynamical traversable wormhole. And then translate the limit on the topology of the warp drive's spacetime geometry to a limit on how much negative energy is required to create a warp drive spacetime metric.

Last year, defense journalist Tyler Rogoway spoke with several veteran submariners to get their take on D'Antonio's account. While at least one person expressed skepticism about D'Antonio being granted a civilian ride-along, the Navy vets being interviewed almost unanimously acknowledged that unexplained, very high-speed sonar targets are indeed recorded by some of the most sophisticated listening equipment on the planet.

Agreeing to speak only on background, a senior member of the intelligence community whose responsibilities for decades involved underwater surveillance and reconnaissance programs told The Debrief there was validity to claims of extremely fast-moving underwater objects being detected by U.S. military systems.

"On occasion, there are detections made of non-cavitational, extremely fast-moving objects within the ocean." The intelligence official declined to elaborate further, citing the high levels of security classification associated with underwater reconnaissance.

Officials who had read the reports say the UAPTF appears particularly interested in "transmedium vehicles." While this may seem unusual, many accounts exist — some going back centuries — in which people say they have observed unidentifiable craft operating in and out of the water.

@ToddRaymondL @SgtSideBelly @DeptofDefense So, the NDAA is essentially the annual budget for the DoD. Attaching UAP language to it make sense given the need for funds within the DoD, but it also essentially guarantees passage of the bill since we need to pass it every year. The IAA often gets melded into the NDAA as well.

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 Iâ□□d certainly hope so. For how little faith you seemingly have in the committees, looks like you have more in the DoD.

Arenâ□□t many sensors and many witnesses exactly what the Roosevelt incidents are? I swear they better have known that whole time. Because it not? Wow.

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 I don't think it was ignored. But I do think it was pushed to the side. It's an inconvenient problem with other more pressing threats. A former secretary of the Navy said as much.

It certainly hasn't seemingly been approached on an interagency basis.

It started as one. Congress found out thanks to the public conversation, not the DoD. Which is probably why they're pissed.

IMO, if you're going to mandate reporting UAP from pilots & attempt to reduce the stigma, then you talk about it

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 You'll also be happy to hear what Bray said about bringing on board academics: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FYsxdgsUcAACjE6.png

> We also made a concerted effort to assemble subject matter experts from across the Department of Defense and the intelligence community and other US government agencies and departments. We forged partnerships with the research development and acquisition communities, with industry partners and with academic research labs, and we brought many allies and international partners into our discussions on UAP. Additionally, subject matter experts from a wide variety of fields including physics, optics, metallurgy, meteorology, just to name a few have been brought in to expand our understanding in areas where we may not have organic expertise.

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 The IC's purpose is to avoid technical surprise. If adversaries are flying advanced stuff, it is absolutely the business of the DoD. It should also be the domain of scientists. NASA's involvement is great.

Keep in mind the mandated work of AIMSOG/AARO includes scientists.

@Kavkaz229 @JonesSmythe I 100% agree. Not asking anyone to believe whole cloth or take it to the bank. But if you're going to follow this topic, it's folly to simply ignore what our leaders say as well. Hold it into consideration.

If you want hard data yourself, It's going to be years, IMO.

@trelayne Thatâ□□s not necessarily true at all. The range of our sensors is pretty insane. Thereâ□□s no guarantee we got video footage at the same time.

Although if youâ□□re to believe hearsay, w have that too.

Multiple instruments confirming a presence of movements that appear to be beyond our own tech, tech of adversaries, and sometimes beyond our understanding of physics. Heâ□□s pretty clear this is what the instruments are showing. Heâ□□s said it elsewhere as have others.

@InvNightSchool @MrHustleMCR Congress wasnâ□□t asking because of flying saucers. They were asking because they werenâ□□t informed of pilots encountering unidentified things in protected airspace before. They should have been.

2022-07-25T19:57:37+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1551657945955323904

@InvNightSchool @MrHustleMCR We donâ□□t know for sure. My guess is the NYT story made them aware of 2004 and 2015 incidents. Made congress start looking. What they got in response and their actions thereafter have a lot less to do with flying saucers and a lot more to do with National security.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1551657465791406081

@InvNightSchool @RiotSeeds @MrHustleMCR We are literally verbatim being told this. I can understand if people donâ□□t believe them, but these are the exact words being told to the public. There isnâ□□t really wiggle room on that.

2022-07-25T19:21:42+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1551648905766395905

@RiotSeeds @InvNightSchool @MrHustleMCR Itâ□□s not as if Adam Schiff is sitting in front of the sensors.

You can have doubts about our IC, thatâ□□s reasonable. But if our members of congress are being told many of our advanced sensors are picking up technically advanced signatures, youâ□□d rather have them ignore it?

2022-07-25T19:19:41+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1551648399954362368

@InvNightSchool @MrHustleMCR I think the members of congress who are doing something about this arenâ□□t doing so because of the saucer window dressing in the first place.

There are very valid reasons to be engaged and doing something about all of this that have nothing to do with flying saucers.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1551628406520811522

@InvNightSchool @MrHustleMCR What is my argument exactly?

Youâ□□re saying they â□□appearâ□□ to as if thatâ□□s a difference and not a â□□yeah, no duh.â□□ That sensors do.

SCOPE AND ASSUMPTIONS

Scope

This preliminary report is provided by the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) in response to the provision in Senate Report 116-233, accompanying the Intelligence Authorization Act (IAA) for Fiscal Year 2021, that the DNI, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense (SECDEF), is to submit an intelligence assessment of the threat posed by unidentified aerial phenomena (UAP) and the progress the Department of Defense Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF) has made in understanding this threat.

This report provides an overview for policymakers of the challenges associated with characterizing the potential threat posed by UAP while also providing a means to develop relevant processes, policies, technologies, and training for the U.S. military and other U.S. Government (USG) personnel if and when they encounter UAP, so as to enhance the Intelligence Community's (IC) ability to understand the threat. The Director, UAPTF, is the accountable official for ensuring the timely collection and consolidation of data on UAP. The dataset described in this report is currently limited primarily to U.S. Government reporting of incidents occurring from November 2004 to March 2021. Data continues to be collected and analyzed.

ODNI prepared this report for the Congressional Intelligence and Armed Services Committees. UAPTF and the ODNI National Intelligence Manager for Aviation drafted this report, with input from USD(I&S), DIA, FBI, NRO, NGA, NSA, Air Force, Army, Navy, Navy/ONI, DARPA, FAA, NOAA, NGA, ODNI/NIM-Emerging and Disruptive Technology, ODNI/National Counterintelligence and Security Center, and ODNI/National Intelligence Council.

Assumptions

Various forms of sensors that register UAP generally operate correctly and capture enough real data to allow initial assessments, but some UAP may be attributable to sensor anomalies.

Multisensor data appearing to show that is a good start. Hence AARO. Now hopefully there will be a better method of data collection & scientific analysis.

Obvious alternatives like spoofing and sensor errors need to be better ruled out.

@zcichy @TheQuengineer @bradjohansson21 @projecthumanfm For the record, Iâ□□m not surprised some journalists may not be as interested as me in this. Iâ□□m surprised by the disconnect between how congress sees this VS how those who COVER congress see this.

Asked if the Navy had identified the drones that flew near U.S. warships near the Channel Islands off Southern California, Gilday said: “No, we have not.”

“I am aware of those sightings, and as it’s been reported, there have been other sightings by aviators in the air and by other ships not only of the United States, but other nations – and of course other elements within the U.S. joint force,” Gilday said.

“Those findings have been collected and they still are being analyzed," he said.

@DyceGuthrie McMillan reported back in 2020 that a widely disseminated intel report on the topic apparently had that as a very real possibility:backhand_index_pointing_down_light_skin_tone:

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FYVPaaBUsAEiyw8.jpg

Defense and intelligence officials willing to discuss the report and those who only wished to confirm its dissemination all expressed shock that it had been so widely distributed amongst the intelligence community.

"In decades with the [Intelligence Community] I've never seen anything like this," said one intelligence official.

One defense official described the report's distribution as having gone through "normal, non-public, information sharing channels." Other officials who'd seen and read the report either declined to elaborate or indicated the report was distributed on various secure systems. One defense official indicated it was distributed on the DoD's Secret Internet Protocol Router Network (SIPRNet). Two other intelligence officials said they received the information via NSANet (the NSA's official intranet). An additional source said the report was distributed via the CIA's Intelink system.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FYVPaZsVEAANFkP.jpg

According to those willing to discuss the document, the report's most disconcerting aspect was one of the potential explanations provided for what UAP could represent. Sources say a "list" of possible prosaic explanations for these mysterious airborne encounters was provided, however the report expressly stated that the potential for UAP to be "alien" or "non-human" technology was of legitimate consideration.

All sources interviewed by The Debrief confirmed that the task force issued an updated second UAP position report later in the summer of this year. Like the first, officials say this recent intelligence report was very widely distributed and shared amongst the intelligence community.

"It went viral," said one intelligence official who had read the report.

> Officials who read the recent report say it primarily focused on “Unidentified Submersible Phenomena,” or unidentified “transmedium” vehicles capable of operating both underwater and in the air.
>
> The three officials we spoke with said the report suggested the UAP Task Force appears to be concerned that the objects being termed as UAP may be originating from within the world’s oceans. @MickWest The scope of the study is small. Pilot reports may be a part of it, but this study is not trying to analyze or identify anything. Itâ□□s trying to determine what datasets are available for future studies.

https://www.nasa.gov/feature/nasa-announces-unidentified-aerial-phenomena-study-team-members/ http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Ff2FOF6X0AAf9pj.jpg

> The independent study will begin on Monday, Oct. 24. Over the course of nine months, the independent study team will lay the groundwork for future study on the nature of UAPs for NASA and other organizations. To do this, the team will identify how data gathered by civilian government entities, commercial data, and data from other sources can potentially be analyzed to shed light on UAPs. It will then recommend a roadmap for potential UAP data analysis by the agency going forward.
> The study will focus solely on unclassified data. A full report containing the team's findings will be released to the public in mid-2023.

@JasonColavito @ToddRaymondL And yet after said briefings, those in positions of oversight who are actually able to write legislation about said issue did so.

Just because â□□onlyâ□□ 16 senators introduced it doesnâ□□t mean that the integrity of our elections arenâ□□t seen as important or shouldnâ□□t be taken seriously.

Another view through the NIRCam 3.23 micron filter, with Jupiter's rings clearly visible. NASA, ESA, CSA, and B. Holler and J. Stansberry

The new Webb image of Jupiter includes Europa, one of the planet's large moons, which has a liquid water ocean beneath an icy crust. Hubble has spotted what might be plumes of water erupting off the surface of Europa.

To make observations of objects within the solar system, the Webb has to be able to track them as they move relative to much more distant stars. The telescope was designed so that it could track Mars, which moves as fast

@JonesSmythe @RedPandaKoala Except the Cold War was the exact reason the Robertson Panel and USG agreed to encourage efforts to STOP investigating reports. UFO fascination was seen as a bad thing and a potential risk & exploitable. What's happening now is the opposite of what happened then. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FX9v484VUAYCpGU.png

3.The Panel further _concludes_:

a. That the continued emphasis on the reporting of these phenomena does, in these parlous times, result in a threat to the orderly functioning of the protective organs of the body politic.

We cite as examples the clogging of channels of communication by irrelevant reports, the danger of being led by continued false alarms to ignore real indications of hostile action, and the cultivation of a morbid national psychology in which skilful hostile propaganda could induce hysterical behavior and harmful distrust of duty constituted authority.

4. In order most effectively to strengthen the national facilities for the timely recognition and the appropriate handling of true indications of hostile action, and to minimize the concomitant dangers alluded to above, the Panel recommends:

a. That the national security agencies take immediate steps to strip the Unidentified Flying Objects of the special status they have been given and the aura of mystery they have unfortunately acquired;

b. That the national security agencies institute policies on intelligence, training, and public education designed to prepare the material defenses and the morale of the country to recognize most promptly and to react most effectively to true indications of hostile intent or action.

We suggest that these aims may be achieved by an integrated program designed to reassure the public of the total lack of evidence of Inimical forces behind the phenomenon, to train personnel to recognize and reject false indications quickly and effectively, and to strengthen regular channels for the evaluation of and prompt reaction to true indications of hostile measures."[2]

Ok, Thank you for sending this article.

I read it. And I think it is useful information to keep in mind about the current fever of UAP _in the United States_. However, I do keep coming back to the same point again and again, and I don't know how to tell these reporters writing these articles. Please do not be myopic and focus only on the recent UAP events as the flagship events. Do not dismiss the whole UFO history because there may be something nefarious _in these recent_ events. This is not specific to U.S. And not specific to armed forces. As we mentioned in our WaPo article, UFOs are _not_ a such restrictive topic. Physical scientists have studied them and found many to be unexplained. Some of them truly bizarre. I really, REALLY, want people to read Science in Default document and my comments. We cannot forget history as though it never happened.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Fft4JjmWAAA5jtO.png

I was thinking last night (late into night). My Twitter feed is full of ridiculing UFO phenomena. Including some of my colleagues. How can they forget history and so fixated on one thing like navy UAP that is popular now? Either they don't know history, or don't care to know the history to score social points. This is becoming a very polarized subject, with even trained scientists not finding out the historical context and ridiculing. I can only reach a conclusion that they are having a 'group approval' syndrome on Twitter. I am scared, and I am very concerned that I am writing that WaPo article. I might become another Avi Loeb. But somewhere in the back of my mind, there is a feeling that I do not need to be. And that is because I feel the presence of the giants of our field (Carl Sagan, James Mc Donald, Allen Hynek) standing behind me. They have done the work, and they think UFO research is important. I can stand firm on their shoulders. The science is with me. If I find there is no science in it, I will not bother about this topic.

Ok thank you. I am trying to stress less on the Navy videos and more on the general UAP phenomena because it looks some of the Navy videos have some convincing explanations. If we focus on that, the genuine ones (like the Mc Donald's cases) may or will also be categorized as explainable without any thought. It is a sweeping generalization people make. There are two aspects to the Navy videos: the testimonies of the pilots of some really weird UFOs in 2004 (I don't think we have data or videos for that), and 2015/2019 videos which could be explainable. A lot of people (including scientists who dismiss them) combine these two and dismiss them, and others on other side also confuse these events.

Navy videos may have highlighted the UAPs, but the more I look at them, the more I think that they are explainable. I don't understand the intent of releasing or leaking grainy, edited videos that could be explainable that obfuscate genuine UFO cases. This gives ammunition to critics to broad-brush ALL the UFO phenomena. UFOs are a much broader, worldwide phenomena than focusing on these videos. This is the point I think we should highlight.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date on which the Comptroller General completes the compilation and itemization required by subsection (b)(2), the Comptroller General shall submit to Congress a report summarizing the historical record described in such subsection.

(2) RESOURCES.—The report submitted under paragraph (1) shall include citations to the resources relied upon and instructions as to how the resources can be accessed.

(3) FORM.—The report submitted under paragraph (1) shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex as necessary.

Just got off the phone with my representative, @RepAdamSchiff to voice my support for the @RepGallagher & @RepRubenGallego #UAP NDAA amendment. I highly suggest you take a brief moment to do the same NOW and let your voice be heard.

GALLAGHER-GALLEGO UAP NDAA AMENDMENT
CALL SCRIPT AND ADVOCACY GUIDE: MONDAY, JULY 11, 2022

WHAT TO EXPECT:
Your call will likely be answered by an intern or an entry-level Staff Assistant who is there to record your concerns and pass them up the chain to their boss. Typically, they will listen to your concern, tally the number of calls on a specific issue that week, and report to the Representative which issues are gaining traction among their constituents. The staffer should not quiz you or ask follow-up questions, except perhaps to verify that you are a constituent by requesting your zip code. They may ask for your contact information so the Representative can follow-up with a written response a few weeks or months later.

HOW TO CALL YOUR MEMBER OF CONGRESS:
Call the House of Representatives Switchboard at (202) 225-3121 and ask for assistance in being connected to your Member of Congress's office. Alternatively, you can look up your Member of Congress by visiting www.house.gov/representatives/find-your-representative. From there, feel free to use the script below. Keep in mind that the office fields many calls and will politely cut you off after a minute or two. It is best to keep your remarks short and to the point, but feel free to add your own thoughts.

Note: Since Reps. Gallagher and Gallego are proposing this Amendment for the House's version of the NDAA, there is no current need to call your Senators. We will monitor the Senate NDAA language closely and may issue a separate call for that as well. Later, the two versions of the bill will be consolidated/negotiated.

CALL SCRIPT:
Hello, my name is _____ and I'm calling to share my strong support for the Gallagher-Gallego (GUY-YAY-GO) NDAA amendment regarding Unidentified Aerial Phenomena reporting procedures. May I share my views with you to pass along to Representative _____?

PAUSE: At this time, the staffer on the line will likely ask if you are a constituent from their district and will verify this by asking your zip code.

As I'm sure you're aware, the Department of Defense recently acknowledged the presence of unexplained incursions into protected U.S. airspace, including around sensitive military installations. According to the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, UAPs represent both a national security concern and a risk to aviation safety. As such, I believe that federal employees and contractors must be provided with appropriate reporting avenues to share information on UAP encounters and programs.

These reporting avenues must be secure, data must be shared with the appropriate UAP offices, and the individuals providing reports must be protected under federal law. As my Representative, I strongly urge your office to support the Gallagher-Gallego (GUY-YAY-GO) UAP reporting NDAA amendment. I am following this issue closely and will be voting accordingly. Thank you.

AFTER THE CALL:
1. Record your call at https://bit.ly/gallagheramendment. This will help us to track our advocacy efforts.
2. Keep up the pressure! Put simply, elected officials pay attention to the issues their constituents pay attention to. Encourage a friend to make a call, consider writing an op-ed for your local paper about why this issue matters to you, or follow up via social media channels. A sample Tweet is included below:

Twitter: Just got off the phone with @(Insert Rep's handle) to express my strong support for the @RepGallagher/@RepRubenGallego NDAA #UAP reporting amendment. Secure and protected reporting avenues must be established to share information on UAP incidents and programs. Inaction is not an option!

Arguably, the largest proponents of taking UAP seriously atm are Democrats (Gillibrand, Carson, Schiff and Gallego).

Ensuring our nat sec and the safety of our pilots is reasonable. But be wary of any specific politician or influencer trying to harness this newfound interest.

@MHuntington7 @ReconStrange Yes, correct. All I meant was that if this current flap is a convenient coverup for whatever purpose, it still does not address the genuine decades-long history of strange documented cases.

"If we do have what we would call a 'red threat,' one of our traditional enemies that are using some type of perhaps new technology, or hard to identify technology that is out there in our working areas soaking up our waveforms and our radar and our sensor and our comms, watching our tactics on a daily basis, it's a major, major intelligence failure to have these things out there. And because they look slightly different than what our average threat would look like, everyone wants to ignore it. So if we had a Chinese or Russian fighter jet flying out there watching us it would be a major deal. But because it looks slightly different we want to ignore it."

Once again, it is a hard pill to swallow, but, nevertheless, bingo!

https://twitter.com/_/status/1543308762743599104

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @LtTimMcMillan The onus is on Science and Kloor to provide context. IMO, this was intentionally vague to discredit as much as possible. No mention of the vast collection of agencies and entities also involved in writing the report. Nor many specific details on what Taylor even specifically did.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1543302966018314241

@bradjohansson21 @MickWest @LtTimMcMillan This is a level of semantics deep enough that I assure you nobody reading this article or headline not well informed will know. Nor did the article go to any pains to point that out.

Anyone who reads that now thinks Taylor led and is responsible for the USG's efforts on UAP.

@MickWest @LtTimMcMillan Indeed. My main issue with the article is the editorializing and cherry-picking of the information. This was written w/ an agenda rather than to share information. It would be par for the course for some outlets, but it really raised my eyebrows to see it on Science Simply put, the topic of UAP is fascinating to me because itâ□□s a genuine mystery that needs scientific engagement.

An engagement that has otherwise been stymied because of a stigma created out of cold-war era thinking (See Robertson Panel :backhand_index_pointing_down_light_skin_tone:).

4. In order most effectively to strengthen the national facilities for the timely recognition and the appropriate handling of true indications of hostile action, and to minimize the concomitant dangers alluded to above, the Panel recommends:

a. That the national security agencies take immediate steps to strip the Unidentified Flying Objects of the special status they have been given and the aura of mystery they have unfortunately acquired;

Having been CEO for one of America's military branches for almost 8 years – including periods when some of these UAP encounters were going on- Mabus expressed that it was nearly impossible these events were the results of some highly-secret U.S. technology.

"Somebody would have spilled the beans by now, and moreover, I think I would have known if somebody was trying to test some superduper top secret thing on our own folks," said Mabus. "I don't know a single senior person in the Navy, me or anybody in uniform for that matter, who would have said, 'Yeah, that's a good idea.'"

Mabus told me he had been shown imagery that was captured during purported UAP encounters, including incidents that have since come to light, such as the 2004 Nimitz and 2015 Roosevelt encounters. Interestingly, even as the Secretary of the Navy, Mabus says he was never given any satisfactory answers about what it was pilots were encountering.

"I asked what was the explanation [for UAP]. Some people had hypotheses, like it was a glitch in the system or something that didn't make any sense. And yeah, you know, there just was no rational explanation," said Mabus. "I did ask a few questions, but then I never got much of an answer back. Nobody really had any answers to give. The military folks always seemed pretty dismissive."

Many might wonder why the Secretary of the Navy wouldn't have made a bigger deal about these mysterious encounters and demanded someone get to the bottom of it. "You know, I had enough coming in back then as it was. My bandwidth for pushing those sorts of questions was pretty limited," sighed Mabus.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FWddnM7VUAAHSN4.jpg

Mabus explained on occasion there were incidents involving highly trained military observers or sophisticated intelligence and surveillance technologies that were much harder to pin down. "Like these incidents with the U.S. Navy pilots. They are very familiar with everything going on in the area they're operating in and are familiar with the technology. These were very hard to explain."

Given that known events like the 2015 "Roosevelt Encounters" (See Part II: Interlopers Over the Atlantic) occurred while he was in command of the Navy, I asked Mabus could it be likely that some of these mysterious events involved top-secret U.S. technology. "A couple of things. Number one, no," Mabus said with a sincere and hearty laugh. "Number two, do you really think we could keep stuff like that secret?"

The former Navy Secretary conceded he understood why some people might believe the military would test highly-classified technology on their own people.

