Go to 152 degrees west by 35 degrees north to find the latest info on all you wanted to know

[The best I can figure, that's in the Pacific Ocean north of Hawaii.

Re below, I believe that this is the film that astronaut Gordon Cooper is referring to in arecent National Enquirer article which you can read c/o INFOSEEK under Gordon Cooper.

Also, a Robt. Emmenegger was involved, maybe, but once the film was sent off, it never came back.....

I think that the U.S. Government will never tell anyone what is in Area 51. They will always keep things from us. Something will come up that won't allow they to let out the information. They will always say that A51 is there. I would love it if they did let the information out to the public. They have been keeping things from us for a very long time. The Manhattan Project, for example. No one knew of this almost to the day it was used. What do you people out there think about this?

Hey, Mr.Info

I am getting a new car this week and I want to take it to Area 51 this spring, and also Rachel Nevada. I have always been interested in Area 51. I need to see for myself. Am I putting my self at risk by being there? And can you please direct me to somewhere I can get tourist info, so I now where to go when I get to Nevada. Thank you.

We are coming out to Las Vegas in May and would like to visit Area 51 as my boyfriend is a real UFO buff. Should we just rent a car to get there, or are there any tours, etc, out of Vegas? Any info would be appreciated. You can email me at RMahan6025@aol.com Thank you

[Sigh! No time to explain. There's nothing much to do here, and coming here probably isn't the best way to spend a precious vacation, but if you insist on coming, my Area 51 Viewer's Guide is helpful. See <http://www.ufomind.com/catalog/v/vg> -- GC

ALIAN AUTOPSY KEYBOARD [Off topic, but neat keyboard]

Take a look at <http://datahand.com>

Looks to me like the control panels from the debris footage re-engineered for five-fingered hands.

This product is based on a series of patents filed by Dale J. Retter, beginning in 1990 and continuing through 1996. First public disclosure of the new "keyboard" was in a press release from DataHand Inc. sent out in January of 1996 to the computer press.

If the film is a controlled release, then it would make sense to get patents in the works before that release.

I'm looking into the background of Dale J. Retter.

[Neat keyboard -- might be good for next 50 years or so. ...but in, say, the year 2050, will we be using anything so primitive? -- GC]
