Comparison to Other Books

On the surface, resembles Katherina Wilson's Alien Jigsaw, but Wilson's book appears to be much more detailed.

From the Book Cover

This is the true story of a CPA, wife and mother, whose middle-class, Southern-Baptist world was shattered when and innocent conversation triggered obsessive memories of abductions by "aliens." When Leah Haley sought professional help, she discovered, to her horror, that here memories were not manifestations of mental illness (and, therefore, she could not be "cured"). When she began to investigate, agencies of the U.S. Government and/or military became so vitally interested in her contact with other intelligences that they were willing to risk charges of burglary, kidnapping and torture to learn what she knew and to silence her. And then she learned that the alien craft that had crashed while she was aboard may have been shot down by the U.S. Air Force! The most credible of all "abductees," Ms. Haley has been featured in Omni magazine, has appeared on The Joan Rivers Show, Encounteres, and others, and has delivered speeches from coast to coast.

"This book is a 'must' read. Not just for people who want to understand the abduction phenomenon from the abductee's point of view, but also for anyone who doesn't believe that the government covers things up."

DEBBIE JORDAN. "Kathie Davis" of the book Intruders by Budd Hopkins

"A very fascinating account by a very brave woman."

-- RICHARD F. HAINES, Ph.D.
Research Scientist (Ret.)