"The military does not have a good record with those types of things. You know, they let service members be close to atomic tests to see what would happen. They tested psychedelic drugs on people without telling them back in, what was it, the late 40s, early 50s," said Mabus. "That's clearly not a good thing."

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FWddnM8UEAAXEBZ.jpg

In light of this past unscrupulousness, Mabus expressed it was a logical fallacy to assume events like "Operation Plumbob" or "MK Ultra" could be carried out in today's U.S. government. To this point, since the early 1990s, a number of federal laws, oversight measures and formal governance structures have been implemented to prevent rogue, unlawful or immoral activity in even the most highly-classified programs.

Mabus' sentiment was one repeated to me by numerous other U.S. defense and intelligence officials; including former Assistant to the Commander of NORAD and Executive Assistant to the Vice Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Air Force Brigadier General Bruce McClintock. "It is unlikely that the U.S. government would intentionally conduct tests against its own unwitting military assets," McClintock told me in an interview late last year.

As Mabus also points out, in recent examples of when classified activities breach contemporary legal or moral lines, these ventures don't remain secret for very long. With the CIA's infamous "enhanced interrogation techniques," lawmakers had been briefed on the program shortly after it had been approved by George W Bush's White House in 2002. Details of the physical and psychological interrogation techniques being used would slowly begin leaking out to the public within the year.

@KingMilkfart @keithkloor There was a good amount of resistance to those who were wary of Taylorâ□□s involvement. Im showing why.

UAP going mainstream in academia is exactly what IMO this topic needs. Stuff like this works directly against that. Otherwise, it will stay in classified contractor land, and scientists who are interested won't be able to get funding or good journals to publish.

@MikeColangelo @Go_Kick_Rocks88 So, he actually said what's below in an interview with Rojan in 2019:
https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=5664&v=IeyBTChcTe4&feature=emb_title http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FWdBdxvVsAAoD2I.png

There have been crashes, the superpowers on the earth have had their share of crashes and they have recovered the vehicles from their crashes. And so that´s why Jacques Vallée and I agree that even though these things behave like a conscious spiritual psychic energy, they do have an advanced technology, they have hardware, and there's a craft and there's occupants or UFOnauts that he calls them, Jacques Vallée calls them UFOnauts. So, there is [sic] UFOnauts running these craft. Whatever they may be.

So, they have that technology. We do too. And it´s a very super-sensitive topic because it's something that your listeners are probably going to be shocked at. People with need to know access authorization and security clearances involved with that type of work are the only ones that know. The vast majority of the rest of the government really doesn´t know. The right hand doesn´t know what the left hand is doing, firstly because of the stove-piping that is going on in compartmentalized programs.

The crash retrieval program is a very small program. It is not a huge government infrastructure. It is a very poorly funded program. I do know that the program was terminated [in] 1989 for lack of progress in reverse-engineering anything that they had—any of the hardware that they had. And they'll resurrect it maybe every so often—so many years will go by and they'll try it again. And they may still succeed, but the compartmentalization is a killer. Scientists cannot communicate with other scientists to get help. If you are in the crash retrieval program—or any black program for that matter—and you hit a roadblock, you can't just call your best buddy or any expert that you don't know… If your small group of experts is stuck, you are screwed.

@UAPorSAP To add one more thing, I see very few saying what the Tic Tac IS, only what seemed to have occurred that day.

So proposing things without any evidence to point to doesn't seem very fruitful, IMO. Where can anybody go from there?

@UAPorSAP Hypothesizing something prosaic is of course not only reasonable but where most anyone would go. This does not mean though something like a missile is a good guess if it wholly ignores what evidence we have. Missiles being real doesn't automatically make it a good guess.

@MrLawBro It being upsetting to some has no bearing on this. Civil rights and same-sex marriage were and are very upsetting to some. You wouldnâ□□t use that argument there. Why here?

A majority of Americans supported row. Nearly 60% oppose overturning it.

Illinois Congresswoman Says 'Hitler Was Right on One Thing'

Rep. Mary Miller was speaking at a rally in Washington, D.C. when a Twitter user posted video Tuesday showing a portion of her speech

Published January 6, 2021 • Updated on January 6, 2021 at 2:47 pm

Gov. J.B. Pritzker on Wednesday condemned comments by Rep. Mary Miller, who said during a rally that Adolf Hitler "was right on one thing."

A newly-sworn in congresswoman from southern Illinois quoted Adolf Hitler as she spoke outside the U.S. Capitol, saying the German Nazi leader "was right on one thing."

Rep. Mary Miller was speaking at a rally in Washington, D.C. when a Twitter user posted video Tuesday showing a portion of her speech.

Itâ□□s worth noting that these 144 cases from the ODNI report were AFTER eliminating obvious IDs , AND intentionally picked for chain of custody for the data.

Nearly everything theyâ□□ve shared is just what records have said. Itâ□□s a good baseline to start. If theyâ□□re proven wrong? Cool. Then we have great evidence of FOIA not being honest.

@alienpilled @InvNightSchool I agree, but we are far beyond equating either party as the â□□sameâ□□ at this point.

If one is getting annoyed by messaging around voting, theyâ□□ve lost sight of what is at stake.

To add to this, here is what Alain Julliet, the former head of the French Spy Agency, DGSE, had to say about this: https://youtu.be/AQhGxsprH8A

Translated below:backhand_index_pointing_down_light_skin_tone:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FV9hH43VEAER6aA.jpg

Guest : So we're thinking, is it a drone, did the Chinese found something, or the Americans or Russian. But when we look at it, we see that everyone, Chinese, Americans and Russians, everyone is looking for answers. Everywhere, services are trying to understand. And I, I'm not talking about green little men, that's not my topic. My topic is "We face something we don't understand, and it would be great to understand it" because it could become a real danger. And that's what I'm interested in, to try to understand. And my question goes further because, we've seen it in the air, but we've seen some it water too.

Host : oh yeah ?

Guest : yeah, fast ones. Really fast ones. At incredible fast speed. So detecting something underwater, that we can't identify, that goes at speed.. great speed, way higher than the speed of sound, we are like " weird, what could it be". So there that. And the more we advance in the technique, the more we identify event like this. But till now, we can't explain them. We'll find, I'm convinced we will. But we need time

Really digging these two points side by side on Walkerâ□□s notes on the SSCIâ□□s new IAA, #ufotwitter.

Other pics from @LtTimMcMillanâ□□s Dec 2020 article - https://thedebrief.org/fast-movers-and-transmedium-vehicles-the-pentagons-uap-task-force/http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FV9fAEWUAAEyGy-.jpg

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FV9fAEVUYAAppVA.jpg

The three officials we spoke with said the report suggested the UAP Task Force appears to be concerned that the objects being termed as UAP may be originating from within the world's oceans. Strange as this may sound, the idea of "USOs," or "unidentified submersible objects," is not something exclusive to the current UAPTF.

In various public appearances, astronomer and chief video/image analyst for the Mutual UFO Network (MUFON), Marc D'Antonio, has shared an unusual experience involving the detection of an underwater "Fast Mover," which occurred while he was sailing as a civilian aboard one of the U.S. Navy's prized attack submarines.

Last year, defense journalist Tyler Rogoway spoke with several veteran submariners to get their take on D'Antonio's account. While at least one person expressed skepticism about D'Antonio being granted a civilian ride-along, the Navy vets being interviewed almost unanimously acknowledged that unexplained, very high-speed sonar targets are indeed recorded by some of the most sophisticated listening equipment on the planet.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FV9fAEWVEAA8TWO.jpg

Agreeing to speak only on background, a senior member of the intelligence community whose responsibilities for decades involved underwater surveillance and reconnaissance programs told The Debrief there was validity to claims of extremely fast-moving underwater objects being detected by U.S. military systems.

"On occasion, there are detections made of non-cavitational, extremely fast-moving objects within the ocean." The intelligence official declined to elaborate further, citing the high levels of security classification associated with underwater reconnaissance.

Officials who had read the reports say the UAPTF appears particularly interested in "transmedium vehicles." While this may seem unusual, many accounts exist — some going back centuries — in which people say they have observed unidentifiable craft operating in and out of the water.

@JasonColavito The ODNI prepared the report.

The ODNI National Intelligence Manager for Aviation drafted the report with input from 17 other entities.

Per Knapp, he â□□helpedâ□□ write the report.

Your above statement is mistaken.

I want to highlight this section in the complaint, as IMO, it is the most important.

The top of the Pentagonâ□□s liaison to someone in the IC reached out to the IC to see if Elizondo was talking crazy or if this was actually a big issue.

She was told it was a serious problem.

@blackvaultcom If I were to rephrase this all more succinctly, Iâ□□d say now that we have more details on what AATIP did and who it involved these years, the fact that it wasnâ□□t an â□□official programâ□□ is irrelevant to its validity as an effort taken seriously by those in charge.

@blackvaultcom it seems AATIP was regularly getting data from incidents throughout the years, as until the new legislation, there was no where else to go with these problems.

More anecdotes that this seems to be a regular issue.

Lastly, there are some on here who frame AATIP as Elizondo

2022-06-22T22:29:32+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539737376372563969

@blackvaultcom This AATIP portfolio had permission and knowledge from higher ups as well as the support of senior executives.

@BSquidding @MvonRen @MiddleOfMayhem Depends on each state, but it includes all sorts of protections and scenarios. Not just that.

Iâ□□m no legal expert, but AFAIK just because someone shared something they â□□shouldnâ□□t ofâ□□ with a journalist, it doesnâ□□t mean that thing can now be legally shared with the world.

2022-06-22T20:49:24+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539712176998346753

@BSquidding @MvonRen @MiddleOfMayhem Reporters have a level of legal protection around stuff like this. Doesnâ□□t mean one can just share it with the public though.

I donâ□□t know what the law is re: sharing internal docs at the IG. Theyâ□□re unclassified, but itâ□□s probably against policy.

2022-06-22T20:47:05+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539711594841616384

@EndUAPSecrecy Right, but weâ□□re talking about pre OUSDI. Elizondo is saying when he was brought on, most of his work was at this specific effort within AAWSAP called â□□AATIP.â□□

Yet the project manager, Lacatski, is saying AATIP is just a nickname and nothing more.

@thaxter Every person involved seems to have a different answer of what AATIP was before AAWSAP went away. Just seems like it was a mess. What it did is what is most important to me, but having Lacatski and Elizondo say different things is annoying. They shouldnâ□□t be youâ□□d think.

@BSquidding @MvonRen @MiddleOfMayhem lawyers did their due diligence before giving the go ahead.

Iâ□□m selfishly happy and think itâ□□s great for transparency, but releasing a complaint of an active IG situation is certainly eyebrow raising.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539699232948359168
@BSquidding @MvonRen @MiddleOfMayhem Just because a journalist receives it to write a story doesnâ□□t mean itâ□□s legally fair game for others to publish.

Journalists receiving docs under source agreements is how they get to see and corroborate things they otherwise arenâ□□t â□□technicallyâ□□ supposed to see. I imagine NYP

Lacatski and others have called AATIP a â□□made upâ□□ nickname.

Elizondo called AATIP â□□a specific effort within the portfolio.â□□ @katieshowland Itâ□□s a tough balance. Once they get into the classified world, they also canâ□□t report whatâ□□s been found to the public.

Hard agree with that â□□no evidenceâ□□ statement. While itâ□□s technically true, itâ□□s also unnecessary. It doesnâ□□t mean anything. The stigma at play, IMO @InvNightSchool @bradjohansson21 IMO, still unidentified. Elizondo expressed his frustration that more couldn't engage on this topic. I'm not sure it ever got more analysis. If it did, it was from the UAPTF/AOIMSG, and as we know they've only identified one so far.

@bradjohansson21 Me sharing they thought it was compelling wasnâ□□t me saying it was so either.

But to go from that to â□□birdsâ□□ is too speculative for me. Itâ□□s dismissing and writing something off before anyone even knows anything about it.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539337111093972992

@InvNightSchool @MHuntington7 @WildSlunksauce That is a key difference from lying, which is what it seemed like you were alleging with talk of perjury? This is totally possible, and I would say the most likely option if the The IC community and Tipton didnâ□□t also seem to agree with him. Wish we could see it.

2022-06-21T19:52:31+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539335474921189376

@InvNightSchool @bradjohansson21 Itâ□□s not commenting on what the video contains or could be. Only that it exists. Something that AFAIK has never been mentioned beyond ppl saying things on a podcast.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539334907528327168

@InvNightSchool @MHuntington7 @WildSlunksauce My guy, things people say under sworn testimony is elevated above normal speech. Thatâ□□s the point of sworn testimony.

So things Elizondo says on a podcast vs what he says on sworn testimony carry the exact same weight?

2022-06-21T19:48:26+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1539334448419774464

@bradjohansson21 How anybody can have any strong opinion whatsoever at this point is truly silly. We have nothing besides a sentence describing it.

3 things in a triangular formation on video for 18-20 minutes could be oh so many things.

James Clapper said he was "very happy" to have a UFO program.

Sherwood said, "He was aware [Elizondo] ran AATIP, but forces in the building were telling him not to admit it." http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyqfmhUYAEH5hQ.jpg

18 December 2017 – During an interview at CNN Headquarters, in Washington, D.C., former Undersecretary of Defense for Intelligence, and former Director of National Intelligence, GEN James Clapper, indicated to me and my spouse that he was very happy we had a UFO program at the Pentagon and was proud that I ran it. (Attachment 11)

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyp_r4VUAIaPCl.jpg

2019 – Several internet bloggers were notified by the new Public Affairs Officer, Mr. Sherwood, that I had no duties regarding AATIP and that AATIP did not involve the study of UAPs. As a result, the bloggers began to disseminate reporting, accusing me of being a fabricator. At this point, I initiated a telephone call with Mr. Sherwood directly, in which he indicated that he "was not happy with the way this was being handled internally with the Department," and that he "was aware I ran AATIP, but forces within the building were telling him not to admit it". He also indicated that he is trying to write a new statement because the Navy substantiated my claims of working with AATIP, and [redacted] had called him personally to express his disappointment about the false claims by the Department. (Attachment 14)

14 Tipton was given control of AATIP so somebody with sufficient authority could be in charge in order to "leverage internal resources within the Department to gain additional fidelity on the UAP threat to controlled military airspace." http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVypmgGUYAEIab2.jpg

July – 3 October 2017 – Based upon meetings within the SECDEF's suite, [redacted] and [redacted] agreed that the AATIP portfolio should be handled by a senior member of OUSD(I), preferably with the rank of a seasoned SES. The reason for this was to ensure sufficient authority could be used to leverage internal resources within the Department to gain additional fidelity on the UAP threat to controlled military airspace. It was at this point, [redacted] and [redacted] agreed that Mr. McKernan and I brief Mr. Tipton about the decision by the Front Office. From July to late September, Mr. McKernan and I had several personal meetings with Mr. Tipton to brief him on the nuances of AATIP. Mr. Tipton agreed to assume the management role of AATIP under the condition that I remain an advisor and part of the AATIP construct. E-mails were exchanged between Mr. Tipton, Mr. McKernan and myself that substantiate Mr. Tipton's awareness of the AATIP program and his new leadership role. Per guidance from [redacted] and [redacted], I drafted an official memorandum assigning my AATIP responsibilities to Mr. Tipton for SECDEF approval and signature. Mr. Tipton received the memorandum and voiced his approval. (Attachment 5 & Attachment 6)

- [redacted] – After several meetings with [redacted] I was introduced to [redacted] who was the Secretary's Senior Liaison to one of the members of the IC. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means) [redacted] expressed her concerns briefing the SECDEF until she had more information from other members of the IC. She indicated that she would reach out to her colleagues and return with additional guidance. After several weeks of briefings, [redacted] indicated that her colleagues in other government agencies are also taking this topic seriously but did not know how to proceed at the time. [redacted] indicated her concern about briefing the SECDEF until they had a better understanding of the topic and the threat. I explained to [redacted] that time was not on our side and that action must be taken to inform the Secretary. I informed them of my previous interaction with the Secretary when he was the Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU) Commander in Kandahar, Afghanistan and my experience with the Secretary is that he would prefer to be informed sooner, rather than later.

12 The briefings to the SecDef's (Mattis) suite begin! Elizondo briefs someone, that someone agrees this is an issue and introduces him to another colleague & on it goes.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVynXCNUEAEoZhD.jpg

2017 - I was invited by several direct reports to Secretary of Defense, James Mattis, to provide an official AATIP briefing, within the SECDEF suite, E-Ring, River Entrance, Pentagon.

- [redacted] SES, Senior Representative to the SECDEF – My initial meeting with [redacted] was a result of a direct request by [redacted] staff, at the SECDEF's front office. I received a notice on SIPRNet and a telephone call asking if I would be available to provide a briefing on AATIP. During the initial meeting, [redacted] was provided detailed, classified information regarding UAP incursions into controlled U.S. airspace, along with photographs, videos and classified reports from the field. A week later, I was asked to return and provide a follow-on briefing to the same individual. During the meeting I was asked for my personal assessment of the situation in which I expressed my frustration of a lack of senior-level visibility and excessive stove piping within the Department. [redacted] was sympathetic to our situation in AATIP and asked that we provide a briefing to his colleague, [redacted].

UNCLASSIFIED

- [redacted] to the Secretary of Defense – I received several telephone calls on my personal cell phone (voice messages saved and available) from [redacted] requesting a briefing on AATIP. As with [redacted], my meetings were arranged by SECDEF front office personnel (official calendar invites were executed) and took place in the Secretary's Suite. During the initial briefing with [redacted] AATIP data and findings were shared. This meeting lasted for over 60 minutes. At the conclusion of the meeting, a follow-on meeting was requested by [redacted].

  During the second meeting, [redacted] expressed consternation about how to inform the Secretary of AATIP findings, given that there is no permanent USD(I) in place and that the SECDEF was relatively new. [redacted] was sympathetic to our program's challenges.

  After several meetings, [redacted] asked me to arrange a briefing from several of the eyewitnesses from the 2004 U.S.S. Nimitz investigation, namely the F-18 pilots and the E-2 Hawkeye Radar Operator that were on station at the time. As a result of his request, I successfully brought in several pilots and the Radar Operator, along with Mr. McKernan to provide a full description of the encounter. [redacted] was concerned due to his previous experience being an F-18 pilot, himself. After the meeting, [redacted] asked for us to return and brief his colleague, [redacted]. (electronic voicemails are available to confirm meetings with [redacted] in the SECDEF suite)

11 Another video mentioned of an encounter with a UAP only "feet from a U.S. fighter aircraft."

Also the first mention of Garry Reid and his sleazy grossness.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyl69JUYAEJksD.jpg

Late 2016 – After increased frustration, I became alarmed by the frequency and duration of UAP activity in and around controlled U.S. airspace. The instances seemed more provocative, and during one instance, they came within feet of a U.S. fighter aircraft. The video of this encounter still exists on the AATIP share drive, known as "Y-Project", within the OUSD(I) JWICS share drive. Out of desperation, I was willing to break protocol and seek the guidance of the DDI for Intelligence and Security (DDI I&S), Mr. Garry Reid. Mr. Garry Reid replaced [redacted] as the new DDI I&S. However, prior to informing Mr. Garry Reid, I was warned by several individuals that Mr. Garry Reid could not be trusted. It was not told to me at the time why he was not trusted among his peers other than he had an "unusual relationship with his subordinate, [redacted]. I was also told that this relationship is widely known within OUSD(I) and that both [redacted] and Mr. Garry Reid occupied positions of significant influence within the CI, Security, and Law Enforcement communities. For this reason, I hesitated on briefing Mr. Garry Reid on AATIP efforts. At the time, a third-party allegation of sexual harassment was reported to me involving Mr. Garry Reid by one of my office subordinates, [redacted] GG-14. During one of the meetings, he referred to [redacted] as "Bunny" and made her feel uncomfortable in the presence of other females including a USD(I) attorney and counsel, [redacted] I later learned that a formal IG Investigation was initiated, to which I was called as a witness.

10 Elizondo again informs higher-ups he is engaged in another portfolio, this time not mentioning specifically it's about UFOs.

What's REALLY interesting is the mention of a 2013 FBI investigation involving "potential UAP activity near a sensitive U.S. Government facility.":face_with_monocle:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyk0KTVsAIPCxn.jpg

2016 – During this time, I continually attempted to gain additional Senior-level leadership involvement. My direct supervisor, [redacted], was informed by me that I was also involved in another sensitive effort besides NPSMS. [redacted] indicated he was fine with my involvement in other Government endeavors provided it did not interfere with my performance as Director, NPSMS. It was during this time, I introduced [redacted] to other members of the AATIP staff, including Mr. Brennan McKernan. Although we never specified AATIP involved UAPs, he was aware of the sensitive nature of the effort and the strict "need-to-know" aspects of the program, which he respected. [redacted] was later asked to provide information on a 2013 Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) investigation called [redacted] for which the sworn statements (302)s would be useful for our efforts. The investigation involved potential UAP activity near a sensitive U.S. Government facility. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means)

9 This makes it clear AATIP was not just Elizondo looking into UFOs by himself in his free time, but an effort comprising of many folks with different types of expertise.

Also, more confirmation of UAP "coaxing" through ACCM channels. Read more https://thehermeticpenetrator.medium.com/ufo-coaxing-yes-excerpts-from-a-bombshell-ufotwitter-thread-1cbf8ba38007 @THP_22_22 http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyj7eKUAAIlQNK.jpg

2015 – 2017 – On a regular basis, Mr. Stratton (who was assigned at the time as a STRATCOM Liaison Officer), and Mr. Brennan McKernan (current UAP Task Force Director) and I would discuss new reports that were received and engage in a larger working group discussion with other elements within the IC. These meetings were conducted in designated OSD and Navy Sensitive Compartmented Information Facilities (SCIF) spaces, within the Pentagon or Suitland Naval Air Station. Expertise ranging from electrooptical experts to radar engineers would be utilized to try and ascertain some of the observations and what models of physics would be required to explain UAP performance. It was also suggested that a joint Operational Plan (OPLAN) be developed through the Joint Staff to potentially elicit a behavior/response to UAP activity. In 2016, a formal OPLAN was drafted and submitted through Alternative Compensatory Control Measure (ACCM) channels. The OPLAN was significant in detail, including the frequency of incursions by UAP, locations, and type. At one point, a comprehensive listing of UAP activity was included for the entire month. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means)

8 Elizondo had a senior executive from the USAF also supporting his efforts.

As can be seen here, AATIP is mentioned as a "formal working group."

