"Despite deep-seated mistrust and hostility, the two most powerful groups of tough, inner-city rodents -- squirrels and rats -- have formed an evolutionary alliance to secure their bailiwick of sewers, city parks and other public works, as well as to further encroach upon human territory and food supplies. For the first time in history, squirrels and rats have put aside their differences, deciding to MATE, in order to create a more deadly, hybrid "master" rodent race."

Just like it happened with the "chupacabra" (AKA: goat sucker), a designer/artist type is hawking a bunch of t-shirts and other items emblazoned with renditions of a cryptozoological enigma. This time it's the sqrat -- a creature purported to be half squirrel and half rat, having the temperament of a vicious attack dog.

Regarding "General Forteana" - Latest First

Dinosaurs And Man Lived Together

Yeah, and Madonna is a virgin. It appears this guy is using the long discredited Paluxy River "man tracks" (actually the tracks of theropod dinosaurs) to advance his ridiculous notions. It seem that the Germans, whom I've always associated with practicality and level-headedness, have their share of crackpots, too.

In Defence of the Lowly Sqrat...

I totally believe in sqrats. Here in the wilds of New Hampshire the randy squirrels have been interbreeding with the local FISH. Yesterday I caught a sqickerel and many of my friends report catching sqass, sqrount and sqalmon! How can anyone deny the evidence that is made up before their eyes?

Sqrats are fake

"Sqrats" are total B.S.!! They're probably just squrrils with rabies, or maybe just an urban legend, like alligators in sewers. If you live in New York worry about 'em there fake. Worry about getting a cab whose driver speaks English!
