Hi Bob, Hi Mac, Hi all,

I have spoken with Bob about this. Although after having seen the "Datahand" I agree that the design is almost identical to the debris in the Santilli film, I think it's unfair to imply that the concept for the Datahand was necessarily 'gotten' from it.

Glove style devices for controlling computers have been around for more than just a few years, and it seems to me that the "Datahand" concept is just a natural extension of that technology. A "static" (desktop) version of the glove if you will.

Again, I do find the similarities between Datahand and Santilli's debris curious and maybe even a bit compelling, but folks are starting to talk like that's "probably" the way that Mr Retter got the idea for the design. It _is_ within the realm of possibility that this poor bastard Retter (who unbeknownst to himself is about to become grist for the UFO mill) came up with the idea on his own!

As Mr T would say (in regard to the "probably innocent"
Mr Retter,...) "I pity the fool!" <G>
