Our Review

Opinion of the webmaster, subject to debate

Credibility	Research Value	Cultural Interest	Visual Information	Style	Silliness	Wow Factor	Bargain
1	1	4	3	2	5	3	2
Very Low	Very Low	High	Moderate	Awkward	Very High	Interesting	Low

Explanation of Ratings

Credibility = Very Low: In general, this category is a rating of the author's intellectual discipline and the strength of his argument (which are very low), not the veracity of his claims (which could be true in spite of the weak argument).

Silliness = Very High: High silliness isn't necessarily a bad thing. Such items often make amusing gifts or may be interesting as cultural artifacts.

Bargain = Low: In general, items with a low bargain rating are not considered worth the retail price as judged by the useful research data they contain. However, they may have cultural or entertainment value, which is not included in the bargain rating.

These researchers set up a video camera almost anywhere, point it at the sky and let it run. They then review the tape frame by frame, and find amazing objects zipping across the sky, making sudden turns and "defying the laws of physics." These elongated, blurry objects have been dubbed "rods". They are either distant objects moving at tremendous speed, or close objects flitting about only inches from the lens. Skeptics would call them insects, just happening to flying in front of the camera, but these researchers insist that there is something more amazing at work. An interesting challenge is to try to figure out why the objects seem to have structure, something like a segmented worm. -- Glenn Campbell

Regarding "Rods: Mysterious Objects Among Us" - Latest First

Rods are real entities, like it or not.

Since becoming familiar with videos of "rods" in the early '80s I've become a "rod hunter" and in the past month I've found three "rods" in new and old videotaped footage I've made off cable tv. It's ok for Glenn Campbell to pooh-pooh something he doesn't understand but it's really dumb to do so. See a "rod" for yourself; pay attention to the off-center area of the tv screen particularly panoramas or areas of open sky. E-mail me and I'll tell you where to see the 3 I have on tape.

Rods were given some air time on the Learning Channel

Rods were given air time on the learning channel last night . You need to put this book on a URL list. People are looking for it. It took me two hours to find it. If a guy on the show had not been wearing a Roswell hat , I never would have found it . I can not get my system to connect for purchase cause I am on a corporate computer, so I will have to wait to buy it. I do not care if you print this or not , I am just telling you when I searched the word Rod this book should have came up and an address to send for it or buy it on line .
