Dr. Chase:

Thank you for publishing this post. The field of study which constitutes what some call UFOlogy and I call extraterrestrial related phenomena research is an emotionally intense arena.

For 50 years it has languished outside the mainstream scientific world as the purview of a complex mix of well meaning citizens. The slow and difficult process by the which members of the mainstream academic community elect to commit their time and resources to aspects of this field is of critical importance to its resolution.

The willingness of those in authority to maintain an open mind and be steadfast as to fairness and freedom of inquiry is equally important. You have done a great service.

The jury, of course, is still out as to the substance and direction of Dr. Brown's avocational work. But he is not the only researcher and his is not the only area of study. Ultimately, freedom of inquiry will sort out the valid from the invalid and produce a result we can all be proud of - whatever the nature and import of that result.

P.S. I spent many fine hours at Emory and hold it in high regard.
