Was Lazar right?

I seem to remember Lazar saying that when 115 is bombarded with protons, it becomes 116, which then decays into 114. Article #2 confirms that 116 decays into 114. How could he have known that? Lucky guess? Or can any decent nuclear physicist predict such behavior?

Phantom Elements

The neutrino was "discovered" to prop up relativity, and it has never been proven unless they change it around to fit false parameters, as I noticed it now has a slight mass. The one good thing is that all these phantom, fleting particles or elements behave like a typical UFO, they vanish before you can say bye, bye, to them. Bill
