Author code should be used when entering links

When adding a link, if the author of the document already exists in our people database, please enter the "filecode" for that person instead of their full name. (The file code is usually their last name in all-lowercase.)

Their full name will then be filled in automatically when you save the record.

When the link is displayed, the presence of a filecode automatically turns the author's name into a hot-link to their people record. It will also allow other forms of cross referencing in the future.

For example, instead of entering "Jan Aldrich" for the author, enter "aldrich" in the filecode field. "Jan Aldrich" will then be inserted automatically, linked to his page.
