Our Review

Opinion of the webmaster, subject to debate

- The gray aliens visiting Earth "sure take a lot of boron," says government engineer "J-2," who claims to have seen the aliens in the course of his work. This leads any enterprising citizen to a logical conclusion: Buy boron! Now, here's your chance: We went to Boron, Calif., site of the world's largest borate deposit and purchased a large supply. This 3" x 7" collector's card from U.S. Borax contains samples of 4 common borate minerals found in California. You can see why the aliens like boron. It is versatile stuff with 100s of uses, and the tragedy is, we are now using it to help clean our clothes. Years from now, when earth's boron supplies are depleted, you'll be able to break open this package and trade with our space brothers. -- Glenn Campbell