Additional incidents are also brought up, including one where a senior member of the Navy is asking AATIP wtf to do. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyjLa-UYAASOJc.jpg

2015 – I briefed the AATIP portfolio to [redacted], who was at the time a Senior Executive U.S. Air Force Detailee to OUSD(I). At the time, his staff and mine shared office space at [redacted] and he was instrumental in providing me advice and assistance. My hope was to use [redacted] as an interlocutor with U.S. Air Force [redacted] in order to understand the UAP issue from an Air Force perspective. [redacted] and I collaborated frequently and had lunch over the matter. I introduced him to several members of AATIP, and he was genuinely interested in the topic. He was also aware that [redacted] was briefed into AATIP and there were a select few individuals who would receive briefings from my staff and me. Upon his departure from OUSD(I), I provided [redacted] a small token of our appreciation for his support by providing a one-of-a-kind, original photograph of an Apollo astronaut on the Moon with handwritten note. (this photo was later shown to Mr. Brennan McKernan, the current UAP Task Force Director, by [redacted] as evidence he was aware of our effort and a supporter)

2014 – 2016 – My office was routinely engaged with other members of the Intelligence Community (IC) in a formal working group, specifically organized for the purposes of discussing and assessing UAP activity.

This not only included older incidents, the 2004 U.S.S. Nimitz, but recent incidents being reported by U.S. Naval Ship Captains in theaters of engagement. These incidents were often accompanied by video evidence taken from U.S. weapon platforms. In one such instance, a senior member of the U.S. Navy sent an e-mail pleading for guidance as to what he/she should do if they encounter more UAPs. This documentation still exists with OUSD(I). (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means) It was, at this time, I also assumed the new role as the Director of National Programs Special Management Staff (NPSMS), a National Security Council effort involving Guantanamo Bay. (Attachment 2)

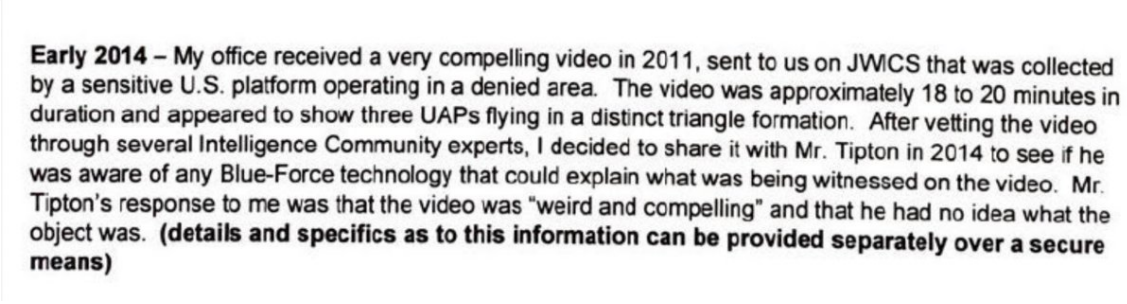
In 2011, AATIP received an 18-20 minute compelling video that "appeared to show three UAPs flying in a distinct triangle formation." http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyge0jUcAE8gT-.jpg



Early 2014 – My office received a very compelling video in 2011, sent to us on JWICS that was collected by a sensitive U.S. platform operating in a denied area. The video was approximately 18 to 20 minutes in duration and appeared to show three UAPs flying in a distinct triangle formation. After vetting the video through several Intelligence Community experts, I decided to share it with Mr. Tipton in 2014 to see if he was aware of any Blue-Force technology that could explain what was being witnessed on the video. Mr. Tipton's response to me was that the video was "weird and compelling" and that he had no idea what the object was. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means)

[redacted] attended numerous AATIP meetings where we discussed the role of DoD FMA efforts to support AATIP, along with logistics and facilities. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means). It was at this time, I informed my supervisor, Mr. Neil Tipton, of my work in a "parallel portfolio" and my need to gain expertise from the ISR Task Force given the nuanced nature of analysis we were conducting. 4 As Lacatsk left, he made Elizondo head of the efforts. He moved the portfolio from the DIA to the OUSD as we knew from prior documentation.

After which he says he began "minimizing existing efforts within the AAWSAP portfolio" and "focused our remaining efforts on AATIP." http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVydqq4UYAMCbno.jpg

April 2010 – Dr. Lakatski approached me and asked if I would consider assuming the role of AAWSAP and AATIP, Director. I reminded Dr. Lakatski that most of my experience concerned the AATIP portfolio and that I only worked AAWSAP from a tangential perspective. Dr. Lakataski's response to me was that he already had my name "floated" as the new Director with leadership, and that it was unanimously agreed by all that I should be the new Director. He also suggested that I manage the effort under my authorities as a member of the OSD staff, and not keep it within DIA due to the hostile environment he was experiencing. After a day of considering his offer, I accepted the responsibility provided that all stakeholders supported this decision. I also informed Dr. Lakatski that I would begin to engage with select OUSD(I) senior staff members to gain additional mission support.

May 2010 – August 2012 – In my new role as Director for AATIP and AAWSAP, I made the decision to begin minimizing existing efforts within the AAWSAP portfolio given the negative attention it was receiving by DIA leadership. It was my observation that key elements within DIA were attempting to hide anything related to AAWSAP simply due to a perceived sense of stigma. As such, I focused our remaining efforts on AATIP given that there was ample information, data, and evidence which we continued to receive that indicated continued incursions into controlled U.S. airspace, both CONUS and OCONUS. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means) During this time period, my office had multiple meetings with eyewitnesses to include pilots, radar operators, and ship's crew. Furthermore, emails were being sent to my office at the classified level over the Secure Internet Protocol Router Network (SIPRNet), and Joint Worldwide Intelligence Communications (JWICS) concerning incidents involving Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) activity. There are numerous emails from senior military service members and leadership that substantiate the fact that the threat was real. The e-mails still exist within the OUSD(I). (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means)

3 That being said, once there was new leadership at the DIA, that changed quickly. They worked to shut the effort down. Elizondo asserts that even though they acknowledged it as "real," it went against their religious beliefs. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVydB3ZVsAA1Stu.jpg

July 2009 - January 2010 – New leadership at DIA began to create challenges for Dr. Lakatski, despite the previous leadership fully endorsing the efforts. [redacted] was the [redacted] of DIA and began attempts to shut down the effort. As was explained to me by colleagues, there was a religious aversion to the subject matter by certain members of DIA and the OSD staff. In September 2009, I was privy to an internal e-mail between Dr. Shedd and OUSD(I) Congressional Affairs, [redacted] where both were lamenting the existence of the programs and were attempting to "kill the effort" because it involved "...that crazy UFO topic again". In October 2009, I was asked to attend a meeting within the OUSD(I) SAPCO spaces in which I was told specifically that this effort should be discontinued and that although this topic was real, it had supernatural origins not consistent with certain religious views of specific senior leadership. I reported the results of this meeting to Dr. Lakatski.

February 2010 - April 2010 – Dr. Lakatski indicated to me that he was facing increased pressure by DIA leadership and he would be forced to resign from his duties as the Director of AAWSAP and AATIP, and return to Headquarters, DIA. Dr. Lakatski was in poor spirits at the time because he believed he was being unfairly persecuted for his role in an authorized mission.

If only we could get this classified correspondence, as it seems that the idea of senior DIA leadership not being aware of AAWSAP's true work wasn't correct http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVyckH1VIAED2Dh.jpg

September 2008 – June 2009 – During this time, I created a CI and Security posture for both AAWSAP and AATIP. Furthermore, I attended senior-level debriefings, including one with a former-foreign military member with a General Officer rank, that was arranged by Dr. Lakatski. I was also present for numerous written updates by Dr. Lakatski to the Director of DIA and other Senior DIA officials regarding AAWSAP/AATIP which were well-received. Ample correspondence exists between DIA senior staff and Dr. Lakatski that substantiates DIA leadership was not only supportive, but also in favor of the AAWSAP/AATIP efforts to be expanded. I am personally aware of both meetings and briefings in which AAWSAP and AATIP were discussed, and I was privy to several classified emails that substantiate this fact. Those emails still exist within a specific office at the Pentagon in both electronic and hard copies. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means). It was during this time, we also conducted a review over a draft 10-Month report, executed by one of the prime contractors, Bigelow Aerospace. (details and specifics as to this information can be provided separately over a secure means)

I was informed that this effort involved collecting data and evidence from military personnel who came into contact with Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP), a term that was then explained to me as the Government nomenclature for Unidentified Flying Objects (UFO)s. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVv9fGvUAAAHQ6y.jpg

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

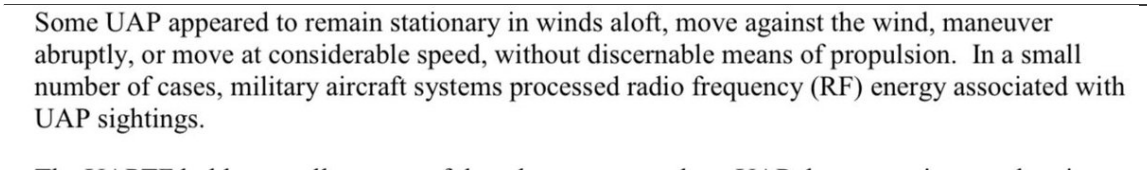
@dave_beaty @Manning123Sm @Julesofthwood @rosscoulthart @ChrisSPITZER7 @USNavy I got thrown because the DNI report labels RF as Radio Frequency, but all of these seem like viable options w/ out more info. We need somebody fluent in deck log jargon :grinning_face_with_sweat: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVv6KjnUYAE7zXG.jpg



Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

@rosscoulthart @ChrisSPITZER7 @dave_beaty @USNavy Documentation suggests a DRAKE team was activated on the USS Russell. Interestingly, they also seemed to have recorded some RF data.

But why only on this one ship at this one incident? What about the rest?

More info on DRAKE:

1. (U) Attached IS VI from USS RUSSELL.
2. (U) Units involved: USS RUSSELL, USS KIDD, UNK Pleasure Craft, 5x UNK UAS
3. (U) Files attached: 03x .JPG, 01x .WMV, 1x PAO Statement, 1x VI Storyboard
4. (U) Ship name and geographic reference: USS RUSSELL is located in SOCAL OPAREA approximately 7.5 NM south San Nicolas Island.
5. (U) 3258N 11906W (Narration incorrectly states position as 32 588N)
6. (U) DESCRIPTION OF EVENT: At 0757Z, while operating in SOCAL on CSE 075 T at 15 kts, RSL reports 1x possible UAS with GREEN/WHITE/RED lights off stern from RSL. At 0811Z, RSL reports UAS flyover, called away SNOOPIE team and DRAKE. RSL changed CSE to 130 T. RSL then lost visual of UAS. At 0937Z, RSL reports 1 x possible UAS with GREEN/WHITE/RED lights flying stationary relative to RSL. CPA was 4000 yards. 1 UNKNOWN vessel was identified operating in the vicinity of Santa Catalina Island. RSL changed CSE to 035 T to pursue UAS as directed by GZ. KID was moving on opposite course to RSL and reported no visual of UAS. 3 x possible UAS were reported and visual was gained off the STBD side of RSL. Pleasure craft with unidentified MMSI was hailed on BTB using UAS warning script. At 1015Z, RSL slowed to 10 knots. Pleasure craft with unidentified MMSI was again hailed on BTB using UAS warning script. Communications were never established. RSL still had visual of UAS which appeared outbound. At 1110Z, RSL no longer has visual on green/red/white lights. SNOOPIE team and DRAKE team were secured.

Deck logs further revealed that radiofrequency data was captured from the drones during the incident. These details were obtained after The War Zone successfully appealed extensive redactions of the ship logs. A reference to both the drones and the "RF" data can be seen below:

@zcichy (1/n) Thereâ□□s two issues at play that are the impetus:

@zcichy No, they are literally breaking the law. If nat sec intelligence issues or failures are occurring, etc, the gang of eight has to be legally informed. Doubly so when they specifically ask, which they now have. If what you posit above is true, people are committing crimes.

@zcichy I personally would need evidence before going there. Precedent or no, that option means folks within the Pentagon are breaking the law and misleading the gang of 8. Truly dangerous stuff. Maybe interesting with UFOs, but genuinely terrifying when applied anywhere else in nat sec.

@DeepSpace41 Thanks. A good piece. The fact that thereâ□□s a portion of this phenomenon that remains explained is why I believe NASA is looking at this. Not solely because they think or want it to be aliens.

@BryanDBender @BryanDBender, Thanks to FOIAd docs, it is now explicitly stated the Navy believed this was likely a Chinese collection operation from a Chinese-flagged cargo carrier.

This could definitely use some follow-up from someone like yourself.
https://www.thedrive.com/the-war-zone/drone-swarms-that-harassed-navy-ships-demystified-in-new-documents http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVVkfpiUcAAyjXD.png

A draft public affairs statement further added that the drones were thought to be "conducting collection operations" on the ship.

At approximately 0510Z on 30MAR19, 8x unknown UAS' operated in the vicinity of USS HARPERS FERRY while it was conducting routine operations in international waters in the SoCal OPAREA flying directly over USS HARPERS FERRY at low altitude of approximately 500 feet.

During the incident, USS HARPERS FERRY identified 8x unknown aircraft flying in the vicinity of USS HARPERS FERRY. The unknown UASs were likely conducting collection operations on USS HARPERS FERRY. Three of the eight UAS' flew over USS HARPERS FERRY at a low altitude of approximately 500 feet. At approximately 0623Z, the multiple UAS' were no longer in visual and likely concluded collection operations on USS HARPERS FERRY.

U.S. Navy ships and aircraft operate throughout the Indo-Pacific routinely, including in the East China Sea. As we have for decades, our forces will continue to fly, sail and operate anywhere international law allows. We expect all regional navies and the forces under their control to behave safely and professionally at all times. On rare occasions when interactions are unsafe and/or unprofessional, we have mechanisms to examine those incidents.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVVkfpiUcAAyjXD.png

> Among the new documents released to us is this briefing slide, which depicts the course of the Bass Strait relative to the Arleigh Burke class destroyer USS Paul Hamilton, also abbreviated here as PHM, as it transited to a scheduled port call in Long Beach, California. The briefing slide states that the Navy assessed that the commercial cargo ship was likely conducting surveillance on Navy vessels using drones, or unidentified aerial vehicles (UAV). A timeline of events shows that the surveillance lasted for just under four hours. In that time, multiple UAVs were spotted operating around the destroyer.

@blackvaultcom @MickWest Indeed.

Unless NASA is going to start getting access to the classified data surrounding the incidents, all this Navy Video stuff has always felt like a waste of time. Too little info to come to any confident conclusion.

@bpleasies @bradjohansson21 @zcichy @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ I think if you take a look at what Zurburchen has been writing and saying this past year, as well as what he said in that press conference, you may change your mind.

The intent is to take the results of this 9month study and create a larger endeavor with it.

@zcichy @bpleasies @bradjohansson21 @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ Weâ□□re talking about the NASA study. All of NASAâ□□s work has to be made public at the time of publication.

If NASA ends up having a scientific endeavor related to UAP, it will be FAR more transparent than the DoD.

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ 100% agreed they could say this. They don't. They seem perfectly fine living in this bizarre gray area.

Where announcing the things buzzing our carrier fleets carrying nuclear weapons were "only" unknown drones. It's ridiculous.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1536833729091338241
@zcichy @bradjohansson21 @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ If you listen to Bray, he seems to of the leaning that these specific weird cases are results of sensor errors. All the while saying these incidents had multiple sensors recording the same thing.

It doesn't make sense, and Congress dropped the ball on asking any good follow-ups.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1536833342531743744

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ then systematic collection efforts should eventually find something. if not, then apply pressure to exactly WTF the DoD is talking about.

NASA's study is the first thing the USG has done that actually makes sense to me.

@zcichy @bradjohansson21 @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ Endlessly. This is why I've repeatedly said NASA, the NSF, & other academic institutions need to begin looking at this in a public manner. Sensors will always stay classified for nat sec reasons.

Scientific studies? Not necessarily. If this is such a wide-ranging problem,

https://twitter.com/_/status/1536829648163569664

@zcichy @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ You don't view the ODNI report as confirming there are things in our skies we currently don't understand?

The lack of specificity is a great reason for NASA's study.

If NASA is going to do a study, they have to say so.

@zcichy @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ If the USG confirms there are things in our skies we currently donâ□□t understand that could require scientific analysis, doesnâ□□t it make sense for a scientific agency funded by the USG to look into it?

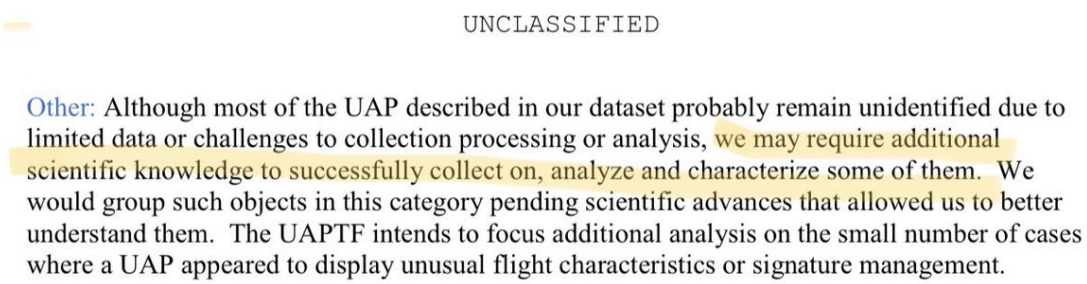
https://twitter.com/_/status/1536828046967091201

@zcichy @dividendless @Dr_ThomasZ IMO, this is the next logical step give what the USG is saying.

The ODNI report itself says â□□we may require additional scientific knowledgeâ□¦â□□

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FVPo9p_UAAA6dW9.jpg



UNCLASSIFIED

Other: Although most of the UAP described in our dataset probably remain unidentified due to limited data or challenges to collection processing or analysis, we may require additional scientific knowledge to successfully collect on, analyze and characterize some of them. We would group such objects in this category pending scientific advances that allowed us to better understand them. The UAPTF intends to focus additional analysis on the small number of cases where a UAP appeared to display unusual flight characteristics or signature management.

Airspace Safety and UAP

Consistent with NASA's principles of openness, transparency, and scientific integrity, NASA is commissioning an UAP Independent Study Team in order to examine UAP from a scientific perspective, focusing on how NASA can use data and the tools of science to move our understanding forward.

- Airspace is increasingly crowded with piloted and autonomous vehicles, as well as balloons, etc.
- There have been over 400 reports of UAP
- UAP clearly pose a safety of flight issue, as well as a potential national security and/or counterintelligence threat
- A handful appear to demonstrate advanced technology
- The limited amount of high-quality reporting on UAP hampers our ability to draw firm conclusions about the nature or intent of them

Statement of Task

1. What types of scientific data currently collected and archived by NASA or other civilian government entities should be synthesized and analyzed to potentially shed light on the nature and origins of Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP)?
2. What types of scientific data currently collected and held by non-profits and companies should be synthesized and analyzed to potentially shed light on the nature and origins of UAP?
3. What other types of scientific data should be collected by NASA to enhance the potential for developing an understanding of the nature and origins of UAP?
4. Which scientific analysis techniques currently in production could be employed to assess the nature and origins of UAP? Which types of analysis techniques should be developed?
5. In considering the factors above, what basic physical constraints can be placed on the nature and origins of UAP?
6. What civilian airspace data related to UAPs have been collected by government agencies and are available for analysis to a) inform efforts to better understand the nature and origins of UAPs, and b) determine the risk of UAPs to the National Air Space (NAS)?
7. What current reporting protocols and air traffic management (ATM) data acquisition systems can be modified to acquire additional data on past and future UAPs?
8. What potential enhancements to future ATM development efforts can be recommended to acquire data concerning future reported UAPs to assist in the effort to better understand the nature and origin of the UAPs?

UAP Independent Study: Key Points

- NASA believes that the tools of scientific discovery are powerful and apply to the study of UAP
- SMD and Aeronautics Research Mission Directorate (ARMD) will appoint members from across the scientific, aeronautics, and data analytics communities
- This is an open, independent, and unclassified study. NASA will commission the team to deliver an independent report that we will subsequently publish
- The Independent Study Team will be chaired by Dr. David Spergel (President, Simons Foundation), with Dr. Dan Evans (SMD) serving as the Designated Federal Officer/Executive Secretary

If this is done right, it can finally add some clarity and real data to this otherwise terribly low-data topic. If the USG is investigating it, I don't see why NASA shouldn't be either.

@zcichy (2/2) From John's thread here, I think it's apparent there are some within NASA who are curious about all of this and would like to dig deeper. They also correctly say that "this is not a data-rich field."

I think this effort is trying to fix that.

Government funded scientists are now going to be assessing the best ways to find or collect said data, and thatâ□□s just generating headlines? :man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:

Running military exercises without any leadership being aware of it is incredibly dangerous. If the head of Naval operations. a member of the JCS didn't know, then who did? What kind of wargame would this be? Not aware of any precedent that comes close.

If you look at the emails between the NICS, FBI, Coast Guard, and Cheif of Naval Operations, they definitely were unaware of this being any kind of exercise or wargame.

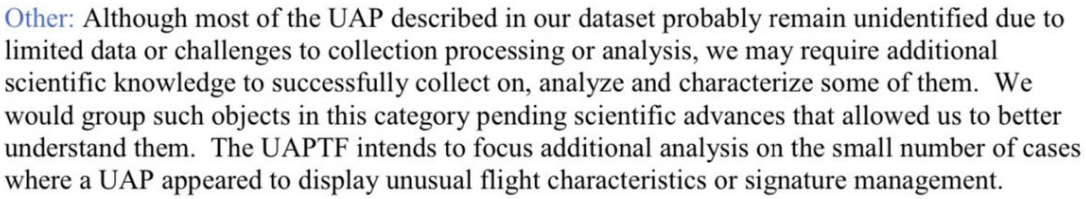
And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FUNQJc-UUAA3pan.jpg



Other: Although most of the UAP described in our dataset probably remain unidentified due to limited data or challenges to collection processing or analysis, we may require additional scientific knowledge to successfully collect on, analyze and characterize some of them. We would group such objects in this category pending scientific advances that allowed us to better understand them. The UAPTF intends to focus additional analysis on the small number of cases where a UAP appeared to display unusual flight characteristics or signature management.

Florida Sen. Marco Rubio, the top Republican on the intelligence panel, also believes the Pentagon is not aggressively carrying out Congress' direction.

