NIDS report on Utah mutilation

From: nids2@anv.net

Date: Tue, 2 Feb 1999 09:32:31 -0800

We are notifying people in the field of animal mutilation on a recent interesting case in Utah. The full report is on our web site at: <http://www.accessnv.com/nids/page4.shtml>.

Preliminary Investigation of the unexplained death of a cow in N.E. Utah, October 16, 1998.

ABSTRACT

On October 16, 1998 a three year old registered polled Hereford cow was found dead by the owner who had seen the animal in good health the previous day. The animal's left eye and periorbital tissue was removed as well as part of it's left ear. A full necropsy followed by toxicological, histological and chemical analysis was done on the animal. The following noteworthy features were found: [1] Both the left periorbital tissue and left ear were removed with (a) sharp instrument(s) as confirmed by two and three veterinary pathologists respectively; [2] no evidence of high heat or cautery was obtained from these cuts; [3] no signs of struggle and no tracks were found near the animal; [4] an unusual, formaldehyde-containing blue gel like substance was found on the eye, the ear and the anus of the animal; [5] the animal's heart was shredded, yet it's pericardium was intact; [6] the animal tested positive on two different pregnancy tests, yet there was no fetus present at the time of necropsy and no sign of a recent spontaneous abortion; [7] it is suspected that the animal's blood contained high levels of potassium chloride; [8] the animal had extremely low liver copper levels; [9] severe hemorrhaging under the hide around the neck of the animal was observed; [10] the animal was normal for routine bacteriology, virology and toxicology scans. The case continues to be analyzed.

The full report containing 12 figures and graphs can be obtained from the NIDS web site. We would be interested in any similarities with this case that other researchers have found. We would also be interested in comments and suggestions from other people involved in this area of research. NIDS is a scientific research organization that is committed to applying scientific methodology to studying this topic. We are also committed to informing the public regarding our findings.

Sincerely
NIDS scientific staff
