 If it does go to trial my contact said that there are only two ways to go: 1: If its real, you can not claim copyright on military film (see below). At present there is no record evidence that this footage is not military, hence, you can't claim copyright. Harder wins. 2: If they come clean and state its a hoax, they keep the lawsuit open. Why would they do that? Of what value is it to keep it open as a known hoax. Harder wins.

Alien autopsy films

Just a short comment regarding the so-called alien autopsy films..I noticed the telephone on the wall in the operating room...and if I'm not mistaken, that type of set was not available til the sixties sometime, and certainly not in the fourties..

chemical analyses of Santilli Film

I have analized one photogram of the Santilli Film by using a FTIR spectroscopy at the Departement of Chemistry of the Pisa University and the film is produced by Aestman Kodak . The name of the polymer employed is Kodapak 4 (Cellulose Acetate with poliphpsforic acid as reticulant agent). The film must be produced in 1947
