"There is extensive photographic evidence available to all who care to see it, displaying the thoroughly unnatural means of slaughter employed by this unknown being. These animals died as the result of a single puncture mark, found on some part of the body, which apparently drained them of blood."

"Is it fact or fantasy? The chupacabras, that is, the bloodsucking beast said to be ravaging animals throughout the countryside. The government veterinarian charged with investigating a rash of reported animal mutilations says the attacks can be pinned on packs of stray dogs. A fellow veterinarian, however, says at least several cases in which he has conducted post-mortem examinations suggest the culprit is a rare beast indeed."

Regarding "Chupacabras" - Latest First

Isn't it obvious

Isn't it obvious that Satanists would just go to a butcher shop and buy blood. Also, isn't it obvious that no organs were taken from the animals, only blood. Too many people have seen it and it happened too many times for it to be false. The fact that a bunch of rnegade Satanists would go roaming the countryside in search of animal blood is more ridiculous than a yet undiscovered animal.

animal mutilations

Isn't it extremely obvious that the animal mutilations are created by satanists who need blood and animal parts for their rituals. There is always going to be something left behind.

What it needs

Hi. The Chupacabras web page is awesome, but there is one thing I don't like. It needs more links. That's it. Maybe add the definition of a Chupacabra, like what you did in the "Ufomind: top level" page(main page). Other than that, its awesome!
