Apology to MW #158 (For July 22, 1997)

I broke down and got popcorn at the movie last night.
I don't often, usually, as the fat used ain't right.
The price was the same, butter with or without. . .
It's a cheat they were pulling, I'm hopin' to shout!

So casually wrote off as "counting the bags."
To counter employee's that thieve like rogue stags.
What's the businessman other to do=20
But put all the overcharge so squarely on you?

This is the stuff that the watchers from space
Can find so repellent -- this charmless disgrace.
This is what covers their forms in the shadows;
This so corrosive to forests, and meadows.

The fat is the worst that the body imbibes
It's worse on the body than they'd ever describe
The money made here is beyond astronomical
'Cause it stays on shelves longer -- they're not being comical!

Forget the disease, and the strokes - diabetes!
Forget that it cheapens your spirit completely!
Forget that the sawbones is sharpening his knives;
Forget that the loss of mobility means life!

But this foul toxic waste is in all of your foods!
And the facts are all in, so upon them please brood.
There is evidence ample they soft sell the truth!
Remember tobacco. . .so once high ALOOF!

And if humans fuck EACH OTHER over for percentage!
And the quality of human must DEPEND on fateful lineage?=20
Then our watchers amble further into dark un-empty night.
They're blinking eyes rolled skyward as we fight our empty fight.

Lehmborg@snowhill.com

. . .and meaningless, unsatisfying, betraying -- lost, alone, and invalid we fight an empty fight. What could be emptier than a sports agent, whorishly short term, furtively feeding from the crumbs of a rich mans plate -- twice being a hero in our movie and TV stuff this last year. A sports agent? . . .sports . . .agent. . .? I don't get it Mr.
Cruise. It must be a hydrogenated vegetable oil kind of thing.
