Hello,

I'm currently stationed at Eglin in the 33rd F.W.and have been for the past 5 years now. I've seen all the talk on the "cold hanger".It is a Climatic lab that test climate conditions on aircraft,both cold and heat Nothing too suspicious seeing its been under construction for the past couple of years.Yes the B-2 was tested in it.Yes it flew in at night.But it was no secret that it was here. It was pulled out several times for the media to see it and when it was done with testing,flew out in the broad daylight.No mystery there.