"Rubio is definitely frustrated," said one of the senator's aides, who was not authorized to speak publicly. "They are not moving fast enough, not doing enough, not sharing enough."

One of those lawmakers is Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand (D-N.Y.), a member of both committees who has called the phenomena "an urgent issue" and for the first time is expressing her public dissatisfaction at the response.

"Senator Gillibrand believes that the DoD needs to take this issue much more seriously and get in motion," said one of her aides, who requested anonymity in order to discuss private conversations. @blackvaultcom @SK1LLLS I donâ□□t think Ppl within gov care or follow how it started. The DepSecDef, DNI, and Congress are now saying itâ□□s a problem that must be deal with. So they have to deal with it.

“Look, the idea that the government, or someone in government, might have an interest or be investigating UFOs is sensitive information in the sense that there were very few people in the building that knew about our program and the [DD 1910 form] is supposed to be an unclassified document that anyone can read,” says Elizondo. “I can’t simply write the word ‘UFO’ in the request to people who were not cleared for it. However, rest assured the OCA was always included in this request so the right people always knew what this request was about ” said Elizondo.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FUIWjXKUEAAmIUQ.jpg

web.archive.org

By acknowledging it was DOPSR that made a procedural error, the Pentagon has absolved Elizondo of any wrongdoing when it comes to the video's public release. However, Elizondo has still faced past scrutiny about other aspects of his release request. Namely, some have questioned why he described the subject area of the videos on the release form as "UAV, Balloons, and UAS" instead of "UFOs" or the government's new buzz word, "UAP." (By DoD established definition, "UAV" and "UAS" represent "Unmanned Aerial Vehicle" and "Unmanned Aerial System," respectively. Not "unidentified.")

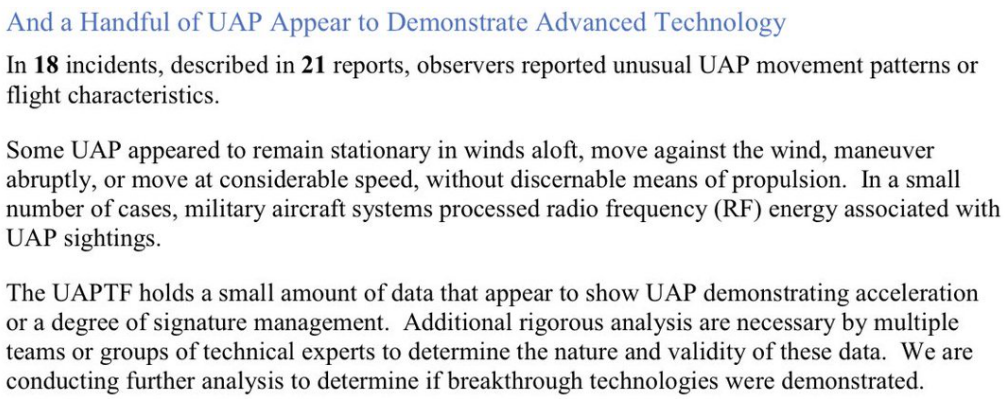
Other: Although most of the UAP described in our dataset probably remain unidentified due to limited data or challenges to collection processing or analysis, we may require additional scientific knowledge to successfully collect on, analyze and characterize some of them. We would group such objects in this category pending scientific advances that allowed us to better understand them. The UAPTF intends to focus additional analysis on the small number of cases where a UAP appeared to display unusual flight characteristics or signature management.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FUHUA7IVsAA5k5T.jpg

I thank you, gentlemen, for your work and will be very interested to hear what you have to say, to me, among the most fascinating questions are these phenomena that we can measure, that is instruments report, there is something there, it is not the human eye, confusing objects in the sky. There is something there measurable by multiple instruments, and yet it seems to move in directions that are inconsistent with what we know of physics or science more broadly. And that to me poses questions of tremendous interest and as well as potential national security significance so we look forward to hearing what you're able to report to us today and open session and I want to thank Chairman Carson again for his extraordinary leadership on this issue, and I yield back.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FUHUA7IUsAAg_dG.jpg



And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

@JohnELTenney Thanks for taking the time to respond, John.

Are not all these things youâ□□re explaining reasons why whatâ□□s happening now is different than the 50s and 60s?

Iâ□□m less concerned about why leaders are now more willing to talk about it, although what you said is Iâ□□m sure a factor.

@moranlerner We should find out and let the data take us where it leads.

IMO, the stigma has for decades prevented a good faith effort.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530951964070006784

@moranlerner There are plenty of incidents that, if reported as they happen, will have plenty of corresponding sensor data. They should be investigated.

I am interested most in the cases that appear to exhibit next gen tech. Are our sensors being screwy, or is there something to it?

@moranlerner My tweet above is more referring to USG involvement and action. The sensationalistic side of â□□UFOlogyâ□□ will always be what it will be.

IMO, videos are a waste of time for furthering the conversation unless they show something absolutely bananas + chain of custody.

I have long disagreed with those whoâ□□ve said whatâ□□s happening now in UFOs has happened before. While there IS a cyclical nature to this, many of the (important) details are different.

@bradjohansson21 No, sorry, the DNI report. Iâ□□m saying that there are many Instances of unidentified things with corroborating sensor data. Those are the kinds of cases best suited for what Iâ□□m talking about. Or if numerous pilots report the same thing, clearly something was there.

@bradjohansson21 I donâ□□t think the video is a good example of what should have been reported to AOIMSG. Like the report said, a majority of the incidents had corresponding sensor and radar tracks.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530678174681444354
@strategic_doubt The whole point of my thread here was to say the video is not great nor relevant to the big point Iâ□□m making. Dozens and dozens of CBP agents see weird stuff, and they report to some guy whoâ□□s into this, because there is no official capacity for them to do so.

2022-05-28T22:26:15+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1530676856914989056
@strategic_doubt To clarify, what do you mean when you say UFOs?

If itâ□□s what I think, then sure. Of course. Where did I say itâ□□s all about UFOs? Where did the DNI or DoD say itâ□□s all about UFOs?

2022-05-28T22:24:44+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1530676475019415558
@strategic_doubt No one is saying thatâ□□s the best evidence. If anything, your colleague Brett Tingleyâ□□s article on that heavily modified Arizona drone is a great example.

You donâ□□t think an entity designed to collate all data and incidents such as this wouldnâ□□t be helpful for the investigators?

2022-05-28T22:21:54+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1530675760784060416
@strategic_doubt Yes of course monitoring exists. But itâ□□s nearly all under the specific branches tasked with that duty. AOIMSG is akin to the DNI when the IC wasnâ□□t sharing what it knew. Itâ□□s all one sky.

2022-05-28T22:19:56+00:00

@bradjohansson21 Thereâ□□s a gap between what leadership is saying should be done and what is actually being done. I hope that changes as this entity ramps up, and I hope it includes the DHS in itâ□□s scope.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530674809784258560
@bradjohansson21 Weâ□□re having two different conversations. My point is that the bureaucracy shouldnâ□□t require someone like Thompson to collect incidents of strange unidentified things when the DNI and DoD have said that strange unidentified things need to be taken seriously.

2022-05-28T22:11:05+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1530673038303277059

@bradjohansson21 Iâ□□m surprised to have this conversation. What did you think the point of AOIMSG was before?

2022-05-28T22:10:39+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530672930954178567

@bradjohansson21 Hence the point of the legislation. Without a good method to collect all the data as it happens, and the resources to properly analyze it, it will always remain speculative.

There are VERY specific security concerns.

2022-05-28T22:08:52+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530672479336747008

@bradjohansson21 Likewise, if youâ□□re in protected airspace, or a specific airspace that could be of interest to adversaries for whatever reason, then just dismissing weird stuff in the sky that have radar tracks isnâ□□t really a reasonable thing to do. According to the DNI report, that happens.

2022-05-28T22:05:00+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530671505578655744

@bradjohansson21 If itâ□□s the DHS and reasonable cause for concern? Yes? Itâ□□s literally the purpose of their jobs.

2022-05-28T22:01:19+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530670580709462016

@bradjohansson21 Yet the DNI and DepSecDef have already defined it as a problem. One they think should be addressed.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530670325171556352

@bradjohansson21 The logic behind that evergreen and excellent article by Rogoway applies just as much to the work of the DHS as it does to the Navy.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1530670045273018368

@bradjohansson21 that should require further investigation, but nobody like Thompson is there to collect said reports, what happens? If something seen is weird and doesnâ□□t get reported, what if that something weird ends up being a nat sec risk? Seems like a real hole rife for intelligence failure

Last I checked, those tasked with protecting our borders 24/7 consistently seeing things they canâ□□t explain is a legit issue.

Once everybody stops only paying attn to the video, I think this recent Debrief article will remain a great piece to illustrate the absolute need for something like AOIMSG, and itâ□□s scope to include such entities as the FAA and DHS.

@MickWest @HeyLukOverThere @SaltyDawg49 Youâ□□re a year off. New legislation for FY2023 is far more specific in what kind of a incidents the UAP office would like to focus on. The explanatory report that ddeanjohnson linked you to the other day has all the details:backhand_index_pointing_down_light_skin_tone:

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Fg-uD36UAAACfwv.jpg

Modification of Requirement for Office to Address Unidentified Aerospace-Undersea Phenomena

At a time when cross-domain transmedium threats to United States national security are expanding exponentially, the Committee is disappointed with the slow pace of DoD-led efforts to establish the office to address those threats and to replace the former Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force as required in Section 1683 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2022. The Committee was hopeful that the new office would address many of the structural issues hindering progress. To accelerate progress, the Committee has, pursuant to Section 703, renamed the organization formerly known as the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force and the Aerial Object Identification and Management Synchronization Management Group to be the Unidentified Aerospace-Undersea Phenomena Joint Program Office. That change reflects the broader scope of the effort directed by the Congress. Identification, classification, and scientific study of unidentified aerospace-undersea phenomena is an inherently challenging cross-agency, cross-domain problem requiring an integrated or joint Intelligence Community and DoD approach. The new Office will continue to be led by DoD, with a Deputy Director named by the Intelligence Community. The formal DoD and Intelligence Community definition of the terms used by the Office shall be updated to include space and undersea, and the scope of the Office

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/Fg-uD31UYAA-mYC.jpg shall be inclusive of those additional domains with focus on addressing technology surprise and "unknown unknowns." Temporary nonattributed objects, or those that are positively identified as man-made after analysis, will be passed to appropriate offices and should not be considered under the definition as unidentified aerospace-undersea phenomena.

Annual Reports on status of recommendations of Comptroller General of the United States for the Director of National Intelligence

As noted in the Joint Explanatory Statement accompanying the Damon Paul Nelson and Matthew Young Pollard Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Years 2018, 2019, and 2020, the congressional intelligence committees believe the Government Accountability Office (GAO) adds significant value to their oversight efforts. GAO has provided numerous recommendations to improve the functioning and efficiency of the Intelligence Community. However, these improvements can only be achieved through timely and deliberate action taken in response. The committees do not always have sufficient information to understand the status of ODNI actions taken in response to open GAO recommendations, or where, if applicable, ODNI does not plan to take action in response to GAO recommendations. Accordingly, Section 308 directs the Comptroller General to submit an annual report listing all open recommendations made to the DNI. Section 308 further directs the DNI to provide a status update on each recommendation listed in the report.

I think most agree unidentified things in our airspace is a serious issue.

So no matter your view, everyone should be in favor of reducing the stigma surrounding UAP.

The less stigma, the more society at large looks into it, and the closer we come to some answers.

Subject: RE: UAS Activity

Good Afternoon,

The Coast Guard contacted the ORV ALGUITA. The Maser explained that their UAS's can only operate a very short distance from the ship (5-10 ft.) and they've been having difficulty operating them. They do have drones on board and they are operational. It is unknown whether they were flying on the day in question. More information to follow.

Very Respectfully,

In parallel, investigators also sought to deconflict with the Navy's own drone operations in the area. Flight logs shared with the investigators appeared to rule out a case of mistaken identity with Navy assets.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FTYoazQUsAIlLfc.jpg

Asked if the Navy had identified the drones that flew near U.S. warships near the Channel Islands off Southern California, Gilday said: “No, we have not.”

“I am aware of those sightings, and as it’s been reported, there have been other sightings by aviators in the air and by other ships not only of the United States, but other nations – and of course other elements within the U.S. joint force,” Gilday said.

“Those findings have been collected and they still are being analyzed," he said.

The fact that Space Command is the one that is consulting on UFOs is really interesting, considering generally their domain is focused on, well, space.

Per Sheehan, absolutely fascinating news if true.

Hilarious that so many on here were arguing over whether Elizondoâ□□s work on UFOs was known and approved, all the while heâ□□s been Space Commandâ□□s go-to guy.

@paulsanderson Yes, I can agree with that. My main point was just that it feels a bit like living in a twilight zone when all of this is framed as â□□It wasnâ□□t a spaceship harassing our carrier strike group guys, it was likely just adversarial drones :thumbs_up_light_skin_tone:!â□□

And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

But what may be needed first is finding new ways to compel agencies and government personnel to be more forthcoming to Congress.

For instance, lawmakers and staff have been discussing the possibility of taking new steps to encourage individuals with pertinent information to come forward, according to four current and former officials and a pair of congressional staffers.

DEFENSE

'One of the greatest mysteries of our time': Congress to hold UFO hearing next week

BY BRYAN BENDER

The UAP coalition raised the prospect that Congress may need to push legislation to allow personnel who signed nondisclosure agreements or were directed not to discuss their knowledge of incidents to share what they know, as long as they are not publicly revealing classified information.

Truly some incredible quotes from current and former officials in @BryanDBenderâ□□s latest.

This particular excerpt stuck out to me. Feels like the whole purpose behind oversight committees is being lost. Looks like we have a greater issue at hand with DoD oversight in general. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FS6C7iKVUAEPaLT.jpg

"There remains a large gap between the intent of Congress and the actions of the Pentagon," he wrote in a public appeal to the panel on Friday. "Who owns the urgent mission of getting to the bottom of these 'drone' swarms plaguing our ships and bases and what are they doing about it?"

The biggest question may be whether the Pentagon is being fully transparent with Congress.

The intelligence official described another faction inside military and intel agencies "that ... takes this subject very seriously" and is protective of UAP-related data.

"They fetishize their secret society," the official said. "It's kind of a Skull and Bones-type vibe. They take it seriously but they have no accountability. Zero. There is a whole group of us that know in great detail this subject, a lot of which has not been reported to Congress because of security issues."

@1911Moose @ChrisSPITZER7 This does not just seem to be an issue of unknown country of origin. Congress has been explicit that this is not just drones, but technology they currently canâ□□t account for.

@UAP_daily @MickWest @EricRWeinstein It doesnâ□□t though. Iâ□□d argue what Mick is doing right now is succumbing to â□□belief.â□□ I want evidence. I want accounts of what kind of data our leaders are seeing.

2022-05-14T06:08:31+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525357369932140549

@SilvaRecord @MickWest @EricRWeinstein They absolutely led to Congress asking for the briefings. But is AAWSAP currently behind the briefings? Elizondo and Mellon are certainly working behind the scenes, but when the Dep Director of Naval Intelligence is briefing ppl, I canâ□□t help but roll my eyes at Mickâ□□s tweet.

2022-05-14T06:04:50+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525356441762004992

@caitgaist The publicity got congress to ask for briefings and look into it, absolutely. Yet after years of briefings, our congressional committees have only been increasingly engaged. In a bipartisan manner. Then a DNI report. It would seem thereâ□□s something to the issue.

2022-05-14T06:01:43+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525355659008479232

@caitgaist @SkinwalkerTruth @MickWest @EricRWeinstein Yes, I think thatâ□□s why everyone is screaming for more info :grinning_face_with_sweat:.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525355238873387008

@SilvaRecord @MickWest @EricRWeinstein Ok cool. Glad weâ□□re seeing the same thing. And this is where he really loses me. Congress and their staffers didnâ□□t even start getting briefed until 2018. Hence me trying to figure out why he thinks Lacatski, Reid, and AAWSAP are behind these â□□deceivingâ□□ briefings.

2022-05-14T05:52:53+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525353434072743936

@SilvaRecord @MickWest @EricRWeinstein Unless Iâ□□m reading this wrong, Mick seems to actually think that our government is currently being deceived, but cited Lacatski and a 10 year old program.

2022-05-14T05:31:34+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525348070094823425

@SilvaRecord @MickWest @EricRWeinstein Right, one thing absolutely led to another. But is Lacatski currently involved in briefing Congress? No.

2022-05-14T04:58:18+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1525339699182567424

@caitgaist @SkinwalkerTruth @MickWest @EricRWeinstein The important question is what data is being presented in the classified briefings? Clearly our leaders are seeing something. You wouldnâ□□t have vice chiefs recommending the briefings to other vice chiefs or Congress writing legislation. Or calling for hearings for that matter.

2022-05-14T02:40:43+00:00

2022-05-11T20:07:23+00:00

@bradjohansson21 @ChadPergram @zcichy We donâ□□t know what the IC has said about the data, because so far no one has said anything specific. Thatâ□□s what we need to find out. Mellon clearly has a bias, and I donâ□□t think anyone serious will solely rely on the estimate of the situation from him.

2022-05-11T20:03:39+00:00

@fringequest No reporter worth their salt is basing anything solely on the wrds of Elizondo. Or any major player of the last 5 years. The bias is clear.

Nobody has been able to successfully explain to me how this â□□issueâ□□ with Elizondo has anything to do with what is going on in congress now @stevebozz1 @UAPorSAP orchestrated by many and Mellon flexing political muscle.

I agree that their efforts probably got Congress to look when they otherwise maybe wouldnâ□□t of. But do you think they are ONLY engaging with this topic because of campaign donations and political favors?

@UAPorSAP The $22mil program was called AAWSAP.

Elizondo and others have called AAWSAP AATIP. I donâ□□t know why.

Reporters have always said after funding dried up, AATIP became a small effort that ppl did in addition to their other duties. From everything Iâ□□ve seen, that remains true.

@UAPorSAP 2. There are two separate things that are confusingly being combined because at times both were called AATIP.

The bootstrapped effort after 2009 when funding went away was also called AATIP, and was reported as thus by all media outlets since the beginning.

And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. Assumptions

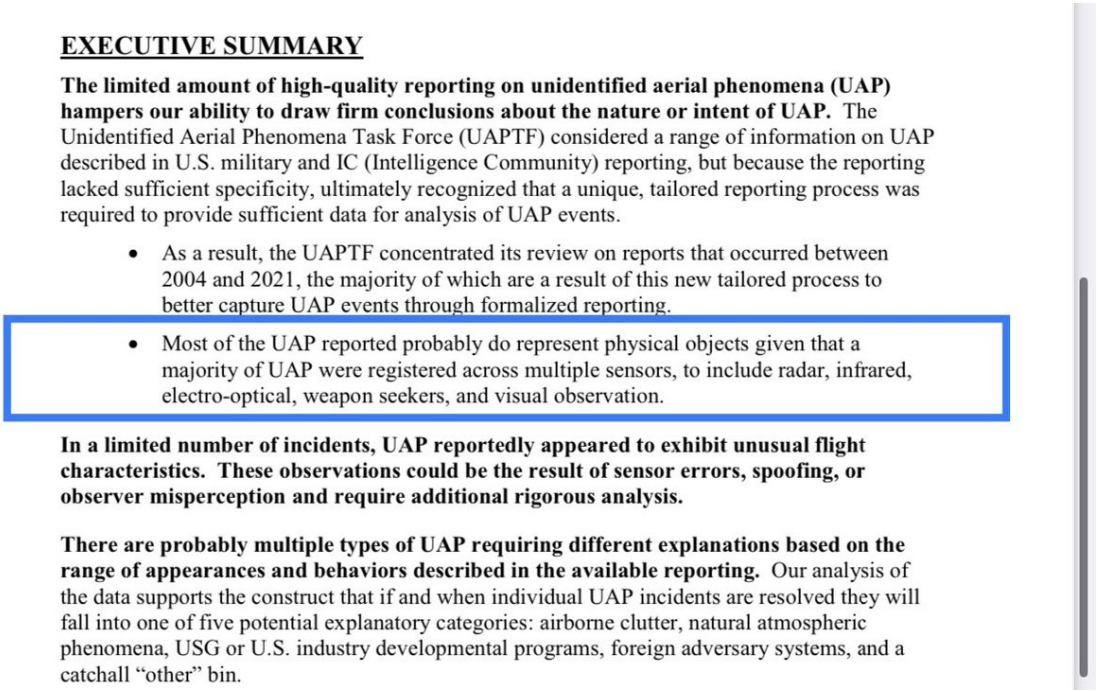
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FRyI8kEVIAApdct.jpg



EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The limited amount of high-quality reporting on unidentified aerial phenomena (UAP) hampers our ability to draw firm conclusions about the nature or intent of UAP. The Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF) considered a range of information on UAP described in U.S. military and IC (Intelligence Community) reporting, but because the reporting lacked sufficient specificity, ultimately recognized that a unique, tailored reporting process was required to provide sufficient data for analysis of UAP events.

- As a result, the UAPTF concentrated its review on reports that occurred between 2004 and 2021, the majority of which are a result of this new tailored process to better capture UAP events through formalized reporting.
- Most of the UAP reported probably do represent physical objects given that a majority of UAP were registered across multiple sensors, to include radar, infrared, electro-optical, weapon seekers, and visual observation.

In a limited number of incidents, UAP reportedly appeared to exhibit unusual flight characteristics. These observations could be the result of sensor errors, spoofing, or observer misperception and require additional rigorous analysis.

There are probably multiple types of UAP requiring different explanations based on the range of appearances and behaviors described in the available reporting. Our analysis of the data supports the construct that if and when individual UAP incidents are resolved they will fall into one of five potential explanatory categories: airborne clutter, natural atmospheric phenomena, USG or U.S. industry developmental programs, foreign adversary systems, and a catchall "other" bin.

