I agree with you in many ways. Campbell is elitist and has a serious 'holier-than-thou' attitude. Don't get me wrong, I like his work and he's done a lot of good bring Area 51 into the public view. But, personally, he seems to me like hes an asshole.

In some ways, I understand his reaction. He probably get's tons of e-mail from everyone and their dog, about all kinds of silly crap, from death threats to 'I'm an alien from Alpha Centauri'. I'm sure it can be hard (and probably not worth the effort most of the time) to sort out whos the nut-job and whos got real info to provide.

That said, the problem is, that he's one of the few people who live in that area that anyone knows of. I've been out to Rachel and Area 51, as well as Vegas, and seen the Janet Terminal. It would be very easy to follow someone home after they go to their car. You could then probably find out who they are. Do this with maybe 10 people, and then approach them all nearly simultaneously (you can't just approach them at very different times, because they will report back to their bosses that they were asked about it and suddenly everyone knows about you and are ready when you knock on their door). Now, if that's your plan, great, do it, or find someone who lives in Vegas to do it. But don't expect Campbell to help.

I didn't see the show on TLC. What did he say, anyway?
