Is there any way you could remove my name from your list of ufologists?
I am out of the field. I have disowned the theory outlined in my work
"The Controllers," and have requested everyone carrying the piece on the web to remove it. That damned thing has caused nothing but trouble.

If you can't remove my name, at least be good enough to inform your readers that I have changed my tune. Frankly, UFO buffs and conspiracy nuts kind of make me feel ill these days. I am SO damned sick of always being called an "agent"...

Thanks,

MJC

As a follow-up to the letter I just now sent you:

I have written two very strongly worded letters to the people who have (without permission) posted my work, "The Controllers," to the net. In all likelihood, the links you have listed will soon be non-functional.

Martin --

Thanks for your email messages.

It is against our policy to remove a ufologist page once it has been created. As long as you are someone who people discuss on the net, then the page is justified.

However, I did add your messages to the page as a reponse to your "Controllers" document. That way, at least people can see your current position on it.
