Subject: Strange Universe and Steve

Hello,

My name is Steve Nalepa and I am a researcher for the tv news show Strange Universe. I just wanted to shed a little light on a few things, in particular I want to address some of the concerns expressed in a recent posting.

--snip--

>The alleged implants removed from the woman's toe is the most compelling >and amazing video I have ever seen. The object removed looked like a >black triangle. For Strange Universe to omit this piece of evidence >and go with the hand "implant" is not just a mistake, it is an obvious >manipulation of the material presented. No one in his or her right >mind would want to omit this triangular object from a "well-balanced" >program. -----

We here at the show are working very hard to try and present information accurately and fairly. When we cover a story we try to provide as much information as possible in the amount of time allotted. Unfortunately the format of our show only allows segments to be at most 5 minutes in duration. Sometimes it is difficult to tell the stories as thoroughly as we would like in the time we have. And then there are other issues that factor in like clip clearance and people's availability. Anything we air on our show must be given approval by whoever owns the right to the photograph or footage, and in some cases we can't show some of the more compelling items that we would like to, because we can't get clearance rights. This is a fact, and sometimes a real bummer. In this particular segment, the abductee we happened to feature in the segment was Mr. Pat Parinello, who had an implant removed from his hand. For this reason, we showed his hand implant. Sometimes key players in a piece do not want to be on television. It happens. It's hard to tell stories about particular people if they refuse to play ball.

Putting together a daily show is not an easy task, as anyone who has ever had the chance to work on one would be sure to tell you. There are many elements that factor in, and it can get quite crazy. This is my first experience in television, and I am in heaven. All day long I get to research fascinating material, learning about an incredibly wide range of things. I do my best to push our show towards being more educational, incorporating more science, etc. Well, it's a complicated process, but all in all it seems to flow.

Before doing research here, I taught high school math here in California, and before that I was on the east coast studying at Yale University. It was an incredible experience, and I've really grown and learned from it. I've met a lot of incredible people with amazing minds. I've been fortunate enough to study under some real masters. (for example, I was fortunate enough to have a class on chaos theory and fractal geometry taught by Benoit Mandelbrot) I've met some really inspirational people, who've encouraged me to go out and try to make the world a better place. Well, I can tell you that the people that work here at Strange Universe are all intelligent, loving, and very interesting. It's an eclectic bunch, and we are doing our best. It's funny, I get a kick out of reading some of the grand conspiracy theories that have evolved:

>makes me have to wonder who is really pulling the strings and >issuing orders at Strange Universe, and indeed, at UPN. It only >leads to more credence that the Global Elite control the major media.

Wow! I didn't know I was part of the Global Elite! Our show must be doing better than I thought... No, seriously...I am open to many things, and I think that David Icke's work is very compelling. However, I don't think that this is the case here. We're dealing with a more complex picture, one with many variables and factors that all play a part in the final outcome that is the show that airs on tv. It's always easiest to write things off as a great conspiracy, but I really believe that people are good at heart by nature. We're trying our best to bring attention to some things that don't get covered normally. I've had an opportunity to meet and work with some incredible people through this job, from astronauts to scholars. It has been quite a treat. If you had the opportunity to meet some of the people that work on our show you would realize that we are not a "Global Elite Media Conspiracy", but we're a bunch of earthlings, just like you, that want love in their life and peace. I mean that's what it all essentially comes down to in the end, anyway. Yes we live in a world that's imperfect. Yes there's problems with the way things are sometimes. But I do believe that everyone has the opportunity to make something beautiful and wonderful for themselves in this existence here and now. I'm trying, believe me. As are the others that work on the show with me. Please give us feedback. Let us know what we can do better, what we're doing right, what we're doing wrong. It's a young, evolving show. We will continue to work hard and do our best to present the information as accurately and fairly as possible. If you ever want to discuss anything, please feel free to e-mail or call me here at:
