"Through most of its 18-year history, the high-tech and engineering firm worked almost exclusively with the military, building off its first contract with Nellis Air Force Base's Air Warfare Center. Arcata Associates is still the "engineering and integration contractor" to the Air Warfare Center at Nellis. During combat training exercises, Arcata's systems are used for communications to keep score of the war games and to electronically simulate threats that fighter pilots could face in combat."
