 To: EMFLDS-L@LISTSERV.ACSU.BUFFALO.EDU

The Center for Frontier Sciences at Temple University (Philadelphia, PA) invites you to attend the (free) Spring '97 Lectures on topics of Quantum Biology, Vacuum-Field Energy, and Alternative/Complementary Medicine:

February 24, 1997 (Monday) 2:00 pm
 Cyril W. Smith, Ph.D.,
 Department of Engineering, University of Salford, Salford, UK
 "Is a Biological System a Macroscopic Quantum System?"

Evidence in support of quantum effects in living systems will be presented in relation to developments in the theory of water that predict the existence of coherence domains in the ground state within chaotic water.

March 17, 1997 (Monday) 2:00 pm

Dr. Hans A Nieper, FAPM,
President of the German Association of Vacuum Field Energy and Past-President of the German Society of Oncology, Hannover, Germany
"Conversions of Vacuum Field Energy: Its Significance for Medicine, Medical Therapy, and Energy Technology in the Forthcoming Century."

The space between particles of atomic matter is filled with an energy field, called a vacuum field. This field shows an extremely high energy density and vital interactions with biological systems. The prospects for developments in medicine and energy technology are presented, including the conversion of vacuum-field energy into usable forms.

March 18, 1997 (Tuesday) 2:00 pm

George Weissmann, Ph.D.,
Berkeley, CA

"The Quantum and I: Implications of the Emerging Quantum Paradigm"

Seventy years after its development, quantum theory still poses challenges to the foundations of science. Its implications are not only scientific and philosophical, but also, if we allow them to penetrate us deeply, existential. For quantum theory appears to offer us the opportunity to reenvision ourselves and our universe in a fundamentally interconnected way, opening the path for a new synergistic relationship between science and spirituality.

April 3, 1997 (Thursday) 2:00 pm

William J. Walsh, Ph.D.,

Founder and Director of the Carl Pfeiffer Treatment Center and Health Research Institute, Naperville, IL "Biochemical Treatments: Health for the Next Century"

Biochemical treatment aims to alleviate chemical imbalances through the use of neurotransmitter building blocks: amino acids, vitamins, minerals, and other nutrients. Chemical classifications and syndromes for behavior disorders, depression, and schizophrenia are described. Outcome studies measuring the efficacy of biochemical treatments for these disorders are presented.

Place: Temple University
Kiva Auditorium, Ritter Hall Annex
1301 Cecil B. Moore Ave.
(NE corner of North Broad St. & Cecil B. Moore Ave.)
Philadelphia, PA

Time: 2:00 - 3:30 p.m.
Refreshments served at 1:30 p.m.
Lectures are free; the academic community and public are invited.

About the Center for Frontier Sciences:

The goal of the Center is to facilitate scientific study in areas such as bioelectromagnetics, the mind-matter interrelationship, complementary and alternative medicine, unresolved issues in quantum physics, and new energy technologies.

As an integral part of a major university, the Center maintains high standards in reviewing new claims, while remaining open to ideas that may go beyond currently dominant paradigms.

Frontier Perspectives, the Center's semi-annual journal, publishes peer-reviewed scientific papers, along with Invited Opinions, Book

Reviews, and news of organizations, meetings, and other publications of interest. A cumulative index is posted on the Center's website at URL <http://www.temple.edu/CFS>.

Best regards,
Bob Flower
