Regarding "Richard Hoagland" - Latest First

James Bond and Area 51

In the movie, "Diamonds are Forever" isn't it curious that James Bond goes to that subterranean science research facility owned by Willard White to find out about that killer satellite, which is located somewhere outside of Las Vegas? Isn't it also curious that when James was running through WW's facility that he runs through a set of the Moon. (Sort of falls in line with Richard Hoagland's theory on the fake moon landing). Well, it's just a thought.

'Strange'

Richard C. Hoagland, claims that 'guvmint' nuked his heart, fireballs over Arizona, 19.5, et al. Supported and relished for the ratings draw by Art Bell. And the followers continue to embrace this sort of thing and can't figure out why Area 51 is off limits as well as other items of our being we should know about. Well, oddly, most rational beings have a normal abhorance for insantiy. Thus, stay away from it. The powers that be are probably not all that comfortable with the likes of Bell-Hoagland & Co. and thus the distance and silence continues. Always will until this sort of thing stops. 19.5 that gentle readers. Consider.

What's next from the Hoagland camp? Coronaryanomalies.com?

Hoagland has really gone off the deep end this time, blaming his heart attack on some sort of voodoo curse from supernatural enemies who want to see him silenced. Does anyone else see paranoia here?--seeing connections between anything and everything, thinking everyone's out to get him, etc. I had a friend in college who smoked a lot of pot and started to act this way ...

Hoagland's Erroneous Resume

Hoagland's bio refers to his serving as the "Former Curator of Astronomy and Space Science at the Springfield Museum of Science, Springfield, Mass." Well, I contacted the museum and asked them if this was true. Their reply: "Thank you for your inquiry about Richard Hoagland. I have been trying to track down the information you requested. We have been unable to find a personnel record on anyone of that name." In fact, Hoagland may have worked there on an occaqsional basis as a planetarium lecturer, but he was never a permanent employee - and certainly not Curator.
