Quite correct Jim!

But, with all respect, I'm really not sure where you sit with respect to the following:

1. You don't believe in physics.
2. You don't believe that the theory of stealth technology is valid physics.
3. You don't believe that the F-117A represents a valid application of the theory of stealth technology.

If you don't pick 1, there is of course groundwork for discussion, as well as proving your point, in my opinion. But this may not be the correct forum.
