Project Tobacco? What exactly is it?
By: John Greenewald, Jr.

Running an internet web site, I get many pranksters, jokers, and liars write me and tell me they are from the government, they are going to kill me, or other ridiculous claims, but there have been a few where it made me think, "Maybe this one is for real." I got a letter, and by request, I will call him Benjamin". Now, "Benjamin" wrote me in regards to my web site, telling me about the Snowbird Aircraft photograph I have on my web site. For those who are not familiar with this photograph, it is a supposed alien aircraft, and the picture is the craft mounted on top of a pylon, possibly at a Lockheed plant or even Area 51. Now, "Benjamin" told me that this was an X-151 aircraft from Project Torridor. "Benjamin" went on to say that you would never get a picture of an alien aircraft in the daylight.

This was "Benjamin"'s first letter to me, and being taken back by his knowledge about the craft, I still was not convinced of his claims. I made a FOIA request to the United States Air Force, requesting a picture of the X-151, unfortunately, I have been given no answer as of yet.

"Benjamin" worked for the National Reconnaissance Office. All "Black Projects" are compartmentalized, that way no agency can really know what the other is doing. He went on to tell me a bit about a base in New Mexico, in a mountain called Baldy. The base is 200 feet deep, and 30 acres square. There are 1,500 from another world working there. They come from a dead planet in the Cygnus Ra Star System. "Benjamin" worked there, and gave me the exact coordinates: 21hours 13minutes 52seconds D33degrees 10'. The aliens, in exchange for us giving them a place to live, they will help us advance to join some kind of an alliance of planets. They hope that we will be ready by the year 2025. This is where Project Tobacco comes in. Project Tobacco is a project to get the public ready for this event. It is done through movies, media, books, television, and magazines. Project Tobacco was given it's name because if anybody else would find out about it, it would burn up like Tobacco. So, on December 09, 1997, I wrote a Freedom of Information Act request to the United States Air Force, and also to Wright Patterson Air Force Base, which "Benjamin" told me was part of the project. I received 2 letters back, both dated December 29, 1997. The first was just an acknowledgment receipt. The second, was a letter starting off saying "This office is not a repository for UFO information." It went on to give me information on UFOs and Project Blue Book, and they attached a Fact Sheet on UFOs, a page I have been given many times. Confused, I checked back to my letter, not 1 mention of UFOs, aliens, anything for them to spark a response like that, NOTHING. Was this a goof-up? "Benjamin" was very surprised I got this response, and he told me it was definately a mistake. Wright Patterson is still to respond, but what will I get, if anything, from them? Now I am getting very interested, possibly "Benjamin" is telling the turh. Or maybe the Air Force did goof-up, but maybe they just figured I was talking about UFOs? Highly unlikely, because not all my requests to them deal with UFOs.

Now, I am going to do an excerpt out of one of "Benjamin"'s letters, because I figure if I paraphrase it, I will just get the information mixed up. So here it is: "I worked on the Gravity Catapult. Einstein General Theory has a number of similarites to the Maxwell theory of electromagnetism. In electromagnetism, the basic source of all the forces is the charge in the electron. The charge generates an electric field. If you move the charge to form an electric current, the current generates a magnetic field. If you increase or decrease a magnetic field, that hanging magnetic field in turn generates an electric field. The same thing happens in gravity. The basic source of all the forces is the mass of whatever particles you are using. The mass generates a gravity field. If you move the particles to form a mass current, the current generates a new field that is the gravitational equivalent of the magnetic field. (an anti-gravity engine). We have it, have had it for several years now and I worked on it. Why do you think NASA is slowly trying to down-size. They keep calling for smaller cheaper engines and so forth. They know that the present form of space-flight as well as transportation here on Earth is about to change. They don't want to waste the money...but they have to or everyone will wonder why. The use millions of dollars of tax-payer money on useless stuff! This engine uses no fuel, has no sound and can never break. Since it uses gravitational fields for motion...as long as you have gravity, the engine will work."

Is this information real? Did the United States Air Force make a huge mistake by referencing UFOs on a Project Tobacco FOIA request? You decide, here is the information, and the United States Air Force letter can be seen on my web site, at http://www.blackvault.com/foia/af_index.html