@MiddleOfMayhem @LuAngeles @BryanDBender @DeptofDefense FWIW McMillanâ□□s reporting has said this:

Ratcliffe has also mentioned satellite imagery, and things moving faster than the speed of sound with no sonic boom. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FRxR3nLVEAA32Fl.jpg

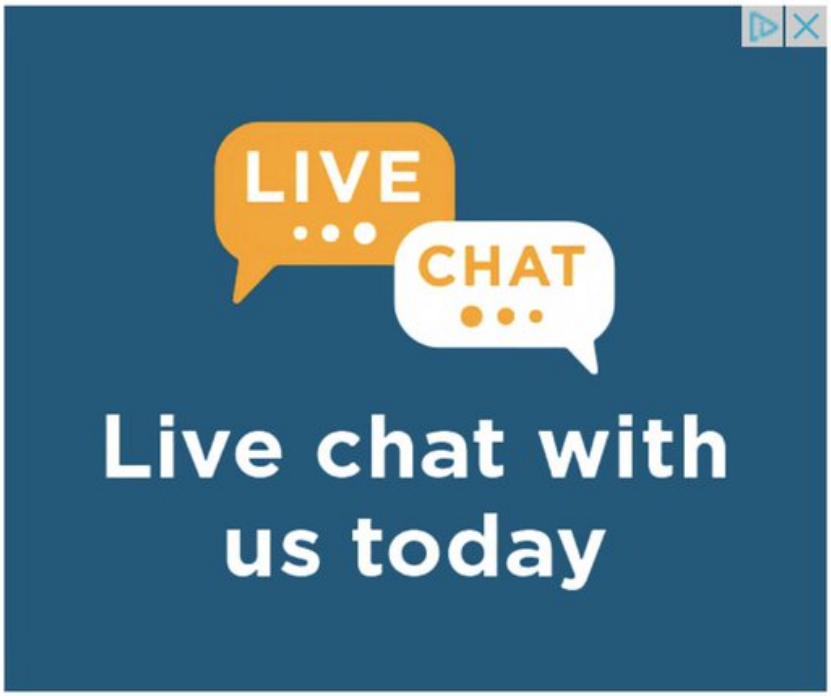
One active defense official familiar with the current UAP investigations said the UAPTF has a wealth of photographic evidence, collected from military pilots' personal devices as well as sophisticated DoD surveillance and reconnaissance platforms. The source also told us some of the best evidence the UAPTF has acquired comes from measurement and signature intelligence (MASINT), rather than from videos or still images.



Although officials we spoke with didn't provide any specifics to this point, it is assumed that any Top Secret or Sensitive Compartmentalized Information used to help form the UAPTF's current opinions would not have been included in the UAP position reports, based on their widespread distribution.

@MiddleOfMayhem @LuAngeles @BryanDBender @DeptofDefense Iâ□□d love the answer to this.

Itâ□□s a question Iâ□□ve been asking for years now ever since comments like this from congress began.

Is this from what theyâ□□re seeing in classified briefings? What theyâ□□re being told? Whatâ□□s the kind of data being used to conclude this?

The theme of congressional oversight committees not being given the whole picture continues.

Is it intentional or just a result of poor organization and collection methods?

â□¢To me, the biggest nugget in here is a comment from a â□□former senior intelligence official, who had authority over the UFO portfolioâ□□ :

â□□â□¦I am very confident they are not ours .â□□ http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FRxM0n3VkAAYV9D.jpg

Others said that while officials are doing a better job of collecting reports of UAPs, they are still reluctant to dedicate more intelligence assets to determine whether some of the reported craft might belong to a foreign nation or if they are extraterrestrial in nature.

“I have seen everything we have [in the files] and I am very confident they are not ours,” said a former senior intelligence official who had authority over the UFO portfolio, referring to classified U.S. aircraft programs.

I have noticed an increase in some hostility by some folks leveled at people they happen to disagree with. Itâs unnecessary and is really awful for fostering an environment to share ideas about a topic we know little about.

@ThanosAlpha @PostDisclosure I totally agree, and thatâs a great thread. This kind behavior is a reality online. If someone is harassing or doxxing somebody, itâs because theyâre a troubled person, not because theyâre into UFOs :winking_face:.

@DyceGuthrie Indeed, I think the Oct report is really going to spell out the direction this is going to go (within the USG at least) for the coming years.

If anecdotal evidence is to be believed, there seem to be consistent ongoing incidents w/ UAP among our armed services.

Congressional comments and action have only increased. The very thing that made this interesting for me has only intensified. I certainly wish we could take some of the focus from 2007-10 AAWSAP/AATIP to why our gov is engaging with this problem NOW.

2022-04-27T16:50:08+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1519358244627509248

What made me start to seriously take a look at this topic were comments directly from Warner and Rubio (chair & vice chair of the SSCI and members of the gang of 8). @ThanosAlpha There is a serious gap between this âhouse of cardsâ and whatâs going on in congress today that isnât being addressed. Benderâs tweets raise good questions, but I wish we were talking about how that affects the NOW, not just 10+ years ago.

@BrettTingley Noted, but you get my point, right? The UK is naming China in specific drone incursions. Has the US done that yet?

@jason_jarnagin @MindfulOfLight Not saying he shouldnâ□□t be thanked, but the above line of thinking is a one way ticket to cult of personality. Nobody is above scrutiny, and Iâ□□m sure Elizondo himself would agree & be uncomfortable with what was said above.

@MindfulOfLight I definitely disagree here. This issue isnâ□□t owned by anybody, and if itâ□□s reliant on a few people to keep it from devolving to â□□selling charms and worshipping starseeds,â□□ then thatâ□□s damning of the topic and those who are following it.

And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518073544231452672

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP The deck logs are from the 2019 incidents and guess what? I think theyâ□□re drones. There are 143 incidents in the DNI report and we will prob never see the data for them. Which is why speculation over them is a waste of time.

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP No, you werenâ□□t clear. And your rhetoric is unnecessarily combative. This conversation keeps shifting itâ□□s goalposts & now weâ□□re now in speculation land.

I could go at length as to why i donâ□□t agree with this, but thereâ□□s no evidence so itâ□□s just your opinion vs mine.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518061734430347265

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP The USAF not fully cooperating is a problem, but does that invalidate the data coming out of the Navy and other armed services? Of course not.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518058786300186624

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP â□□Theyâ□□ would be someone in the Navy. That was also 1 example.

You think Congress is seeing only pictures of drones and then saying publicly â□□we have no idea what it is, but itâ□□s more advanced than what we have?â□□

You think the DNI wouldnâ□□t mention that fact in their report?

2022-04-24T02:39:34+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518057029251739648

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP Have you read my pinned thread by chance? All these things youâ□□re asking if they are happening or not are pretty much verbatim what those being briefed are saying is happening. So either itâ□□s happening or theyâ□□re wrong.

2022-04-24T02:27:22+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518053958723407872

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP None of us have any insight as to if they have enough. But itâ□□s easy to know, because they themselves are saying they donâ□□t have enough data.

2022-04-24T02:25:35+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518053508603293697

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP reporting these incursions, collecting data on them, and then sharing said data all into one repository. Thatâ□□s now changing.

2022-04-24T02:25:03+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1518053375534768129

@ToddRaymondL @UAPorSAP We have those who are supposed to know saying â□□we donâ□□t know, we need more data.â□□

If things are consistently breaking into our airspace and we canâ□□t account for them thatâ□□s a problem. A problem made worse by a stigma.

Our system wasnâ□□t currently set up well to do a good job

> But everything changed when Sean Kirkpatrick, the newly appointed head of the Pentagon's All-Domain Anomaly Resolution Office (AARO) showed up at Loeb's home, he said, and asked him to look into the phenomenon of UAPs. According to Loeb, Kirkpatrick didn't mention the Kyiv report specifically. Loeb recalled it later that evening and decided to work through its observations in the morning. Within an hour he concluded that they got the distance to their dark objects wrong by "a factor of ten," he said in a writeup of his observations on Medium.

@MiddleOfMayhem @SKEPTICLBELIEVR @PontificatorOMF So a pentagon program CAN be official in your opinion even if itâ□□s not funded? Iâ□□m confused.

But to you, no funding = no program. So, what I just donâ□□t understand is if reporting has said it had no funding from the get go, why didnâ□□t you always think there was no program? What changed?

@MiddleOfMayhem @SKEPTICLBELIEVR @PontificatorOMF If you donâ□□t consider a program official unless it has appropriated funds then shouldnâ□□t you have felt this way since the very beginning? All the reporting has always been clear efforts involved post AAWSAP were without funding. This is from 2017 http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQ_B53hUUAAHrY8.jpg Still, Mr. Oberg said he welcomed research. "There could well be a pearl there," he said.

In response to questions from The Times, Pentagon officials this month acknowledged the existence of the program, which began as part of the Defense Intelligence Agency. Officials insisted that the effort had ended after five years, in 2012.

"It was determined that there were other, higher priority issues that merited funding, and it was in the best interest of the DoD to make a change," a Pentagon spokesman, Thomas Crosson, said in an email, referring to the Department of Defense.

But Mr. Elizondo said the only thing that had ended was the effort's government funding, which dried up in 2012. From then on, Mr. Elizondo said in an interview, he worked with officials from the Navy and the C.I.A. He continued to work out of his Pentagon office until this past October, when he resigned to protest what he characterized as excessive secrecy and internal opposition.

"Why aren't we spending more time and effort on this issue?" Mr. Elizondo wrote in a resignation letter to Defense Secretary Jim Mattis.

REMARKS (Continued)

([redacted]) On 9 Mar 18, AFOSI Detachment 334 (DET), Pentagon, Washington, DC, received confirmation from Civ [redacted] Unauthorized Disclosure Office, 1550 Crystal City Drive, Arlington, VA the videos released by SUBJECT to the media were determined to be [redacted]. [redacted] submitted the videos to Civ [redacted] Division Head, Naval Air Warfare Center - Aircraft Division, Naval Air Station Patuxent River, MD, who in turn submitted the videos to Civ [redacted] Deputy Security Manager, FA-18 Program Office, Naval Air Station Patuxent River, MD, who sent the lead to the Radar and EO_IR IPT office. The result was "No sensitive symbology or other items of concern."

([redacted]) On 12 Mar 18, DET 334 conducted an interview of [redacted] explained the videos did not go through the proper channels to obtain their declassification, although the videos are [redacted]. [redacted] stated the videos would not undergo the formal declassification process just because they were inadvertently released to the public. [redacted] relayed there was no indication the videos were classified in the first place. [redacted] stated 100% of all F-18 videos go through his office for declassification and public release. [redacted] stated the videos which SUBJECT released never went through his office. [redacted] explained there were no identifying features on the videos to determine when or where the videos came from in order to find out who would have originally classified them. This made it difficult to find the exact video. [redacted] explained individual units kept track of their footage, but did not keep every video. Some videos were kept for training purposes and some for situations such as SUBJECT's public release of unauthorized videos [redacted]

([redacted]) On 13 Apr 18, [redacted] contacted SA [redacted] and confirmed that after conducting an official classification review, the three videos obtained by SUBJECT were confirmed to be UNCLASSIFIED. [redacted] stated the Unauthorized Disclosure Program Management Office considered the matter closed.

CONCLUSION:

AFOSI Det 334 considers this matter closed and will forward the appropriate documentation to the Under Secretary of Defense Intelligence, Pentagon, Washington DC for action.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQ6Oc9rUYAI0vq4.jpg

Simply put, my experience with Susan Gough has been the worst I have had with any of the Defense Department's public affairs personnel, ever. What has transpired, or more accurately what hasn't transpired, over the last six months leaves me with no confidence or trust in this official representing the DoD on the issue. This is not personal in any way. She may be a wonderful person, but her behavior has been a clear example of everything the Pentagon's media operations should not be and it certainly is not due to a lack of training or experience. Her resume is impressive and may even be concerning to some who are seeking some morsel of truth regarding this bizarre and historically tortured issue.

My experience is not unique in any way. Others who are working this story have had similar experiences almost to a laughable degree. The reason why so many journalists are interacting with her at all on this issue is that she now holds the entire media/public affairs portfolio on UFOs within the DoD. Sometime shortly before I submitted my questions, the decision was made to funnel every request regarding this issue to her and her alone. The services no longer had control of their own messaging on the matter. Why this decision was made has not been made clear.

@JonesSmythe Google it. You are making claims re: # of cases, I ask you why you think this, and it seems you don't really know.

if you think 1 country can have more cases than China, France, Japan, all of South America, and Canada combined, I'd love to see what makes you so sure.

@JonesSmythe Don't you see the issue here? You have no idea. You don't know even if organizations in these countries exist to receive such reports or if they are publicly available. This reminds me a lot of when Mick West posted this:

South America has a crazy amount of sightings as well as official UFO programs @MiddleOfMayhem @thoreauawhelan My take on this would be a program whoâ□□s scope and mission is solely focused on UAP? The FAA and NORAD do come into contact with this issue, but it is not their topic of focus nor are they trying to solve it.

@MiddleOfMayhem Iâ□□ve never said I wanted reporters to cover Mellon or his comments.

I want them to report on the very concerns you yourself have brought up many times. Unidentified incursions in our airspace are a potential nat sec issue.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1516932872849920001

@MiddleOfMayhem It makes sense for reporters to cover nat sec issues & new laws written by our committees re: unidentified incursions in our airspace. Thatâ□□ll happen a lot sooner than just reporting on his opinion. Maybe it would be a quote within the article if they asked him for comment?

@strategic_doubt @MiddleOfMayhem Indeed. The lack of any reporting on the manner isnâ□□t helping. Some sunlight & pointed questions from the press could possibly help bring some clarity to this mess.

I myself am concerned about the 18 cases potentially displaying advanced capabilities. Thatâ□□s not good.

underway at the Pentagon to study UAPs encountered by military personnel. AATIP involved a small group of people working on the UAP problem, with direct knowledge of their superiors, when their day jobs allowed them to.

The New York Times article created enormous confusion by mistakenly linking the $22 million funding to the small informal AATIP initiative. The $22 million was specifically targeted only to AAWSAP. AATIP, as used by The New York Times was not AAWSAP, and AAWSAP was not AATIP. The $22 million was contracted through the Defense Intelligence Agency into AAWSAP to evaluate the threat potential of UAPs. Not a dollar of that sum went to AATIP despite widespread statements over the last several years.

Background

James T. Lacatski was the primary creator of AAWSAP, as we detail in this book. Once the program had been down selected from the response to the Request for Proposals (RFP), Lacatski became the DIA program manager, contracting officer representative (COR), security coordinator, and counterintelligence the program.

AAWSAP Was Not AATIP

This book is written by the two program managers, Drs. James T. Lacatski and Colm A. Kelleher, who oversaw the day-to-day operations of the AAWSAP BAASS program and is an attempt to correct the record and present scientific data reinforcing the need to explore UAPs and related phenomena. George Knapp, who is arguably the premier journalistic authority in the world on this program, contributed significantly to the book.

AAWSAP BAASS was not AATIP. The AATIP moniker arose from an unclassified nickname that was inserted into a letter that was sent from Senator Harry Reid to the Deputy Secretary of Defense requesting the creation of a Special Access Program (SAP). This letter is described fully in Chapter 10. Because Lacatski, the DIA program manager, wished to protect the AAWSAP name for security reasons, AATIP was a "made up" substitute name for Reid's letter to describe the AAWSAP.

After AAWSAP had shut down, the AATIP designation was used to describe a completely separate, small initiative that was @mjbanias @MiddleOfMayhem This is what makes all of this maddeningly confusing. A DIA spokesman may have said that, but the manager of the entire contract, Lacatski, claims it was always AAWSAP, and AATIP was only ever used in Reidâ□□s letter :man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:

Given the recorded flight chatter, numerous witnesses and numerous incidents, I find being â□□punktâ□□ increasingly unlikely. These pilots are seeing something irregular. What it is is up for debate.

@ReconStrange I personally think the conclusion of IG is BS. Hard to believe they couldnâ□□t conclude this as sexual harassment. But do you think they fabricated testimony?

2022-04-16T19:00:38+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1515404819845943298

@ReconStrange I think a negative reaction to what was reported in the IG and to statements like these below is pretty darn reasonable. Especially given his high rank in public office and "If you tell Reid, 'I'm really not comfortable with that, that's really inappropriate,' then you have Hell to pay. Your life is miserable. And it just wasn't worth it. So you put up with it," Employee 2 was quoted.

"I just felt like this is a real crappy thing that I have to put up with. … So, I don't, I mean, it's not like I was like, 'Oh my God, I've been violated. I need to call the sexual assault helpline," said Employee 2 when asked how the kisses and hugs made her feel.

> "Like, I'm so conditioned to just deal with it. [It] sucks that women have to put up with this, and I'm one of them, and it's just part of doing business."

The dynamics of the IG's investigation quickly changed when Employee 2 denied that she had been in a sexual relationship with Reid, instead claiming she had been the victim of repeated sexual harassment.

According to the IG's report, Reid had "kissed and hugged" Employee 2 in the workplace on multiple occasions, something Employee 2 said made her "uncomfortable" and was "unwelcome and inappropriate."

Employee 2 said Reid kissed and hugged her "always in the context of some goodbye" or after a heated exchange as a "let's make up [and] let's hug it out."

During hugs, Employee 2 said she would always try to turn her head away because Reid "would try to kiss her on the 'cheek or closer.'" Employee 2 said Reid would kiss her on the "mouth, side of the mouth, or cheek, depending on how quickly she could move her head."

Employee 2 admitted she had never confronted Reid, who was her supervisor, about the unwanted interactions out of fear of the consequences.

@trelayne @DyceGuthrie â□□In sensitive areas like national security reporting, it can be unavoidable.â□□

In terms of political reporting, often those being quoted would lose their careers if outed for going public.

The unfortunate side is it can also be an intentional leak for their own benefit w/ http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQb8oTtVIAIfTDY.jpg

At best, granting anonymity allows us to reveal the atrocities of terror groups, government abuses or other situations where sources may risk their lives, freedom or careers by talking to us. In sensitive areas like national security reporting, it can be unavoidable. But in other cases, readers question whether anonymity allows unnamed people to skew a story in favor of their own agenda. In rare cases, we have published information from anonymous sources without enough questions or skepticism – and it has turned out to be wrong.

Given that they were indeed unclassified, Elizondo could have, at most, potentially committed an administrative violation for publicly releasing the videos before they had been cleared by the Defense Office of Prepublication and Security Review (DOPSR).

From the onset, had AFOSI been aware of this, they would have known that an investigation was pointless since Elizondo was no longer working for the DoD. Nevertheless, the impression that the videos were classified caused it to become a criminal matter, which allowed AFOSI to initiate the investigation.

After over four months of investigation, AFOSI arrived at the same conclusion that should have been abundantly clear from the beginning: "The three videos obtained by the SUBJECT were confirmed to be UNCLASSIFIED." Both AFOSI and the Unauthorized Disclosure Program Management Office considered the matter closed on April 13, 2018.

Copies of AFOSI's final report were forwarded for "Action" to OUSDI, acknowledging OUSDI as the office initially requesting the investigation.

@bradjohansson21 @MusicAndTruth @MrHustleMCR @Go_Kick_Rocks88 Months later, AFOSI says the same thing. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQZWlTpVUAMltXk.jpg

Speaking under the condition of anonymity, a senior defense official who had firsthand knowledge of the incident told The Debrief they knew for certain that the 2017-2018 AFOSI investigation was done at the behest of Reid as a way of retaliating against Elizondo.

Reid's aim, reportedly, was to try and get Elizondo's security clearance revoked. Treating it as a counterintelligence matter only ensured increased scrutiny.

"OSI all but came back and told him [Reid] it was improper use of their resources. Based on his position, they couldn't actually say that, but if you read between the lines on the report, that's what you see."

According to the Defense official, this was far from the only act of retribution Reid took against Elizondo.

"Reid had USDI Security put an entry in Elizondo's file on Scattered Castles, which is the clearance system used for IC interagency clearance passage, so that if he tried to go to any SCIF in the IC, Reid would get a call and be able to cause questions so that Interagency partners would come to believe there was a 'problem' and not let him in," the Defense official explained.

The dynamics of the IG's investigation quickly changed when Employee 2 denied that she had been in a sexual relationship with Reid, instead claiming she had been the victim of repeated sexual harassment.

According to the IG's report, Reid had "kissed and hugged" Employee 2 in the workplace on multiple occasions, something Employee 2 said made her "uncomfortable" and was "unwelcome and inappropriate."

Employee 2 said Reid kissed and hugged her "always in the context of some goodbye" or after a heated exchange as a "let's make up [and] let's hug it out."

During hugs, Employee 2 said she would always try to turn her head away because Reid "would try to kiss her on the 'cheek or closer.'" Employee 2 said Reid would kiss her on the "mouth, side of the mouth, or cheek, depending on how quickly she could move her head."

Employee 2 admitted she had never confronted Reid, who was her supervisor, about the unwanted interactions out of fear of the consequences.

@blackvaultcom The OUSDI had instigated the AFOSI investigation 3 days after Elizondoâ□□s resignation. The point person for that would have been the position Reid held at that time.

2022-04-15T03:01:31+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1514801063685091331

@blackvaultcom I was referring to the parts before what you highlighted: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQWnibTUcBYP5NF.jpg

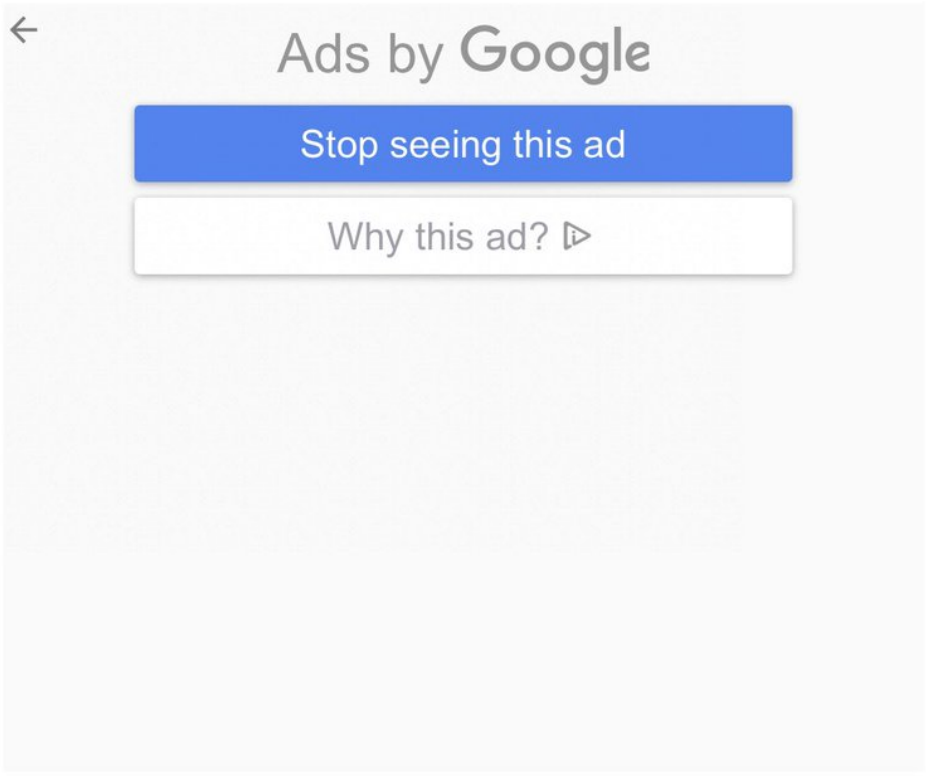
Given that they were indeed unclassified, Elizondo could have, at most, potentially committed an administrative violation for publicly releasing the videos before they had been cleared by the Defense Office of Prepublication and Security Review (DOPSR).

