- A Possible Discovery Regarding ESP - Description of experiment by Spottiswoode comparing psychic effects to time of day. - Press release - By SSE - Published: 6/23/97 <9/28/97 Imported #4>
 "Spottiswoode, a trained physicist, took an empirical approach. Rather than worry about what the experiments were measuring, he merely examined whether there was any significant correlation. He gathered data on 1468 published trials, and to his surprise found that, whatever the effect being measured was, it more than tripled when the local sidereal time (LST) was near 13:30."
- Parapsychology wins blind testing survey - By D. Trull - Source: Parascopes <3/17/98 #7>
 "A survey of over a thousand published research papers indicates that parapsychology actually adheres much more strictly to the scientific method of blind techniques than the "hard sciences" do. Tests in the areas of ESP, telekinesis and other paranormal studies frequently employ blind controls to eliminate experiment biases, whereas research in chemistry and physics hardly ever follows such practices."
