

HACKER.TXT update

From: "A.J. Craddock"
Date: Sat, 11 Jan 1997 13:08:30 -0800
Subject: HACKER.TXT update

>
>in an unrelated question does anyone here know about or been to >the web site <http://www.nic.ddn.mil> It is the network information center >for the the Defence Data Net I think,
>
>=====

I used this site quite extensively together with other search tools when researching the computer domain names in the notorious HACKER.TXT document which supposedly contained the area 51 domain names.

This was obtained from the Appendix to Whitley Streiber's book "Breakthrough".

Interestingly, many of the addresses for non-area 51 addresses were indeed correct. However all the supposed Area 51 addresses turned out to be some military addresses in Germany.

My gut feeling is that at the time it surfaced in 1993, the addresses may have indeed been area 51 addresses, but that all the sensitive addresses have now been changed. However the non-sensitive ones have not been.

Either that, or it was all disinformation in the first place.

Not to be preachy, but I was a little disappointed that no-one else on the list apparently put in the spade-work necessary to research this potential nugget of information.

Tony Craddock

---

 [Next Message | Previous Message | This Day's Messages ]
 [This Month's Index | Archive Main Index | UFO UpDates Mailing List ]
 [Area 51 | UFO Topics | Ufomind What's New | Top Level ]

Area 51 Mailing List - Standards and General Information

Sponsored by the Area 51 Research Center. Moderated by Glenn Campbell.
Technical contact: webmaster@ufomind.com

Financial support for this web server is provided by the Research Center Catalog.