Explanation of Ratings
Credibility = High: While the existence of each creature is debatable and some are clearly imaginary, the test sticks close to the available references.
Style = Awkward: Drawing are relatively crude.

Based on popular UFO literature, here is a alien "field guide", with a drawing of each creature and an account of how it was sighted. The author's make no representation that any of these aliens are real, but they do provida a "reliability index" for each. You can find Travis Walton's aliens here, as well as Ashtar Command, the "Roswell Autopsy" alien and the movie-prop alien that Penthouse was duped into buying photos of. The drawing themselves could be better, but the descriptions seem complete and balanced. As included are reviews of several supposed alien photos and a chronological list of UFO occupant sightings.

Publisher's Synopsis

It's here--the first illustrated, comprehensive, and authoritative album of alien visitors ever produced--complete with fascinating, detailed drawings, breathtaking, you-are-there-accounts, and experts' evaluations of each encounter. 80 illustrations.

From the Book Cover

In every corner of the world, over the past century, people have been reporting encounters with a huge array of alien beings -- some tall and human-looking, some hairy and monstrous, some reptilian-looking, and even some that defy conventional description. In Faces of the Visitors, UFO expert Kevin Randle and documentary producer and artist Russ Estes have teamed up to produce an essential reference guide to the most important close encounters, alien contactee cases, abductions, and reported photos of aliens. Each of the over fifty entries is based on actual eyewitness accounts and includes:

- A stunning description of each alien and the name of its home world, if known
- A unique reliability rating, on a scale from 0 to 10
- A gripping you-were-there narration of the encounter, along with meticulous documentation of source material

>Faces of the Visitors also offers a complete chronological database on the often overlooked but extremely important Euro-South American visitation wave of 1954 and the North American wave of 1973, as well as a comprehensive bibliography of important books, magazine articles, and journals. It is a fascinating reference for anyone curious about alien visitation and an unequaled source for those who want to learn more about their own experiences.

KEVIN RANDLE, a sought-after expert on UFOs, is the author of several books on alien phenomena, including The UFO Casebook and UFO Crash at Roswell. He lives in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Russ Estes has worked in many aspects of the entertainment industry. He most recently produced the documentaries Roswell Remembered and The Magic and Mystery of Giant Rock. He lives in Southern California.
