From the Book Cover

"Compelling... What a salute to Morse's moral courage and intellectual curiosity is his book. It deserves serious attention."

New York Tribune

It was only ten years ago that Dr. Raymond Moody first discovered that near-death experiences occur. Now, Dr. Melvin Morse, a renowned pediatrician and lead in the field of near-death research, goes one step further -- presenting astonishing proof that these experiences do indeed exist.

In hundreds of interviews with children who had once been declared clinically dead, Dr. Morse found the same description, the same experience, the same attitude, over and over again: that the end of life is serene and joyful, a welcome event not to be feared.

Here, in children too young to have absorbed our adult views and ideas of death, are first-hand accounts of out-of-body travel, telepathic communication, and encounters with dead friends and relatives -- all answering our provocative near-death experience questions, all illuminating what it is like to die, and all, with courage and dignity, proving there is that elusive "something" that survives bodily death.

"New information on what may await us after death... Responsible, highly readable, and certainly thought-provoking."
The Kirkus Reviews
