F-22 TRADEMARK DISPUTE

Re: <http://www.ufomind.com/area51/list/1997/jun/a13-002.shtml>

From: Ian Kennedy <iank@MICROSOFT.com>
Subject: Novalogic and the F22
Date: Fri, 13 Jun 1997 12:51:43 -0700

What the guys at I-magic failed to note was the fact that LockMart also sent a cease and desist order to Novalogic. LockMarts stance was initially that of the property is theirs and that neither company may use the Lockheed name or trademarks without permission. Novalogic got on the ball and started to negotiate a licensing agreement. This sent I-Magic into a tailspin, they freaked out and posted to their web site about the imminent doom((tm)) of the sim industry.

I-magic over reacted when they should have been cool. If they weren't such a bunch of amateurs this would have never made it out into the public.

SCI-FI NOVEL HAS IT ALL

Date: Mon, 16 Jun 1997 23:32:09 -0700
From: Jim Dawdy <jdawdy@usa.net>
Subject: New Book

Great new book out that has EVERYTHING. A guy named James Axler (a "nom de plume") has been writing a series of post apocalyptic action novels called the "Deathlands" series. These literary gems have content like "Krysty Wroth chilled the mutie with one deadly shot from her H&K MP5SD autoblaster". He's just come out with a new series set 150 years after the Deathlands novels called "Outlanders" wherein the nuclear holocaust of the Deathlands series was actually perpetrated by evil government scientists under the direction of, you guessed it, Alien Beings. It has everything. Dulce New Mexico, underground tunnel system, New World Order, Greys, cattle mutilations, you name it. Pick it up at your local supermarket.

48 HOUR NOTAM AT GREEN RIVER SITE

The point of the Popular Mechanics article was that they had found a mysterious restricted airspace, R-6413, and that's where the secret aircraft must be flying. Well, what good is a restricted airspace if it isn't really restricted? The R-6413 airspace is NOT restricted. Anyone can fly there unless the military issues a notice that they are going to use it.

The point would not be to restrict military aircraft but to restrict private aircraft that could see the military aircraft and the supposedly secret facilities on the ground supporting this aircraft.

MYSTERY BOOM IN PHOENIX

From: [Withheld by request]
Date: Wed, 18 Jun 1997 12:11:00
Subject: Sonic Boom (yet again.)

Just a note that we've had yet another mystery sonic boom, Tuesday, June 17th, at 9:40PM in the northern Phoenix, AZ area. It was slightly different from previous booms in that it had a distinct double "spike" in the boom, that is, like two booms happening a tiny fraction of a second apart.

[Ordinary jets produce booms like that. You just don't hear them every day like we do in Rachel. --G]

CURRENT TIME MAGAZINE UFO STORY

From: "Zero" <akazero@pe.net>
Date: Thu, 19 Jun 1997 08:15:42 +0000 Subject: Time Magazine...

The June 23rd issue of Time has a couple of decent articles on Roswell and the general UFO craze. Its a nice recap of last years events (although, no mention of A51), and is almost worth the $3.00 newsstand price....

From: BaDge <baj7d@avery.med.virginia.edu>
Subject: Cover of a National Magazine-Alien Hybrid?

Has anyone seen the cover of the newest NewsWeek or Time magazine? It's got to be the creepiest cover ever, of a human-alien hybrid, with the face area taking up the whole cover, like the ones they do for the Man-of-the-Year covers! Of course it's just a simulation, but it unnerved me to the point that I declined to buy the darn thing.

NASA CONSPIRACIES NOT SAFE WITH THIS ONE

From: [Withheld]
Subject: My visit to NASA...
Date: Fri, 20 Jun 1997 17:59:50 -0400

This past week I was on a family vacation to Cleveland and took the opportunity to visit NASA's Lewis Research Center.

Upon questioning the well-trained security personnel about any public facilities (they have a nice museum), I was told to "Follow the blue line in the middle lane. You can not go anywhere else." Then, the guard stepped out, copied the license plate number from the fake vanity plate on the front of my vehicle (it said "WFU #1"). He didn't pay attention to the real plate on the back of the vehicle (I watched him as I drove away). Sometimes the government just makes you laugh.

RANT OF THE WEEK

Comment to Page: <http://www.ufomind.com/area51/comment.shtml>
From: Roberto Di Fluri <mdifluri@sfu.ca>

THERE AIN'T NO DOUBT ABOUT IT!
I've read everything I could find on ufos, cammo dudes, Area 51, extra terrestrials and space in general. If the military knows half of America knows why not out with it. The military is allowed to kill you if you trespass onto private property that "doesn't exist" that's the biggest joke I've ever heard, they must think we have the IQ's of 3 year olds. There are ordinary people and past military men that have vowed in court and on television that they were threatened to be killed if they said anything about seeing the military bring the alien spacecraft and alien bodies to their base (Area 51). Thousands probably millions of people have all said that they had been abducted and/or seen alien spacecrafts. Know I can admit that 50% of those people are probably lying but I don't think that many people would lie about the same thing.

hi mr cambell, we are a group of a elite exmilitary anti-hostage unit. We belive that three mambers of our team are being held against their will at Nellis Weapons Range. Through contacts we have found out that you happen to know nearly everything about this area and would like you to help us with guidance and extraction plans.

We would apreciate if you could help us with this matter if not we would like you to contact us any way.
