Regarding "Black Helicopters" - Latest First

Color Schemes

It seems that a lot of you are really hooked on the color BLACK. Would you feel any differently if it were a blue or green or red helicopter? It amazes me that so many people automatically think there's always something secret or spooky going on based on the fact that the car or truck or boat or aircraft is painted black.

So they do exist

I was visited by a black helicopter the other night. While I am convinced there is no supernatural element to this occurrence, it does raise some ugly questions. If anyone has any recent encounters I would be greatfull if they could mail the details to me. I am particularly interested in any Non-U.S. sightings that may have occurred.

Some Truth

I am going to remain anonymous on this, as I work for a government agency, well known, to be the source of these mythical "black helicopters". I do not doubt that these people have seen the helicopters. In most cases these are training exercises which could take place in any city, in any part of the world, most often in the US. The rumours that everyone says, about the UN taking over-its all a myth. Trust me. There are alot of secret operations that go on, in Every state in the US, whether it be training, test flights, or whatever to protect this country, things the general public are not supposed to know about. To protect us all.

Possible black helicopter sighting

June 5, approx 11:10 pm, 2 helicopters (BlackHawks, i believe) flew low (approx 200 ft.) and slow (guess 70 knots) over my home in Tempe, AZ. Between the 2 helicopters were 2 bright, unblinking white lights (not spotlights), which seemed not attached to the craft, but stayed in formation with them.
