Jorgen,

Tough questions don't bother me, attitudes do. You were acting as though you had some right to demand answers from me when I had told you I could not provide certain information which I had agreed to keep confidential.

>f you recieved $2000 by Santili for expences - doesn't that make you >disqualified to be neutral?

I received $ 2,000 from Ray Santilli and $ 250 from Lou Farish. That's my total income from this to date. I have spent more than $ 10,000 in my investigations. The $ 2,000 was reimbursement for part of my expenses for a trip to New Mexico to look for the crash site, a trip which was totally inconclusive. Don't you think that if Ray had "bought" me I would have certainly found a crash site, and it would have been just where "Jack" said it was?

As I've said before, I get paid for consulting work all the time, as well as getting reimbursement for expenses. No one has ever suggested before that this would influence the results of my work. Maybe to some people $ 2,000 is a whopping lot of money, but to me it is less than I earn in a week in my "real job", and so highly unlikely to influence me.

As far as what Hesemann and Mantle got, they have both responded to this themselves and since I was not party to any negotiations and did not personally witness any money changing hands, I prefer to reserve comment on this. I have heard no rumors about Santilli fixing up Philip's house, and doubt there would be any substance to them.

Bob
