South Central Intelligence Agency

If you missed it the first time, catch the latest update on CIA Director John Deutch's bizarre visit to South Central Los Angeles. Perhaps Deutch was expecting a softball press junket, but instead he got a ride in the Unwelcome Wagon as South Central residents grilled him on the extent of his agency's involvement in the influx of cocaine to the Los Angeles area. Get complete transcripts, screen captures and analysis in this comprehensive update of an explosive confrontation long overdue and well deserved.

The Xerox Spy

In the wacky TV show "Get Smart," bumbling would-be spy Maxwell Smart used such improbable gadgets as the shoe-phone and the cone of silence to carry out his espionage. But even Maxwell Smart never thought of bugging a photocopier. But that's just what an American intelligence operative did while spying on the Russians. He snuck a spy camera into the Russkie's Xerox machine, where it snapped photos of every document they copied. Dossier editor Jon Elliston takes you inside this amazing spy story, showing you the documents themselves and telling you the wacky-but-true story of "the Xerox Spy."

Researchers Call Bullshit on Fake Alien

The world of UFO research can be as serious as any legitimate scientific undertakings or as ridiculous as the carnival midway. A recent string of developments in the Israeli UFO community has more resembled the latter than the former. Self-proclaimed psychic spoon-bender Uri Geller claimed at a recent Israeli UFO conference that he was abducted by aliens as a child. Another speaker who claimed to have been given special powers by offworld visitors proclaimed that a cavalcade of saucers would gather over Tel Aviv on Jan. 5. (It didn't happen.) Finally, a sample of an alleged recovered alien body was analyzed by researchers who announced preliminary results revealing cow dung among the substances identified from the sample.

Occult Indoctrination: It's Cool!

The mysterious and cryptic teachings of the ancient Egyptians have long been among the most closely guarded by those initiated into secret societies and clandestine cabals. Now, you too can get in on the wacky secrets, kooky occultism and scary symbology of the enlightened and illumined sages of ancient Egypt. Even better, you can pick whether you want the full text or the Cliff Notes version. The Rosicrucian Order in San Jose, Calif. offers an in-depth study course in the mysteries of ancient Egypt and Babylon. You can meditate in their private gardens, study in their private library, or linger among their ancient artifacts. Or, if you prefer the low-fat version, visit the Luxor Hotel and Casino (also the world's largest pyramid) in Las Vegas. Play craps, try a video game and undergo the first three levels of occult indoctrination in the casino's theme park! Occult indoctrination doesn't get any cooler than this.
