Our Review

Opinion of the webmaster, subject to debate

Credibility	Research Value	Cultural Interest	Visual Information	Style	Silliness	Wow Factor	Bargain
5	5	2	4	1	1	4	3
Very High	Very High	Low	High	Sloppy	Very Low	Surprising	Moderate

Explanation of Ratings

Credibility = Very High: The reports and observations are unquestionably genuine; however, there might be alternative explanations for the sightings. In general, this category is a rating of the author's intellectual discipline and the strength of his argument (which are very high), not the veracity of his claims (which could be false in spite of the strong argument).

Visual Information = High: Gives you an understanding of what intelligence documents look like.

Style = Sloppy: Very poor quality copies, but legible.

On Oct. 4, 1955, while travelling across Russia by train on a diplomatic mission, Senator Richard Russell and two companions clearly saw two disk-shaped craft ascend in the sky. Russell was Chairman of the Armed Services Committee at the time, so his testimony was not taken lightly. Detailed reports were filed with the Air Force, CIA and FBI and kept secret for 30 years, until released in the 1980s under the Freedom of Information Act. This package contains photocopies of the released reports, as well as biographical information on Russell and an article on the incident from the National Enquirer. The copies of the reports are very poor, but legible. Some names are censored, but most of the reports are complete. Although no analysis is provided, these raw intelligence documents provide a fascinating look into how the government handled a sensitive UFO case. -- Glenn Campbell
