- Chomerics - Makers of EFI shielding and RAM (radar adsorbing materials) for Stealth - Commercial - Woburn, MA, US <8/7/98 #3>
"Chomerics is now owned by Parker-Hannifin, but formerly part of the huge chemical company W.R. Grace. Grace was sued in Woburn for polluting drinking water wells causing leukemia in several area children and is in the book "A Civil Action" by Jonathan Harr, soon to be a movie. I can't help wondering if Chomerics, in manufacturing RAM may have dumped chemicals in Woburn while working for DOD on Stealth adn the Low-Observables Programs. Regarding "Related Bases and Organizations" - Latest First

Black Helicopters and Military troops

On the night of October 29, myself and my friend who lives maybe a mile away, witnessed two all black helicopters resembling comanches flying in a southwestern pattern. The helicopters shoke both mine and my friends windows. After the copters flew over a loud pulsating sound was heard. This pulsating sound also shook all of the windows. About a half hour after that I observed what looked like four or five men walking on my street shining flashlights in myself and my neighbors windows. I live in a wooded area near a small municipal airport.
