American Computer Company and its many domains

[Regarding recent Roswell-related claims by "American Computer Company" and its president Jack Shulman.]

I'd bet that ACC is not much more than a boiler room operation. For one thing they share a leased suite (not to mention the same phone # and email) with other companies and organizations, all operated by Shulman and friends.

I looked up these domain names on a whois server.

compamerica.com,
accpc.com (American Computer Company)
Address: 6 Commerce Drive, suite 2000, Cranford, New Jersey

Note: ACC (ie. ACC Corporation) is also the name of a much larger telecommunications corporation.

acsa2000.com (American Computer Scientists Association)
Address: 6 Commerce Drive, suite 2000, Cranford, New Jersey

Note: ACSA is also the acronym for the Association of California School Administrators ticorporation.com (Technology International Corporation)

Address: 6 Commerce Drive, second floor, Cranford, New Jersey

Note: Similar acronym to Texas Instruments (TI)

kasparov.com (American Computer Company)
Address: same as above

Note: a blatant domain name grab of Garry Kasparov, they even admit to a dispute with Kasparov and Robert Rice of the Professional Chess Association with a veiled disclaimer on the top page (www.kasparov.com). Most of the claims they make about their "supercomputer" are using a testimonial by an "investigative journalist".

Try this link to view the leased building of ACC:

Having said all this, it's my opinion their small businesses are legitimate and legal but their advertizing methods and the claims they make are certainly, highly questionable.
