Glen,

I worked at AFFTC [Edwards AFB] for a while. It was fun while there was decent management. They pretty much left in the 90s. Ridley Mission Control is a tomb for dying bureaucrats and those who can't get a real technical job.

If they run Area 51 (I think that Nellis does) this country is in a world of hurt. Think of it like this, its glitzy, its fun, but if you scratch below the surface, guys at AFFTC aren't smart enough to run the coverup on Area 51.

Don't get me wrong, there is a lot of neat secret stuff (or was at Eddie's air patch). but if it works, it's IN SPITE of the clowns at AFFTC. TSPI is one area (I worked there). If we got range within 50 feet we were doing good (recall, these are Nike RADARS and they are probably from the 50s), which is why some places (Tonopah, White Sands) did some of the work that needed accuracy.

95% of what I did was in AW&ST.

Keep it up, its fun to look at your work.
