Spitzer-Boylan Dialog-2

Subject: Spitzer-Boylan Dialog-2

Michael Spitzer presses on:

> etc? i was wondering what your conclusion/take (results of your research) on cattle mutts and abductions is, i.e., how you would break it all down, ie, what % of each you think are really ET, > what % you would guesstimate are human in origin, and the %, IF ANY, that are ET and human in complicity, and whether you see this break down differing from one part of the world to another?

Dr. Boylan answers:

The information I have from knowledgeable sources leads me to the following estimates. A small percentage, perhaps 7%, of tissue harvesting of cattle and other animals is conducted by extraterrestrial scientists/technicians for two purposes: 1) study and monitoring of the pollutants and diseases humans are spreading and becoming susceptible to, in order to figure out how to help us; and 2) for the purpose of using tissue to grow nutrients for the hybrid fetuses one race is developing to splice some human characteristics into their race line, and to assure the survival of some vestige of humanity in the event we continue down the path to our own total planetary destruction. (They would then re-seed the Earth with intelligent humanoids who carry at least part of the previous human race's characteristics.

Perhaps 93% of "cattle mutts" are being done by National Reconnaissance Organization Special Forces DELTA units operating with Teledyne Ryan Aeronautical's XH-75D "Shark" silenced, antigravity and invisibility-capable helicopters, using gravity-cancelling "tractor beams" and hand-held lasers to extract, work on, and replace animals. These NRO DELTA recon units do these cattle mutts to a small degree to also harvest scientific samples, but mostly in order to aggravate ranchers so as to turn them against the extraterrestrials, and as part of a larger psy-war campaign to alienate the American population against extraterrestrial visitors. This psychological warfare campaign is renegade, and not sanctioned by the White House or Congress.

Besides cattle mutilations, these renegade NRO units are also conducting human kidnappings, examinations, experimentations, rape and torture, for the same purposes, and returning their abductees with the false memory implanted that the person was "abducted by aliens". Thus they hope that these victims will go public and spread defamation about the extraterrestrials.

Michael Spitzer adds:

also, how much of each would you consider benevolent vs malevolent? i know you feel strongly that the real ET presence here is benevolent, BUT obviously not ALL is such, so i was wondering what % of close encounters (ie real ET ones as well as "other") of the fifth (or greater) types are of evil. and remember, my definition of evil is a tad different than i believe your is...evil to me is WITHOUT COMPLETELY INFORMED CONSENT, and/or if it involves infringing on ones free will, EVEN IF IT IS REALLY FOR THE GOOD OF THE EXPERIENCER...remember?)

Dr. Boylan replies:

The human race does not have a monopoly on aberrant behavior in the universe. But reflect that selfish, overmaterialistic, violent cultures like the U.S. and other Western powers are but a phase in our evolution to our full and true potential as completely-developed sentient, intelligent spiritual beings. Many planetary cultures have reached the stage Earth is at, and vanished in a global warfare or ecocide tragedy. This is our current "delicate stage" Earth is at: whether to advance in ecological and social responsibility behavior, or to poison our planetary home or blow ourselves up.

Generally, those planetary cultures which have gotten past Earth's current awkward-adolescent phase have grown to advanced spiritual and cultural levels. At those advanced levels, they have felt the kind of generous, outreaching inspirations which also have motivated fine humans to volunteer for the Peace Corps. Thus, we on Earth are being visited by those cultures which have matured to where they don't solve problems by six-gun fast-draw contests, and have grown up enough to realize there is more to life than a Ferrari in the garage.

The visiting cultures are loosely affiliated into what we may call an Interstellar Federation, which has principles and standards in interplanetary contact. The Federation has pledged to keep any extremely-rare rogue ET group from marauding a lesser-developed planet like Earth. Thus, we do not have to fear "alien invaders", despite the popularity of this imaginary threat on video games.

You speak of evil as anything "without completely informed consent". But your criterion is problematic. How does a Star Visitor inform an Earthling about something completely outside the Earthling's comprehension? How can an Earthling provide consent to something s/he does not and cannot understand? And what about the thousands of humans who, after their initial fright at an extraterrestrial encounter, got over it and welcome these opportunities to meet, learn from, and be advanced physically, mentally and spiritually by these Star Visitors? In a less-primitive understanding of "time", where past, present, and future are accessible on some level in the now, isn't retroactive consent valid? And knowing retroactive consent from the human contacted, are the Star Visitors who operate above time really making contact without consent? I suggest that it is inappropriate to take a standard developed for human medical procedures and apply it to other cultures's contact efforts, especially since these are time-urgent in view of the little time Earth has left before we self-destruct.

Consider: does your cat have a basis for a rights-violation complaint, because you take her to the vet to get her shots, and she feels scared, uncomfortable and constrained. If you soothe her afterwards and tell her it was for her own good, so that she doesn't die prematurely of feline leukemia, are you abusing her, and denying her "fully-informed consent"?

Consider: If your son is driving and seriously injured and unconscious in an auto accident, and afterwards some strangers (paramedics) take him away to an unknown location (ER), and other strangers (MDs, RNs) poke and prod him and do unfamiliar procedures on him without his consent, are his rights being violated?

We need to grow beyond our narrow, culture-bound, Earth-is-center-of-the-Universe thinking, and start to look at things from the Big Picture perspective. That includes: cultural differences, Earth's very survival, humility by a Superpower (U.S.) in the face of off-planet "superpowers" who do not have to operate by our current crude level of intellectual and cultural development, and ought not to.

Thanks for the thought-provoking questions, Mike. You raise important issues. I hope I have offered some helpful perspectives.