From the onset, had AFOSI been aware of this, they would have known that an investigation was pointless since Elizondo was no longer working for the DoD. Nevertheless, the impression that the videos were classified caused it to become a criminal matter, which allowed AFOSI to initiate the investigation.

After over four months of investigation, AFOSI arrived at the same conclusion that should have been abundantly clear from the beginning: "The three videos obtained by the SUBJECT were confirmed to be UNCLASSIFIED." Both AFOSI and the Unauthorized Disclosure Program Management Office considered the matter closed on April 13, 2018.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQWnibXVUAA7XzO.jpg

Copies of AFOSI's final report were forwarded for "Action" to OUSDI, acknowledging OUSDI as the office initially requesting the investigation.



The person working out of OUSDI in charge of all counterintelligence, security, and law enforcement operations for the DoD at the time had been Garry Reid.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FQWnibTUcBYP5NF.jpg

A copy of the final report obtained by The Debrief via the Freedom of Information Act indicates AFOSI's primary task was to investigate the release of the three UAP videos under the presumption these videos were classified. The report notes the videos were classified as Secret/No Foreign.

The fact that AFOSI investigators initially thought the videos were Secret is intriguing.

The DoD has since admitted the three brief clips were never classified. Additionally, emails obtained through FOIA show that this was abundantly clear as far back as the summer of 2017, when Elizondo was trying to get the videos cleared for public release.

@blackvaultcom I mean, the contents in the IG arenâ□□t in question. The ultimate reason for Garry Reid's dismissal from the DoD remains unknown.

When The Debrief reached out to Public Affairs to clarify if Reid had voluntarily resigned or was terminated, the Department of Defense declined to comment.

Current and former Defense officials familiar with the situation said the official claimed reason for Reid's ousting remains a mystery to them as well. However, out of the Officials who spoke with The Debrief, all universally said it was likely from a combination of factors and that investigation into Lue Elizondo's formal complaint by the IG Office likely uncovered all sorts of nasty skeletons.

@InvNightSchool @MHuntington7 Yes. If you look, or listen to the reporters who have talked to many pilots off the record, there are many stories like Dayâ□□s.

But even if there werenâ□□t, the main issue is that they were scared to say something. You can see how that is a potential nat sec issue.

2022-04-11T14:47:26+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1513529161255583747

@InvNightSchool @MHuntington7 The issue with stigma stems from those within our armed services, not some folks on Twitter.

If you potentially ruin your career by reporting something safety related, that IS really awful.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1513526501903241218

@UAPorSAP Thereâ□□s a material sciences factor to consider as well. If the Tic Tac is ours, speeds reported must just straight up be wrong unless weâ□□ve really made some multi-generational advancements. Anything we can make would utterly destroy itself at these speeds.

@blackvaultcom IMO itâ□□s pretty obvious AAWSAP was created with Bigelowâ□□s name on it. That kind of thing is done all the time.

But there are methods of oversight within DIA arenâ□□t there? Theyâ□□d have to be on board how the money was being used too, no? Or is it that easy to just sidestep?

The DNI was created in 2005 to facilitate the sharing of information to avoid Intel failures and these congressional committees have never been engaged at this level, and Iâ□□m not sure the DepSecDef has ever commented or been invoked in UAP before.

'There are a lot of cases of things that instantaneously appear and instantaneously disappear.

'There are a lot that will instantly disappear and then instantly appear close by but in another angle of sight. In a blink of an eye it will not appear to be directly ahead of you but will appear to be 30 degrees to the right, or 30 degrees to the left.

'Some of them did come close, and make them become unconscious and they woke up burned or injured.'

Green said around one in ten of his patients died within seven years of their reported encounter.

A small percentage of the professor's patients even said they encountered 'something cloaked that was a human being'.

He said he was even aware of injuries from encounters with UFOs 'near the White House' and over the Capitol Mall, though he said he had not personally treated any of those cases and declined to comment further.

Despite the strangeness of his patients' descriptions, Green said their injuries could all be explained by current human technology, including advanced microwave and radio frequency non-lethal weapons developed by the US and other countries.

'I don't have to invent aliens in order to explain the cases that I get,' he said.

'Because I'm a forensic neurologist and a brain imager, I'm the go-to physician in the Department of Defense for unexplained morbidity and mortality,' Green said.

'I do look at injuries and mortality from unidentified UAPs.

'My client population is heavily within intelligence, Department of Defense, Special Forces, aerospace industry, people that work under contract for aerospace companies that get ill and they don't know why.

'What my cases are exposed to are things they see in daylight, with witnesses under battle conditions, in circumstances of test and evaluation at advanced facilities.'

Green said many of his patients experienced burns and brain damage from their encounters with 'unidentified aerial phenomena'.

He listed his patients' varied descriptions of getting up close to a 'big drone', a 'silent drone' – or something even stranger.

'Sometimes they hovered. Sometimes they moved in odd ways,' he said. 'Some did show clear, advanced cloaking. Some did show emanations of funny lights, patterns and strobes.

@TheUfoJoe @GarryPNolan wants the academic community to take this topic more seriously, I get concerned when I see things in a paper that may make other professionals dismiss it out of hand.

@bradjohansson21 @TheUfoJoe @GarryPNolan No, I think if thereâ□□s a thing to this and I was a scientist tasked with figuring it out, one of the first things Iâ□□d need is an actual uniform way of collecting good data. Secondhand stories in magazines and reported cases through MUFON arenâ□□t very good on that scale.

@Jtooshygrimsley @TheUfoJoe @GarryPNolan Iâ□□m criticizing the sources in a research paper, not the topic at large. IMO, itâ□□s a valid criticism, and I think any reader of academic research papers would agree that some of these citations are problematic.

@DeepSpace41 @JonesSmythe @ToddRaymondL @Borders750 You may want to take a deeper look into it beyond its Wikipedia page. The report contents itself go quite against the summary. Every journalist who has looked into it has come to the same conclusions. This is from the New Yorker article: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FPmHFvYUYAIS49P.jpg

The thousand-page "Scientific Study of Unidentified Flying Objects," or the Condon Report, as it became known, was completed in the late fall of 1968. Of the ninety-one Blue Book cases selected for examination, thirty of them remained official mysteries. In a "puzzling and unusual" incident in 1956, a preternaturally fast object was recorded on multiple radars near a U.S. Air Force base in England. One of Condon's researchers wrote that "the apparently rational, intelligent behavior of the UFO suggests a mechanical device of unknown origin as the most probable explanation of this sighting." As Tim McMillan, a retired police lieutenant who writes about U.F.O.s and national defense, put it to me, "You didn't even need the other seven hundred cases. You only needed one like that to say, 'Hey, we should look into this.' "

The thousand-page “Scientific Study of Unidentified Flying Objects,” or the Condon Report, as it became known, was completed in the late fall of 1968. Of the ninety-one Blue Book cases selected for examination, thirty of them remained official mysteries. In a “puzzling and unusual” incident in 1956, a preternaturally fast object was recorded on multiple radars near a U.S. Air Force base in England. One of Condon’s researchers wrote that “the apparently rational, intelligent behavior of the UFO suggests a mechanical device of unknown origin as the most probable explanation of this sighting.” As Tim McMillan, a retired police lieutenant who writes about U.F.O.s and national defense, put it to me, “You didn’t even need the other seven hundred cases. You only needed one like that to say, ‘Hey, we should look into this.’ ”

DEPUTY SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
1010 DEFENSE PENTAGON
WASHINGTON, DC 20301-1010

JUN 25 2021

MEMORANDUM FOR SENIOR PENTAGON LEADERSHIP
COMMANDERS OF THE COMBATANT COMMANDS
DEFENSE AGENCY AND DOD FIELD ACTIVITY DIRECTORS

SUBJECT: Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Assessments

A recent report from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) highlights the current challenges associated with assessing Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) occurring on or near DoD training ranges and installations. It is critical that the United States maintain operations security and safety at DoD ranges. To this end, it is equally critical that all U.S. military aircrews or government personnel report whenever aircraft or other devices interfere with military training. This includes the observation and reporting of UAPs.

The report also confirmed that the scope of UAP activity expands significantly beyond the purview of the Secretary of the Navy, who heads the Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF), and suggested process improvements to ensure timely collection of consistent data on UAP. Consistent with these recommendations and to improve partnership with the ODNI and other non-DoD organizations, I direct the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security to develop a plan to formalize the mission currently performed by the UAPTF. The plan should:

1. Establish procedures to synchronize collection, reporting and analysis on the UAP problem set, and to establish recommendations for securing military test and training ranges.

2. Identify requirements for the establishment and operation of the new activity, to include the organizational alignment, resources and staffing required, as well as any necessary authorities and a timeline for implementation.

3. Be developed in coordination with the Principal Staff Assistants, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Secretaries of the Military Departments, and the Commanders of the Combatant Commands and with the DNI and other relevant interagency partners.

All members of the Department will utilize these processes to ensure that the UAPTF, or its follow-on activity, has reports of UAP observations within two weeks of an occurrence.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1511072656140898307
@JonesSmythe @ToddRaymondL @Borders750 The DNI report listed the stigma as a major issue since pilots were concerned about repercussions for reporting incidents. You donâ□□t see that as a problem? http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FPhokkhVcAIPoDz.jpg

AVAILABLE REPORTING LARGELY INCONCLUSIVE

Limited Data Leaves Most UAP Unexplained…

Limited data and inconsistency in reporting are key challenges to evaluating UAP. No standardized reporting mechanism existed until the Navy established one in March 2019. The Air Force subsequently adopted that mechanism in November 2020, but it remains limited to USG reporting. The UAPTF regularly heard anecdotally during its research about other observations that occurred but which were never captured in formal or informal reporting by those observers.

After carefully considering this information, the UAPTF focused on reports that involved UAP largely witnessed firsthand by military aviators and that were collected from systems we considered to be reliable. These reports describe incidents that occurred between 2004 and 2021, with the majority coming in the last two years as the new reporting mechanism became better known to the military aviation community. We were able to identify one reported UAP with high confidence. In that case, we identified the object as a large, deflating balloon. The others remain unexplained.

- 144 reports originated from USG sources. Of these, 80 reports involved observation with multiple sensors.
    - Most reports described UAP as objects that interrupted pre-planned training or other military activity.

UAP Collection Challenges

Sociocultural stigmas and sensor limitations remain obstacles to collecting data on UAP. Although some technical challenges—such as how to appropriately filter out radar clutter to ensure safety of flight for military and civilian aircraft—are longstanding in the aviation community, while others are unique to the UAP problem set.

- Narratives from aviators in the operational community and analysts from the military and IC describe disparagement associated with observing UAP, reporting it, or attempting to discuss it with colleagues. Although the effects of these stigmas have lessened as senior members of the scientific, policy, military, and intelligence communities engage on the topic seriously in public, reputational risk may keep many observers silent, complicating scientific pursuit of the topic.
- The sensors mounted on U.S. military platforms are typically designed to fulfill specific missions. As a result, those sensors are not generally suited for identifying UAP.
- Sensor vantage points and the numbers of sensors concurrently observing an object play substantial roles in distinguishing UAP from known objects and determining whether a UAP demonstrates breakthrough aerospace capabilities. Optical sensors have the benefit of providing some insight into relative size, shape, and structure. Radiofrequency sensors provide more accurate velocity and range information.

@ddeanjohnson @MiddleOfMayhem @dave_beaty @blackvaultcom This would add up. Per @LtTimMcMillanâ□□s reporting, Neil Tipton took over AATIP from Elizondo, but then responsibilities were transferred to a â□□senior officialâ□□ at ONI in early 2018.
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FPgwbuwUYAU4ZRC.jpg

Officials, who were not authorized to speak on the record, also tell The Debrief that Tipton initially took over AATIP after Elizondo's resignation in 2017. DoD Calendar invites obtained by The Debrief via the Freedom of Information Act show an Unclassified "SAP Coordination Meeting" between Tipton and Elizondo occurring on August 28, 2017, a little over a month before Elizondo left the DoD.

In early 2018, the responsibilities for quietly examining UAP were said to be transferred from Tipton to another senior official at the Navy's Office of Naval Intelligence.

The Pentagon declined The Debrief's request for comment on the current arrangement of the UAPTF or previous status of AATIP.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FPgwbuwUYAU4ZRC.jpg

Multiple current defense officials closely associated with the Office of Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence tell The Debrief the Director for Defense Intelligence Collection and Special Programs with OUSDI, Neill Tipton, is the senior executive official currently tasked with carrying out Deputy SECDEF Hicks directives and overseeing efforts to bolster UAPTF capabilities.

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations. "The U.A.P. issue is being taken very seriously now even compared to where it was two or three years ago," the former Pentagon official said.

@1911Moose @PostDisclosure @dividendless The DNI had a whole report. In it, they said this. Iâ□□m very familiar.

Again, not ruling it out, but considering this is a mystery caught on multiple sensors at once, folks need to understand the gravity of what they are alleging

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The limited amount of high-quality reporting on unidentified aerial phenomena (UAP) hampers our ability to draw firm conclusions about the nature or intent of UAP. The Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force (UAPTF) considered a range of information on UAP described in U.S. military and IC (Intelligence Community) reporting, but because the reporting lacked sufficient specificity, ultimately recognized that a unique, tailored reporting process was required to provide sufficient data for analysis of UAP events.

- As a result, the UAPTF concentrated its review on reports that occurred between 2004 and 2021, the majority of which are a result of this new tailored process to better capture UAP events through formalized reporting.
- Most of the UAP reported probably do represent physical objects given that a majority of UAP were registered across multiple sensors, to include radar, infrared, electro-optical, weapon seekers, and visual observation.

In a limited number of incidents, UAP reportedly appeared to exhibit unusual flight characteristics. These observations could be the result of sensor errors, spoofing, or observer misperception and require additional rigorous analysis.

There are probably multiple types of UAP requiring different explanations based on the range of appearances and behaviors described in the available reporting. Our analysis of the data supports the construct that if and when individual UAP incidents are resolved they will fall into one of five potential explanatory categories: airborne clutter, natural atmospheric phenomena, USG or U.S. industry developmental programs, foreign adversary systems, and a catchall "other" bin.

UAP clearly pose a safety of flight issue and may pose a challenge to U.S. national security. Safety concerns primarily center on aviators contending with an increasingly cluttered air domain. UAP would also represent a national security challenge if they are foreign adversary collection platforms or provide evidence a potential adversary has developed either a breakthrough or disruptive technology.

Consistent consolidation of reports from across the federal government, standardized reporting, increased collection and analysis, and a streamlined process for screening all such reports against a broad range of relevant USG data will allow for a more sophisticated analysis of UAP that is likely to deepen our understanding. Some of these steps are resource-intensive and would require additional investment.

@Inquiremore1 If you scroll up, all I said was that there is very real movement within the gov about UAP.

Below is just the words of one senator among many leaders who are now saying this is a serious issue. How this is on the level of Salla is beyond me.

@RepAdamSchiffâ□□s statement after the ODNI report was released:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FOpDOwMVQAkzGCw.jpg

Washington, D.C. – Today, Congressman Adam Schiff (D-Calif.), Chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, released the following statement on the release of the unclassified unidentified aerial phenomena report from the Director of National Intelligence, which includes contributions from elements of the Intelligence Community and Department of Defense:

> "Through the Intelligence Authorization Act, the Congress and the Intelligence Committee required the preparation and release of today's report, as it has become increasingly clear that unidentified aerial phenomena are not a rare occurrence and our government needs a unified way to gather, analyze, and contextualize these reports.
> "We should approach these questions without preconceptions to encourage a thorough, systematized analysis of the potential national security and flight safety risks posed by unidentified aerial phenomena, whether they are the result of a foreign adversary, atmospheric or other aerial phenomena, space debris, or something else entirely.
>
> "We look forward to reviewing the report and will host a classified briefing for the Members of the House Intelligence Committee later this year based on its findings and to build on the Member briefing held last week. As we continue to receive updates, we will share what we can with the American people as excessive secrecy will only spur more speculation."

(U) APPENDIX D – Senate Report Accompanying the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2021

(U) Senate Report 116-233, accompanying the IAA for FY 2021, provides that the DNI, in consultation with the SECDEF and other relevant heads of USG Agencies, is to submit an intelligence assessment of the threat posed by UAP and the progress the UAPTF has made to understand this threat.

(U) The Senate Report specifically requested that the report include:

1. (U) A detailed analysis of UAP data and intelligence reporting collected or held by the Office of Naval Intelligence, including data and intelligence reporting held by the UAPTF;
2. (U) A detailed analysis of unidentified phenomena data collected by:
   a. GEOINT;
   b. SIGINT;
   c. HUMINT; and
   d. MASINT
3. (U) A detailed analysis of data of the FBI, which was derived from investigations of intrusions of UAP data over restricted U.S. airspace;
4. (U) A detailed description of an interagency process for ensuring timely data collection and centralized analysis of all UAP reporting for the federal government, regardless of which service or agency acquired the information;
5. (U) Identification of an official accountable for the process described in paragraph 4;
6. (U) Identification of potential aerospace or other threats posed by UAP to national security, and an assessment of whether such UAP activity may be attributed to one or more foreign competitors or adversaries;
7. (U) Identification of any incidents or patterns that indicate a potential competitor or adversary has achieved breakthrough aerospace capabilities that could put U.S. strategic or conventional forces at risk; and
8. (U) Recommendations regarding increased collection of data, enhanced research and development, additional funding, and other resources.

@MiddleOfMayhem @dave_beaty @InvNightSchool @SilvaRecord @LueElizondo I took all of this way differently than most. The existence of the document says more than the contents. Thereâ□□s nothing new in it, just like thereâ□□s nothing new in that prospectus for that ETF. If private sector is starting to analyze this topic in terms of $$, thatâ□□s good news.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FNgiR_BVgAIPjg4.jpg

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations. "The U.A.P. issue is being taken very seriously now even compared to where it was two or three years ago," the former Pentagon official said.

@dave_beaty @blackvaultcom IMO, the DoD has already been breaking FOIA laws for a few years now in re: to their response to requests like yours and Johnâ□□s. This was well before this new legislation passed.

I canâ□□t think of a better way around then Congressional pressure. But Iâ□□m open to ideas.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1500687419791659009

@dave_beaty @blackvaultcom They may not get their say. The Intel and Armed Services Committees have quite a bit of leverage. I think all of this is up in the air right now. Itâ□□s all in play.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1500686498420588546

@dave_beaty @blackvaultcom Plus journalists willing to dig into the topic and do the work.

As media interest has increased, we have FOIAd emails showing how much under lock and key any pertinent info is.

IMO, Congress seems like the best way potentially out of this.

@dave_beaty @blackvaultcom The last few years everything has had to go through Gough. W/ the path ahead, at least once the classified info is disseminated, some of it will be declassified.

Time will tell how serious the multiple members of Congress will take their own statements prioritizing transparency @SKEPTICLBELIEVR @dave_beaty Multiple members of Congress in statements regarding the new legislation cite transparency as a priority. Only time will tell, but itâ□□s certainly better than nothing.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1500684356913750023

@dave_beaty I think it may have been. That is something just within the Army.

The big difference now is oversight from Congress, and a directive straight from the top of the IC and the DoD. This isnâ□□t just one branch doing their own private thing anymore.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1500683392723021824

@dave_beaty through and makes an effort to inform the public, but I never expect much info to come from the DoD.

But if something incredibly anomalous is confirmed? IMO, the private sector and academia will be scrambling to get their own data anyways.

2022-03-07T04:01:02+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1500682913351749632

@dave_beaty My hope is that as leadership gets more of a handle on all of the data, there is an effort to be more transparent and release unclassified information.

The more this info leaves the hands of those who clearly prefer this stay classified, the better.

I hope Congress follows

@tinyklaus Yup. In 2019. New Yorker article reported on it:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FM6jn7lVEAItVGU.jpg

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations. "The U.A.P. issue is being taken very seriously now even compared to where it was two or three years ago," the former Pentagon official said.

@UFODoctor @ddeanjohnson @blackvaultcom There is a video of a classified briefing widely available on "SIPR or JWICS." Meaning if you have an interest and the proper security clearance, it is widely available.

If they're already interested in the topic, there's a small chance they've seen it. The odds are

That being said, Greenewald found a very interesting and important point:

@528vibes FWIW, Iâ□□ve seen a lot (thank god) of criticism re: the girlâ□□s views.

There has also been criticism (incl mine) of Mellonâ□□s appearance there, but that was long before that photo was ever taken.

At UFO conferences like that, those kinds of ppl are unavoidable.

2022-09-30T15:39:06+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1575872873729642497

@528vibes You didnâ□□t really make that point. You put a picture of Greenewald as an extra next to an actual Nazi and asked why he wasnâ□□t getting backlash.

â□¦

2022-09-30T15:26:55+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1575869808666587136

@528vibes The person getting backlash is the one with associations of nazism.

Even critics of Mellon I think understand he canâ□□t know who heâ□□s taking a photo with. If there has been any, it was of him going to that conference, not him taking this photo.

@JasonColavito I agree it isnâ□□t the best word to be used, but we all know what Graves is trying to say.

3/ Understandably of most interest to many is the fact that SOME of these incursions seem to be physical objects that APPEAR to exhibit advanced capabilities we can not explain or account for. Given how many resources we put into our military and CI, thatâ□□s a big problem.

2/They currently donâ□□t have a great way to holistically collect data on these incursions. Thanks to Congressâ□□ initial push, and then the DepSecDef and DNI, thatâ□□s now officially changing. Through legislation.

1/ #ufotwitter, I feel like a lot of folks are getting in the weeds. IMO, It really isnâ□□t that complicated or convoluted:

Thanks to Congress applying pressure, the US Military and IC have now admitted there are incursions by unknowns in our protected airspace. Consistently.

