Explanation of Ratings

This is a great guide to the abandoned mining towns littering the deserts of Nevada and California. There's more towns dead than alive out there! Modern cities and highways are shown in black ink, and the ghost towns and historic places in red, complete with anecdotes documenting their significance and the years they existed. Useful in combination with Delorme's Nevada and California atlases and the Nevada Ghost Town map. (All of them are recommended equipment if you plan on actually heading into the hills.) --

Foreword

This atlas is a do-it-yourself guide to lead you back to the scenes and towns of our early west. The cities and highways of modern times are shown in black ink. The ghost towns and historic places appear with anecdotes giving their years and importance, all in red outline.

Bottle collectors and relic hunters may find many of the better known mining camps worked over, but other possibilities are still limitless old logging camps, abandoned ranch houses or any place of habitation in the right date period are good prospects. keep searching - but please do not trespass. You will need books to identify and value your finds. Numerous books have been published and many of these may be obtained at the shops listed on our maps.

Twenty-two additional ghost towns and mining camps appear in this new edition. we also took the liberty of adding more tales of treasure and lost mines. The new maps offer a fresh treatment of Nevada's famed mining camps. The reader will find extra detail as to mileages and routes into the ghost towns themselves.

We have revised the Southwestern Ghost Town Atlas which covers the four-corner states. Our northwest atlas takes you from the dakotas to the pacific. As an extra attraction, it includes gem locations as well as the empty streets of the northwest.

May you enjoy them all,

Bob & Cy Johnson
