LaViolette Claims Copyright Infringement in Previous Post

From: campbell@ufomind.com (Glenn Campbell, Las Vegas)

In response to an earlier posting at:

<http://www.ufomind.com/area51/list/1997/oct/a10-002.shtml>

...Paul LaViolette sent us the following request. He says the posting of his B-2 article is "illegal by international copyright law." He also phoned me. (We had a few sharp words and I hung up on him.)

LaViolette claims in his article that the B-2 bomber is an antigravity craft. My response follows his.

I am the author of the B2 antigravity article. I copyrighted this article in 1993. Posting of it is illegal by international copyright law. I have approved an excerpt of this article which people may post with my permission if they agree to link to the Sphinx Stargate website (<http://www.macconnect.com/~stargate/>) and provide information for ordering the book "Electrogravitics Systems" in which this B2 paper appears. I ask you that you remove this article immediately and replace it with the approved posting which I can email to you. Starlane Publications will soon add a page on the Sphinx Stargate website advertising this book.

Perhaps you could provide some compensation for this posting error by purchasing some of my books for your bookstore. In particular Earth Under Fire has been received with great interest by people interested in UFO's and millenium issues. Another book that would sell well is "Subquantum Kinetics" which is physics and astronomy oriented and has a chapter on Brown's work and electrogravitics. Also you may wish to