Other: Although most of the UAP described in our dataset probably remain unidentified due to limited data or challenges to collection processing or analysis, we may require additional scientific knowledge to successfully collect on, analyze and characterize some of them. We would group such objects in this category pending scientific advances that allowed us to better understand them. The UAPTF intends to focus additional analysis on the small number of cases where a UAP appeared to display unusual flight characteristics or signature management.

Increase Investment in Research and Development

The UAPTF has indicated that additional funding for research and development could further the future study of the topics laid out in this report. Such investments should be guided by a UAP Collection Strategy, UAP R&D Technical Roadmap, and a UAP Program Plan.

@JasonColavito Yeah, hard to tell. I honestly expected much more scrutiny once this started using taxpayer dollars. Perhaps once the new unclassified report comes out, whenever that may be.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1491555301543219200

@JasonColavito Right. The TV landscape is very different than it once was.

Let's say then that it's NOT getting more popular, my main point was that I believe the main catalyst behind a lot of these things isn't the result of a few people lobbying or going on media blitzes.

@bradjohansson21 @MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan This entire tweet relies on the assumption of what kind of information our Congress and their staff were given.

I guess one can just make the assumption that whatever Congress does results from being mis or uninformed, but that's a big leap without evidence. It's reasonable @MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan To me, the briefings and government action are the only reason this story has long term legs.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1491550076463816710
@MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan Ahhh I gotcha. While I could see how that couldaffect the landscape amongst entertainment, most journalists who are paying attn are doing so because of whatâ□□s occurring within our government.

2022-02-09T23:08:29+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1491549594735366149
@JasonColavito Granted, I donâ□□t track this nowhere near as closely as you seem to, but there was a time when it seemed like there were articles and programs about it everywhere.

You have ongoing efforts at GP, the CNN doc, HBO Max movie etc. Lots of journalists & academia are checking it out.

2022-02-09T21:51:41+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1491530266615058434
@MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan Secondly, if it WAS only motivated by such interests, does that then insinuate there's nothing actually to the data?

2022-02-09T21:50:45+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1491530030635048961
@MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan It's kind of unclear to me what you're getting at. You're saying these classified briefings only occurred due to the media and special interests?

Without evidence, why should anyone skeptical take that to the bank?

2022-02-09T21:48:43+00:00
https://twitter.com/_/status/1491529518183370752
@bradjohansson21 @MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan Not at all. However, I think the details of the 144 unidentified incidents are there. The devil is in the details. They certainly saw SOMETHING or they would not be walking out talking about how 'advanced' some of these things appear to be.

@LymburnerTodd Yeah, a major problem. Pretty crazy it took what it did for the DoD to admit that, no? As for the last part, youâ□□re kinda just making that up? How do you know what a bunch of members of congress are thinking and being told in a classified setting?

2022-02-09T20:15:59+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1491506184435613699

@LymburnerTodd What ppl say on Twitter is irrelevant. Those in charge of the DoD share saying itâ□□s an issue. Congress is saying itâ□□s an issue. Thereâ□□s now a tax payer funded entity dedicated to investigating it. This would not only come from a single NYT article.

The Havana Syndrome has been an issue for years and years. Yet it got attn when the media and the USG started talking about it seriously.

Why should this be any different?

But Some Potential Patterns Do Emerge

Although there was wide variability in the reports and the dataset is currently too limited to allow for detailed trend or pattern analysis, there was some clustering of UAP observations regarding shape, size, and, particularly, propulsion. UAP sightings also tended to cluster around U.S. training and testing grounds, but we assess that this may result from a collection bias as a result of focused attention, greater numbers of latest-generation sensors operating in those areas, unit expectations, and guidance to report anomalies.

And a Handful of UAP Appear to Demonstrate Advanced Technology

In 18 incidents, described in 21 reports, observers reported unusual UAP movement patterns or flight characteristics.

Some UAP appeared to remain stationary in winds aloft, move against the wind, maneuver abruptly, or move at considerable speed, without discernable means of propulsion. In a small number of cases, military aircraft systems processed radio frequency (RF) energy associated with UAP sightings.

The UAPTF holds a small amount of data that appear to show UAP demonstrating acceleration or a degree of signature management. Additional rigorous analysis are necessary by multiple teams or groups of technical experts to determine the nature and validity of these data. We are conducting further analysis to determine if breakthrough technologies were demonstrated.

@dividendless @EssentialBusin7 Hereâ□□s what the head academic of PBB has to say about Condon: http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FdxrapxVUAANJXq.jpg

---

In 1972, Hynek published "The UFO Experience: A Scientific Enquiry," a scathing postmortem on Blue Book and the Condon Report, and a blueprint for systematic research. Blue Book's remit had not been to try to explain U.F.O.s, he wrote; rather, it had been to explain them away. The Condon Report, which focussed on disproving any conjecture about alien spaceships, was even worse. What was instead required was an agnostic approach, one biased in favor neither of extraterrestrial craft nor of the weather or Venus. U.F.O.s were unidentified by

@dividendless @EssentialBusin7 Further context: https://www.newyorker.com/magazine/2021/05/10/how-the-pentagon-started-taking-ufos-seriously http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FdxrR6RVsAArz4d.jpg

In late 1966, Edward U. Condon, a physicist at the University of Colorado, was given three hundred thousand dollars to conduct such a study. The project was plagued by infighting, especially after the discovery of a memo written by a coördinator noting that a truly disinterested approach would have to allow for the fact that U.F.O.s might exist. That was out of the question—their behavior was not commensurable with our understanding of universal laws. The associated scientists, the coördinator proposed, should stress to their colleagues that they were primarily interested in the psychological and social circumstances of U.F.O. believers. In other words, sightings should be understood as metaphors—for Cold War anxiety or ambivalence about technology.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FdxrR6SVsAARuSK.jpg

Condon, who announced long before the study was complete that U.F.O.s were unmitigated bunk, wrote the report's summary and its "Conclusions and Recommendations" section. He seemed to have only a glancing familiarity with the other nine hundred pages of the report. As he put it, "Careful consideration of the record as it is available to us leads us to conclude that further extensive studies of UFOs probably cannot be justified in the expectation that science will be advanced thereby." Schoolchildren, he advised, should not be given credit for work involving U.F.O.s. Scientists should take their talents and their money elsewhere. Project Blue Book was shut down in January, 1970.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FdxrR6RVsAArz4d.jpg

The thousand-page "Scientific Study of Unidentified Flying Objects," or the Condon Report, as it became known, was completed in the late fall of 1968. Of the ninety-one Blue Book cases selected for examination, thirty of them remained official mysteries. In a "puzzling and unusual" incident in 1956, a preternaturally fast object was recorded on multiple radars near a U.S. Air Force base in England. One of Condon's researchers wrote that "the apparently rational, intelligent behavior of the UFO suggests a mechanical device of unknown origin as the most probable explanation of this sighting." As Tim McMillan, a retired police lieutenant who writes about U.F.O.s and national defense, put it to me, "You didn't even need the other seven hundred cases. You only needed one like that to say, 'Hey, we should look into this.' "

@JonesSmythe @ThanosAlpha I don't think it's a fringe topic anymore. While there is of course the history and a subset who will remain in the fringe, this issue should now be in the same realm as something like the Havana Syndrome. An oddity that our IC and DoD are engaging w/ that may be a nat sec risk.

@JonesSmythe @TheQuengineer @BarlowTerry @UFOrealitycheck Thereâ□□s a very real issue here that inevitably many will keep trying to clump together with the fringier elements of this topic. The fringe has existed and will continue to exist. Doesnâ□□t mean there isnâ□□t something real that requires addressing.

This is the stigma at work.

2022-01-18T15:51:03+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1483466976013864960

@LipmanTroy @MickWest You rule out so many options before having remotely any information. Itâ□□s far more likely the CIA would be lying to Nolan. But again, we know next to nothing. Any major conclusions on your end are coming from your imagination.

2022-01-18T15:48:47+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1483466405655711744

@LipmanTroy @MickWest Too many assumptions here. You assume he is just lying with no evidence. You assume that because I quoted an article, I believe what someone is saying , 100%.

You can have whatever opinion you like, but please donâ□□t put words in my mouth.

2022-01-18T15:41:39+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1483464611852701703

@LipmanTroy @MickWest Source and credibility are a factor. This isnâ□□t some UFOlogist. This is a respected, accomplished, and notable scientist who has a lab at Stanford named after him. When he says what he said, thatâ□□s worth following up on. What, you think heâ□□s just making all this up?

2022-01-18T15:39:28+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1483464062851817481

@LipmanTroy @MickWest You need to really chill out, man. You make a lot of jumps. When a respected Stanford scientist says something, thatâ□□s worth noting, not ignoring. More evidence and details are needed. But because someone says the word â□□UAP,â□□ we donâ□□t talk about it, no matter who itâ□□s from?

2022-01-18T15:33:57+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1483462675153801217

@LipmanTroy @MickWest The only reason UFOs are being talked about here is because they told Nolan it had to do with UFOs. Were these individuals lying to him? Maybe. Thatâ□□s still interesting. Without more info, we donâ□□t really know what this is all about.

@bradjohansson21 @vk2na_max @JasonColavito @InvNightSchool You don't have to believe in 60 minute's work, but I find it interesting that those who otherwise believe certain news sources suddenly become hyper skeptical of anything reported the second this topic is breached.

@bradjohansson21 @vk2na_max @JasonColavito @InvNightSchool But this goes back to what I was saying. The whole point of the name behind 60 Minutes is to corroborate what is being said before they publish. You do know they don't press record an interview and just put it on air, right?

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482771227269689345

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @BKolbey @JasonColavito I think you misunderstand. Why would our Navy pilots be vectored to a missile test if they knew there was a test? These are training ranges, but a missile test doesnâ□□t occur without those in charge knowing. There are policies in place to precisely prevent what you are supposing.

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @BKolbey @JasonColavito What was the water disturbance Kurth saw, that the other 4 pilots saw? What did the Hawkeye see? What did Voorhis see? If you look at this day in a holistic way, a missile doesnâ□□t begin to answer much of anything else.

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @BKolbey @JasonColavito I have no idea, Iâ□□m not a pilot. Why would I know that? :grinning_face_with_sweat:. To add to all this. If it WAS a missile, so many other questions need to be asked. Why were they vectored to a missile being tested? Thatâ□□s incredibly dangerous. What were the other radar tracks? What did Underwood see?

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @BKolbey @JasonColavito I did. And I can see why you think that, but this on the list of standards of evidence, this isnâ□□t high. Youâ□□re looking at videos of missiles, yet those whoâ□□s liveâ□□s rely on their job to identify a missile instantly are saying itâ□□s not. And apparently the Navy agrees.

Source replied, “I have high cover”. (Source Comment – I was scared because I never encountered a situation like this before and I felt that the object had yet to be identified and we were about to pursue it.) OK-2 conducted an aggressive banking maneuver and dropped their aircraft while turning at the same time in order to catch up with the object. As OK-2 conducted the maneuver, Source noticed the object immediately respond to OK-2’s change of direction. (Source Comment – The UFO turned on [redacted] as if it knew or somehow anticipated what they were going to do and even pointed towards them! I was worried for them because whatever this was, [redacted] didn’t stand a chance against it! There is no way any aircraft or missile that I know of could conduct maneuvers like what we saw that day.) Source indicated that the object began to make deliberate changes in its altitude, attitude, and angle in response to OK-2’s aircraft in a manner that seemed to defy the laws of flight physics. The object instantaneously - but in a controlled, intelligent manner - “tumbled” into nonsensical angles that made any engagement by the F-18 impossible. OK-2 and OK-3 were approximately 1000 to 3000 feet from the object when the object turned and “pointed at them." OK-2 conducted one or two evasive turns in their F-18 but the object appeared to maintain positive and dominant control of the airspace.

U apparently think itâ□□s a missile(?) & used a quote where Dietrich considered it initially, yet ignore her assessment shortly after and for the years ahead. Itâ□□s unidentified. They donâ□□t know.

@LymburnerTodd @BrentlyLee @MusicAndTruth @PostDisclosure @BenPrimeEsq Well, Iâ□□ve asked many times today what else, and no one has given me a straight answer. Iâ□□d love to hear it if there was more. Iâ□□m currently unaware of any and down to learn.

2022-01-15T00:16:04+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482144515536277504

@BrentlyLee @LymburnerTodd @MusicAndTruth @PostDisclosure @BenPrimeEsq Ok letâ□□s say Fravor is adamant about the specific visual encounter being 5 min, not just being vectored.

Can you explain to me how this day still isnâ□□t super bizarre and noteworthy?

2022-01-15T00:08:33+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482142625821986817

@LymburnerTodd @BrentlyLee @MusicAndTruth @PostDisclosure @BenPrimeEsq Especially since no one has ever actually asked Fravor for clarification. If he doubled down on this, perhaps itâ□□d be stranger.

2022-01-15T00:06:03+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482141997003542528

@LymburnerTodd @BrentlyLee @MusicAndTruth @PostDisclosure @BenPrimeEsq Correct, I think at this point this thread has gone to a million different reply branches, but my point is that this the only discrepancy between the 2, and I donâ□□t see how this suddenly makes the entire day moot.

2022-01-15T00:02:33+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482141114614239232

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito Correct. No way it was five minutes. But Fravorâ□□s description of his encounter falls right in line with Dietrichâ□□s timeline.

2022-01-14T23:01:56+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482125860215787521

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito â□¦but yes. Fravor explained the movements as a ping pong ball bouncing in a cup. Dietrich had said the same.

2022-01-14T23:00:16+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482125440940605440

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito We may have to table this conversation, as youâ□□re just repeating yourself and Iâ□□m not any more clear on what youâ□□re trying to say. Youâ□□re caught up on the time, yet any detailed description of the Tic Tac movements by either been relatively uniform throughout.

2022-01-14T22:56:38+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482124528637468674

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito â□¦they both say around 500 knots. They both say it moved erratically when they found it. They both said it sped away like a bullet basically instantaneously disappearing. Where is this difference youâ□□re talking about?

2022-01-14T22:50:59+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482123107166920704

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito I donâ□□t know. Iâ□□m not Cmdr Fravor. Youâ□□d have to ask him. I think itâ□□s silly to put â□□lyingâ□□ as remotely the first option.

2022-01-14T22:49:40+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482122773954641921

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito Unless you have experience flying a fighter jet, Iâ□□m not sure how you have such confidence in what youâ□□re saying.

But if this thing moved in the ways reported? It could be a :pretzel: shape and it wouldnâ□□t change whatâ□□s noteworthy.

2022-01-14T22:39:41+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482120259653943296

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito He says he saw this thing for 5 minutes.

Yet the interaction he goes into detail about would only last seconds. Thereâ□□s no way what he is describing lasts longer than that. Fravor must be mistaken about the time, or he would be explaining in detail a 5 min interaction.

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito I appreciate you wanting to iron out details, but I still donâ□□t understand how this discrepancy = the entire incident shouldnâ□□t be taken seriously.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1482118292131045377

@BrentlyLee @MykullG @JasonColavito You misunderstand. Perhaps Fravor is combining two things. They were vectored for 5 min. Years later when he tells the story, he says we saw it for 5 min. I dunno. Iâ□□m just tossing out possibilities. Itâ□□s a weird discrepancy. But again, does not discount the entire day.

@Nofragileviews @blackvaultcom This is exactly the point. These pilots saw these things on radar. NOTAMs were posted. And yet top brass didnâ□□t seem to take any action. Itâ□□s bizarre, and IMO the primary reason Congress got involved. It doesnâ□□t make any sense.

@Nofragileviews @blackvaultcom But my main point re: that tweet from months ago was that that could totally be a Batman balloon and it still doesnâ□□t begin to address what the pilots are encountering on a daily basis. A Batman balloon wonâ□□t do what they are seeing these things do.

That doesnâ□□t add up when it comes to standards of evidence. Eyewitness testimony ainâ□□t great on the scale, but it beats a blurry photo.

@Nofragileviews @blackvaultcom Balloons donâ□□t move up to 1.2 mach speed, though. Or move against the wind. Or move in a â□□racetrack pattern.â□□

Of all the probabilities, Iâ□□d put radar spoofing far ahead of balloons, although that doesnâ□□t explain how they can see these things on IR. A genuine mystery, IMO.

Senate and House have a relatively similar structure but with oversight of the DoD. Their duties sometime overlap.

These committees are the ones who write the NDAA.

@JonesSmythe @MHuntington7 @BobMcGwier_N4HY @koliarievin @GrantCameron @JChurchRadio @SpacedOutRadio @DaveScottSOR This question means you donâ□□t entirely. The entirety of congress votes on the NDAA.

All of the oversight power where members of congress can do anything re: the IC, and DoD? All the bill language relating to UAP? All of the briefings? All of that is within these 2 committees.

They also write the IAA every year which help dictates and authorizes funding on Intel matters every year.

But in the interview with investigators, Hopkins said, “I didn’t specifically hear the whole story. I just heard a part of it and I could’ve missed a lot of it. ... My mind probably added the rest.”

At one point, the investigators, who conducted the interview at the Erie facility, took Hopkins to the area where he said the conversation had happened, but he was unable to hear the investigator speaking at the same distance that Hopkins would have been from Weisenbach.

Hopkins said that the words he actually heard were: “ballots picked up on the fourth ... one of them was marked the fourth and the rest were the third.”

He said that he never heard the word “backdate” and repeatedly acknowledged that he made assumptions about the meaning of the words he overheard.

@JasonColavito I disagree. The subsection of incidents that defy current scientific understanding as detailed in the unclassified version would fall right into this category.

@rosscoulthart, @BryanDBender have you heard anything through your reporting about this? That's two journalists now confirming that a "plan was drafted and submitted through ACCM channels" in order to "coax" UAP.

@LymburnerTodd @UAPorSAP @TheUfoJoe @dsmethurst66 @LueElizondo As for the video below, I have no idea. He clearly is using "AATIP" instead of "AAWSAP" here. Why? I don't know. But it's a helluva big jump to take that inconsistency all the way to "he is lying about everything and full of shit." That is a personal feeling.

@LymburnerTodd @UAPorSAP @TheUfoJoe @dsmethurst66 @LueElizondo Nor has he said the USG has 100% ruled out foreign tech. He actually said some of it probably IS. But lots of it remains unexplainable.

@LymburnerTodd @UAPorSAP @TheUfoJoe @dsmethurst66 @LueElizondo This for example is what I mean. I don't think Elizondo has even said half these things. It all comes down to what the data associated with said videos says. Data I'm not so sure we'll ever see. But Congress saw it. And they say its serious.

@LymburnerTodd @UAPorSAP @TheUfoJoe @dsmethurst66 @LueElizondo I saw the video when it came out. John asks some great questions. But taking out of context remarks from the 100s of interviews Elizondo has done and applying them to the ODNI report and documents isn't exactly my idea of evidence.

@MiddleOfMayhem But itâ□□s thanks to those deck logs and FOIAd emails that we have irrefutable proof these incidents happened. If journalists would do their jobs, thatâ□□s where they would start. Ideally it helps us get to the truth. Their opinions donâ□□t make those deck logs less of a big deal.

@RiotSeeds @ChrisKMellon legislative action, is that noteworthy?

This whole assumed premise that something is only a â□□programâ□□ if it has appropriated funds seems kind of besides the point. Is the lack of clarity of the big picture annoying and problematic? Yes.

But donâ□□t the results also matter?

@MickWest @MvonRen FWIW, hereâ□□s Lt. Gravesâ□□ comments on this theory:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FHUERTwVEAg1LyW.jpg

"I'm not going to say that we're infallible. I mean, we're all humans up there, trying to do the best job that we can. That being said, we're using highly integrated systems in the aircraft," said Graves. "We have many things telling us what something is out there. For example, with the Link 16, it gives us a data link allowing us to see where everyone is. I've got to be careful here and can't get into too many details, but we can share data with each other so we can all see what everyone else is seeing."

"On that particular day, the day the Gimbal was filmed, we were involved in a large air-to-air mission. You've got anywhere from 10 to 12 jets in the air wing going off to an area to do a mission. Then you've got a group of aircraft overhead the boat acting as the aerial refuelers. When my buddy took that video, he was heading back to the ship, and then here goes this thing like 40 miles away from the boat. It's not in the data link. All the radars are reporting it, but it's nothing popping up identifying what type of aircraft it is or whether it's friend or foe. Then you've also got the five or six other objects in the wedge formation. We were like 300 miles out off the coast. It's hard for me to imagine it was just another jet in the system."

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FHUERTwVEAg1LyW.jpg

Some have proposed that the object filmed in the "Gimbal" video could have been a distant plane or commercial airliner. Graves doesn't discount the potential for even highly-trained fighter pilots to make mistakes, but given the totality of the circumstances, the "Gimbal" having been a mundane distant aircraft seems like a bit of a stretch.

@conterammundi @MiddleOfMayhem @uncertainvector I am curious @MiddleOfMayhem why youâ□□re particularly keen on eyewitness testimony? Is it in order to confirm that itâ□□s physical and not a result of radar spoofing? Radar is one thing, but FLIR is another.

2021-12-23T18:34:14+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1474085957712285715

@MiddleOfMayhem @uncertainvector Youâ□□re all good! Not that Iâ□□m aware of, but Graves said these things are still there to this day. If that is true, Iâ□□d imagine there are more eyeball testimonies out there for those motivated. Perhaps saying youâ□□re from the NY Post, you could get some responses?

@MiddleOfMayhem @uncertainvector They saw them with eyeballs. I will add though that when it comes to data, sensors > fallible perception. Nimitz is interesting because the sensors showed something was there. Not so sure the Tic Tac would be as noteworthy of it was ONLY eyewitness. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FHT7B_HUUAEptrd.jpg

On the few rare occasions pilots did catch a glimpse, the objects were oddly described as looking like a cube in a sphere. A shape that could hardly be considered aerodynamic by accepted principles of flight physics.

In 2019, defense journalist Tyler Rogoway put forth the theory that the “cube in a sphere” pilots saw could have been airborne radar reflectors. Rogoway shared a 1945 U.S. patent of an “Airborne Corner Reflector,” which depicted a radar reflector inside a collapsible balloon that, indeed, looked like a cube inside a sphere. The CIA had used similar submarine-launched balloons to test Soviet radar capabilities in the early 1960s under Project PALLADIUM.

@blackvaultcom @WitnessCitizen Sorry, maybe I wasnâ□□t clear. I just meant thereâ□□s a lot more to that Reddit post than just the fact that they filmed this guy w/ out permission. @JasonColavito @jplatte11 @Jim87504388 @Girafin_ovni Thereâ□□s a very big difference between being understaffed and just literally not doing anything for a year. I think asserting that an entity created to collect data didnâ□□t actually collect any data for a whole year (and without a hint of evidence) is pretty â□□out thereâ□□.

