Our Reservations About Videos

We are highly suspicious of most UFO and paranormal documentaries available on videotape, including those that we sell. For one thing, the best ones are shown for free on cable TV. Those that remain are generally of low credibility. We have never seen any convincing UFO footage that has stood the test of time. In most UFO videos, no research references are given and the skeptical viewpoint is rarely given a fair hearing. In most subjects, we would choose a book over a video every time, because at least the claims are easy to locate and refer back to.

The only advantage of videos is that they give you an opportunity to "meet" a person who you have only read about or "visit" a place that has existed only in your imagination. If you have invested a lot of time in reading an author's books or investigating the claims of a certain witness, then you might also want to see him speak to better understand his personality. Some videos can provide visual information to supplement your reading, but they should never be used as your primary source.
