Explanation of Ratings

Bargain = Low: In general, items with a low bargain rating are not considered worth the retail price as judged by the useful research data they contain. However, they may have cultural or entertainment value, which is not included in the bargain rating.

Philip Klass agrees that alleged abductees are victims -- but not of aliens. They have been deceived, instead, by abduction researchers, who in the process of promoting themselves are determined to see alien intrusions regardless of the facts. Due to popular books, movies and TV shows on the subject, thousand have been "implanted" with the idea that aliens are messing with them, and this breeds unnecessary fear and neurosis. This book is mostly a response to Whitley Strieber's Communion and Budd Hopkins' Missing Time and Intruders. Those who know Klass and his work won't find any surprises here. This book is written by the Klass-o-Matic skeptic machine, picking apart the printed claims of Streiber and Hopkins. If you are seriously interested in abductions, then you probably ought to read it. However, if you are only casually interested and already recognize the possibility of human self-deception, then the book probably isn't worth the price, since you know what Klass is going to say before he says it. -- Glenn Campbell