@JasonColavito @jplatte11 @Jim87504388 @Girafin_ovni This makes no sense to me, Jason. Why do you think the UAPTF just got some secondhand claims and not the data itself? Is there any evidence of this? If you look at the language behind the UAPTFâ□□s creation, that was their sole purpose. Why believe otherwise?

We certainly have plenty of sensor networks already set up that could catch said data if it exists:

@MickWest Yeah, it could be many things, including a symbol for unknowns. But it should be noted the NIM co-authored the UAP report. http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FdeqXCaVsAA6p-4.jpg

This report provides an overview for policymakers of the challenges associated with characterizing the potential threat posed by UAP while also providing a means to develop relevant processes, policies, technologies, and training for the U.S. military and other U.S. Government (USG) personnel if and when they encounter UAP, so as to enhance the Intelligence Community's (IC) ability to understand the threat. The Director, UAPTF, is the accountable official for ensuring the timely collection and consolidation of data on UAP. The dataset described in this report is currently limited primarily to U.S. Government reporting of incidents occurring from November 2004 to March 2021. Data continues to be collected and analyzed.

ODNI prepared this report for the Congressional Intelligence and Armed Services Committees. UAPTF and the ODNI National Intelligence Manager for Aviation drafted this report, with input from USD(I&S), DIA, FBI, NRO, NGA, NSA, Air Force, Army, Navy, Navy/ONI, DARPA, FAA, NOAA, NGA, ODNI/NIM-Emerging and Disruptive Technology, ODNI/National Counterintelligence and Security Center, and ODNI/National Intelligence Council.

According to Nolan, the CIA and MULTIPLE aerospace organizations showed up at his door to help look at the brains and blood of these pilots. Thatâ□□s certainly eyebrow raising.

Doesnâ□□t sound like AAWSAP to me (DIA and a SINGLE aerospace company)
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FGloPN2VkAE6XeV.jpg

That ended up bringing me to the attention of some people associated with the CIA and some aeronautics corporations. At the time, they had been investigating a number of cases of pilots who'd gotten close to supposed UAPs and the fields generated by them, as was claimed by the people who showed up at my office unannounced one day. There was enough drama around the Atacama skeleton that I had basically decided to forswear all continued involvement in this area. Then these guys showed up and said, 'We need you to help us with this because we want to do blood analysis and everybody says that you've got the best blood analysis instrumentation on the planet.' Then they started showing the MRIs of some of these pilots and ground personnel and intelligence agents who had been damaged. The MRIs were clear. You didn't even have to be an MD to see that there was a problem. Some of their brains

Look at a recent comment from an article at @Debriefmedia from Jack Weinstein, a former USAF Lt. General when speaking about the USG dealing w/ UAPs. (TY @MicahHanks)

There seems to be a real cultural problem over there.
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FGSTF3CUUAYNMfL.jpg

> "If the DoD's new office and Sen Gillibrand's amendment are accomplishing roughly the same thing, there isn't a problem," says Jack Weinstein, a retired USAF Lieutenant General and Professor of the Practice of International Security with the Frederick S. Pardee School of Global Studies at Boston University.
> But rather than taking issue with whether the DoD's AOIMSG will match the framework outlined in the Gillibrand-Rubio Amendment, Weinstein voiced concerns about the importance of the proposed ASRO when compared with other issues the military faces, many of which are addressed in the current version of the Senate's NDAA.

@Acecentric @paulsanderson @rogerglassel But who is telling us that? There have been numerous briefings from the IC and UAPTF to these respective committees. Congress clearly isnâ□□t happy with how itâ□□s being dealt with, or a DoD IG eval wouldnâ□□t have been initiated, and legislation like this enacted.

The House also passed the National Defense Authorization Act.

- Leadership aides tell Axios this vote should be "locked in" for both chambers, given Republican and Democratic leaders of the House and Senate Armed Services committees negotiated and signed off on the compromise legislation.

- Unlike the typical amendment process for passing the NDAA, senior Senate aides said there will be no amendment votes this time.

- This decision comes after Senate leaders failed to reach an agreement on amendment votes last week, which followed Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.) refusing to support the package without a vote on his Uighur forced labor bill.

@BryanDBender Interesting that it says "The Senate Amendment contained no similar provision" when there was Gillibrand's amendment. Yet this also seems to have elements of her proposal. I'm confused? :grinning_face_with_sweat:
http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FGBdMmkVkAMJJGm.png

Establishment of office, organizational structure, and authorities to address unidentified aerial phenomena (sec. 1683)

The House bill contained a provision (sec. 1652) that would require the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the Director of National Intelligence (DNI), to establish an office within the Office of the Secretary of Defense to carry out, on a Department-wide basis, the mission currently performed by the Unidentified Aerial Phenomenon (UAP) Task Force and require an annual report.

The Senate amendment contained no similar provision.

The agreement includes the House provision with an amendment that would require the Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the DNI, to establish an office within the Office of the Secretary of Defense or within a joint organization of the Department of Defense and the Office of the DNI to replace the Navy-led Unidentified Aerial Phenomena Task Force and to carry out other duties as required by the provision.

The provision would also require comprehensive reporting, analysis, and sharing of information on UAP incidents and consultation with other departments and agencies of the executive branch and allies and partners. The provision would require the Secretary and DNI to assign to line organizations responsibilities for: (1) Investigating and responding to UAP incidents and ensuring that these organizations are resourced appropriately; and (2) Conducting field investigations of UAP incidents. The provision would require the development of an intelligence collection and analysis plan, and a science plan to determine the origin, characteristics, capabilities and objectives of UAP. The provision would require an annual unclassified report on significant UAP activity, accompanied as appropriate by classified annexes, and bi-annual briefings.

I believe we should approach these questions without preconceptions to encourage a thorough, systematized analysis of the potential national security and flight safety risks posed by unidentified aerial phenomena, whether they are the result of a foreign adversary, atmospheric or other aerial phenomena, space debris, or something else entirely. I look forward to reviewing the report and will host a classified briefing for the Members of the House Intelligence Committee later this year based on its findings and to build on the Member briefing held in June. As we continue to receive updates, we will share what we can with the American people as excessive secrecy will only spur more speculation.

Please be assured that I will keep your views in mind when these issues are considered on the House Floor.

Transparency has been a goal of mine throughout my time in Congress, and my website includes a detailed voting record where you can find an up-to-date record of every vote I have taken on the House Floor and links to learn more about each piece of legislation listed there. You can also find detailed information on every bill introduced in the House on Congress.gov, including the summary and full text of the legislation, which Members have co-sponsored it, and the most recent action taken by Congress.

Dear Mr. Miller:

Thank you for contacting me regarding unidentified aerial phenomena. I appreciate hearing from you and welcome the chance to respond.

I am incredibly heartened by the record levels of engagement and activism we have seen from people in the 28th District and across the country in recent years, and I am grateful for your input. My staff and I keep track of every message we receive from constituents like you, and your feedback on this issue is invaluable in guiding my priorities and actions.

As Chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, I recently attended a briefing on the release of the unclassified unidentified aerial phenomena report from the Director of National Intelligence. Through the Intelligence Authorization Act, the Congress and the Intelligence Committee required the preparation and release of the report, as it has become increasingly clear that unidentified aerial phenomena are not a rare occurrence and our government needs a unified way to gather, analyze, and contextualize these reports.

@zcichy @JonesSmythe @WitnessCitizen We donâ□□t know their data sets, but we prob never will. The DoD release of the videos said:

â□□The aerial phenomena observed in the videos remain characterized as "unidentified."â□□

As of 2020 that was where they were at.

@zcichy @JonesSmythe @WitnessCitizen Well, we know the analysis was â□□:man_shrugging_light_skin_tone:â□□ and they certainly arenâ□□t going to release the data.

I think by improving & standardizing methods of data collection (a la ASTRO) when a future Nimitz-like incident occurs will be much more helpful in figuring out whatâ□□s going on long term.

@WitnessCitizen @zcichy That being said, this isnâ□□t the current reality. As more and more politicians talk about this, what Zac is asking inevitably becomes an issue. This topic is now getting to the division that is very strong in this country. Iâ□□m grateful that we have a very bipartisan engagement,

The activity intensified. In April of 2019, the Navy revised its official guidelines for pilots, encouraging them to report U.A.P.s without fear of scorn or censure. In June, Senator Mark Warner, of Virginia, admitted that he had been briefed on the U.A.P. matter. In September, a spokesperson for the Navy announced that the "FLIR1" video, along with two videos associated with sightings off the East Coast in 2015, showed "incursions into our military training ranges by unidentified aerial phenomena." The "unidentified" label had been given an institutional imprimatur.

The debunkers were unimpressed by the designation, and their work continued apace.

intelligence wasn't being reported. (The Nimitz encounter didn't become subject to official investigation until years after the incident, when an errant file landed on the desk of someone who decided that it merited pursuit.) "What we needed," the former Pentagon official said, "was something like the post-9/11 fusion centers, where a D.O.D. guy can talk to an F.B.I. guy and an N.R.O. guy—everything we learned from the 9/11 Commission."

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FFPZNvzVUAgXGki.jpg

Within a month of the Times article's publication, the Pentagon's U.A.P. portfolio was reassigned to a civilian intelligence official with a rank equivalent to that of a two-star general. This successor—who did not want to be named, lest U.F.O. nuts swarm his doorstep—had read Kean's book. He channelled the cascade of media interest to argue that, without a process to handle uncategorizable observations, rigid bureaucracies would overlook anything that didn't follow a standard pattern. At the height of the Cold War, the government had worried that the noise of lurid phantasmagoria might drown out signals relevant to national security, or even provide cover for adversarial incursions; now, it seemed, the concern was that valuable intelligence wasn't being reported. (The details, he reminded me of his security oath.

Perhaps unsurprisingly for a Pentagon project that had begun as a contractor's investigation into goblins and werewolves, and had been reincarnated under the aegis of a musician best known for an album called "Enema of the State," AATIP was subject to intense scrutiny. Kean is unwavering in her belief that she and an insider exposed something formidable, but a former Pentagon official recently suggested that the story was more complicated: the program she disclosed was of little consequence compared with the one she set in motion. Widespread fascination with the idea that the government cared about U.F.O.s had inspired the government at last to care about U.F.O.s.

http://pbs.twimg.com/media/FFPZNvwVIAYQMFE.jpg

In the summer of 2018, Elizondo's successor brandished Kean's article to make this case to members of Congress. According to the former Pentagon official, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee inserted language into the classified annex of the 2019 National Defense Authorization Act, passed in August of 2018, that obligated the Pentagon to continue the investigations. "The U.A.P. issue is being taken very seriously now even compared to where it was two or three years ago," the former Pentagon official said.

@BobMcGwier_N4HY Agreed! And yet many detractors on here seem to be solely criticizing Elizondoâ□□s tweets and saying they are radicalizing #ufotwitter. Iâ□□m having a tough time understanding that.

Elizondo and Mellon have never been shy about sharing their opinion. I'm trying to understand why this AOIMSG situation has more than usual crying foul? I genuinely want to understand your POV.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1464324042047963136

@red_pill_junkie Elizondo and Mellon have never been shy in sharing their opinions. Why is this any different? They're just two voices amongst a chorus that are all relatively on the same page. McMillan called this "administrative terrorism." I don't see ppl upset about that.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1464323205506625537

@red_pill_junkie If you look at the language of both entities, it doesn't take a genius to see which would be preferable. Why are so many talking about what Elizondo and Mellon have said, and not anyone else? Or the actual points everyone is making?

2021-11-26T19:58:44+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1464322750261063681

@red_pill_junkie I'm not saying the unclassified reports will have all the answers, but that is besides the point when looking at the alternative.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1464322553426579461

@red_pill_junkie This is something I'm seeing all over here. It's not just those who worked in opacity. It's nearly everyone who writes and reports about this topic. Does the POV suddenly mean less because specific people are also saying it?

2021-11-26T19:51:04+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1464320824194650112

@red_pill_junkie Gillibrand - Required reporting to congress, a civillian advisory board, required unclassified reports to the public AOIMSG - No requirements for oversight. An advisory board consisting of TBA members made up of those within the DoD.

Which would you prefer?

https://twitter.com/_/status/1463624214242492419

@bradjohansson21 If your goal is transparency on this topic, which I believe to most with a passing curiosity, it is, wouldn't you have concerns about an alternate office being proposed that has no guarantee of oversight as opposed to one that does?

@bradjohansson21 Gillibrand's proposal of ASTRO is a proposal for that very program Hicks mentions in that memo. This press release was a continuation of that memo, yes. It is also very much a "Hey, forget ASTRO, how about we do this instead?"

@UAPmike @TheUfoJoe Yup. It's a catch-22. This is why I find the USG's official statements so incredibly important. Cynics think it's a waste of time to track the progress of this topic within the USG, yet it's our leadership's statements that help spur action elsewhere. (i.e. your example of GP)

@TheUfoJoe @DietrichVFA41 While I agree with you that I think we could prove beyond a reasonable doubt within a courtroom this very strange phenomenon exists, those standards of evidence aren't the same ones used by astrophysicist.

@TheUfoJoe @DietrichVFA41 If we want mainstream academia and the private sector to engage, testimony itself simply isn't enough. If it was, this would all be a different conversation.

What makes all of this so frustrating is that the data DOES exist. We just can't get any on the record comments on it.

The momentum continues. Plus the more the public is made aware of this topics past (such as Hillenkoetterâ□□s comments and DC in â□□52, etc), the harder it is to write all of this off as current runaway black projects.

Some great insights by @ChrisKMellon. This particular excerpt at the beginning raised my hackles a bit. The idea that a task force dedicated to a subject ACTUALLY getting info on said subject is something laughable shows the sad state of affairs within.

technology or poses a grave threat. The task force has done all that could be expected given its resource limitations and negligible authorities, but it is struggling to move forward and the services and agencies can ignore them without consequence. For example, I recently spoke with a Defense Department official who was aware of some new UAP incidents. When I asked if the Task Force was notified, he laughed and said: “I doubt it.” In fact, he indicated that he thinks (as do others) that there is probably quite a bit of UAP info that the Task Force is not getting--to say nothing of implementing far-reaching changes. Obviously, when the info doesn’t reach the UAP Task Force, it isn’t likely to get to Congress either.

@IgnatiusPost Hi Mr. Ignatius. I humbly request you attempt to get a little more clarity out of @ODNIgov Haines on the topic of UAP. This lack of information has created an environment ripe for conspiracy mongering.

What kind of data is being seen? How advanced are these things?

@MHuntington7 I think most can agree a lot of this may be thanks to their lobbying efforts. But lobbying for Congress' attention is different than feeding them false information. If Congress is acting upon real data, isn't that a good thing? Does Mellon's lobbying suddenly change the data?

@MiddleOfMayhem Corroborate something abnormal. For the Nimitz you have Kevin Dayâ□□s & Voorhisâ testimony on the Princeton. Plus Hughesâ on the Hawkeye.

East coast you have these things showing up on sensors nearly every day. Itâs not just the Pilotâs personal sightings that make this compelling @MHuntington7 @thoreauawhelan This may require a level of nuance that isnâ□□t possible on Twitter, but from what Iâ□□m seeing, it sounds like â□□Disclosure activistsâ□□ to you are those who believe without a shadow of a doubt that the government is hiding the fact that there are aliens?

@UAPorSAP With this amount of buy-in from mainstream academia? Not that Iâ□□m aware of.

Donâ□□t get me wrong. Lots of academics are annoyed by it too. The beautiful thing is that if they ACTUALLY find something interesting, feelings wonâ□□t matter. Everybodyâ□□ll look at the data.

@UAPorSAP Thatâ□□d be a question for Loeb, not me. But hereâ□□s â□□Rule 3â□□ of their recent post reaffirming ground rules. Given the research team and scientific board, if they actually get some interesting data, I see no problem getting mainstream academia to peer review.

@apicasefiles I think most folks grounded in reality expect a vast majority to be solved as long as the data is there.

Itâ□□s just that once theyâ□□re solved they no longer interest those involved, as their concern is the small subset that defy explanation even w/ available data. I.e. The Nimitz @bradjohansson21 I donâ□□t think it is malicious. But itâ□□s a helluva an assumption on pplâ□□s end to assume these are all computer glitches on multiple sensors. Especially when advanced adversarial tech could be the answer. Luckily, I think they are taking it seriously.

https://twitter.com/_/status/1587501260223021056

@bradjohansson21 Absolutely agree.

So letâ□□s not pretend these things are only unidentified because there is no data on them. When sensors are all picking up something advanced in our protected airspace, yet we do not have a clear understanding of what they are, these should be everyoneâ□□s concern @strategic_doubt @MiddleOfMayhem @strategic_doubt you are always welcome to come on my show at UCR on Tuesdays if you want to talk more at length about this (or anything else) for an hour. I think itâ□□s important for more to be aware of this.

@1911Moose @markoconnell_1 @GalileoProject1 Well, I certainly hope not, as that is the biggest thing it has going for it. They recently posted some "ground rules" doubling down on openness and transparency, so I'd be surprised at such an about-face at this point: https://projects.iq.harvard.edu/galileo/news/statement-ground-rules @MiddleOfMayhem With this in mind, all those recent(ish) nuclear power plant sightings are leaving a pit in my stomach. I wonder if attacks on those power plants would do a great deal of damage to our infrastructure?

@1911Moose @markoconnell_1 @GalileoProject1 IMO, a Harvard-led peer review process is different than a CRADA agreement between the Army and a private company. Let's wait and see what happens. Everyone seems to already have such a clear idea of what's going to occur before it's even started.

@JonesSmythe @Pittfan_76 @GalileoProject1 While I disagree, that's an assessment for the research team to make. Everyone else is just armchair quarterbacking.

@Pittfan_76 @JonesSmythe @GalileoProject1 Given the commitment to keeping everything public, location may be one of the few things they can really help with on this project. But based on reactions on here, it's as if they now dictate where ALL the sensors will go.

@Pittfan_76 @JonesSmythe @GalileoProject1 Missed your reply here, @JonesSmythe. I agree with Terry here. Elizondo had been involved with military-related incursions w/ UAP for years. Mellon has relationships with the IC and Congressional committees. They MAY know some specific locations that are better to track.

@Jim87504388 @JasonColavito @GalileoProject1 Except if we further this analogy along, these folks mentioned in these complaints may as well be extras or roles with one line in the entire film. And yet the whole movie will be ruined now?

SETI overall has been pretty open to the idea of UAP as a scientific issue. @SethShostak in years past has been more vocally resistant, but that has slowly changed as even he is now a member of The Galileo Project's scientific board of advisors.

@Just_Your_Fool @LipmanTroy No idea. Hence the end of this tweet here: :grimacing_face:

@bottwater @GalileoProject1 I think many saw this as a first real effort in decades from the scientific community free from the baggage of the UFO world. So when some ppl got added, they felt it was compromising that. That being said, I didnâ□□t see this outrage when members from UAPx or SCU were added.

2021-11-04T17:23:42+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1456311204347977730

@LipmanTroy I donâ□□t think youâ□□re giving this large group of very intelligent people enough credit. If for whatever reason they donâ□□t agree with what their advisors are saying, they donâ□□t have to go along with it. I think you are assigning far too much agency.

2021-11-04T17:22:15+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1456310838458032131

@LipmanTroy But we also donâ□□t know what discussions are being had behind the scenes. I myself want to wait to see the actual data / results before having an opinion on the project.

2021-11-04T17:20:09+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1456310309635854336

@LipmanTroy Yet when a few names get added as advisors, itâ□□s all the rage on here. I just think itâ□□s important to stay grounded in what GP is actually doing, and who is doing it. This outrage is a bit sensationalistic, IMO.

But I hear you. Would I myself have added some of these names? No.

2021-11-04T17:18:05+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1456309788845875208

@LipmanTroy I understand that. But I think this line of thinking gives far too much power to those you are describing. If you look at the research team and scientific board, it is truly an impressive group of professionals w/ a vast majority never associated w/ this topic. Yet here they are.

2021-11-04T16:57:38+00:00

@MadScientistPod Man, I really hope so. These last few years have really emphasized how people are literally willing to die in order to maintain their world view. Itâ□□s only become easier to seek out your own bubble where your opinion of the â□□truthâ□□ can be reinforced vs objective fact.

@BarlowTerry I certainly hope so, but she got the notification from YouTube as if it was removed. I think this topic triggers their conspiracy-related algorithms, which is kind of the whole issue.

This topic is not on the level with other topics that the algorithm considers similar.

@stevebozz1 @TheUFOTrail @bradjohansson21 Ok, I think we've kind of gone off-topic from the original point a bit. My tweet above was about how given what has transpired, I find it hard to believe Elizondo was the sole actor in regards to "AATIP."

@stevebozz1 @TheUFOTrail @bradjohansson21 Maybe. But again, doesnâ□□t really support the idea that Elizondo was flying solo. Plus, his successor was not the only one who gave briefings. Do you think the â□□Director of Operations of the US Indo-Pacific Commandâ□□ would give a briefing based solely on a History Channel show?

2021-10-30T18:29:22+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1454515790753849344

@stevebozz1 @TheUFOTrail @bradjohansson21 Iâ□□d recommend reading the New Yorker article. It would seem this successor is the one who first got the interest of Congress.

2021-10-30T18:04:56+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1454509639052103683

@TheUFOTrail @stevebozz1 @bradjohansson21 None of this begins to answer the reasonable question though. Unless weâ□□re just deciding to ignore any kind of reporting unless we get our hands on actual documentation? If this was just Elizondoâ□□s show, why didnâ□□t the topic die when he resigned?

2021-10-30T17:33:23+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1454501699394039813

@stevebozz1 @bradjohansson21 None of what I mentioned above comes from claims from Lue. It comes from Krausâ□□ reporting. Iâ□□d take the New Yorkerâ□□s editorial team about as seriously as it gets next to some actual documentation.

2021-10-30T17:07:21+00:00

https://twitter.com/_/status/1454495148797149194

@bradjohansson21 Nope, not yet. Although thatâ□□d be real nice to find out. I believe they headed AATIP post Elizondo as well as the UAPTF until they got reassigned sometime in the beginning of 2021.

If Elizondo was running this UAP portfolio all by his lonesome at the OUSDI, then wouldnâ□□t the program have died when he resigned?

Instead he had a successor who was incredibly adept at getting the attn of our highest ranked officials.
