Regarding "Aron Abrahamsen" - Latest First

Abrahamsen's earth change map is puzzling

Mr. Abrahamsen has put the entire west coast all the way to Kansas underwater, from Puget Sound in the north to the Mexican border in the south (Canada and Mexico are spared). The new coastline is a completely smooth curve: what happened to the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada? Wouldn't the Pacific Ocean pour all the way to the Mississippi if it passed the continental divide? Even if a big comet bashed into the west coast, I think there would be some influence on the resulting coastline by the preexisting geology and topology. Mr. Abrahamsen should revisit his muse and fine tune his predictions.
