Ed:

I have a couple of questions fer ya'. How in the hell were those "people from MUFON" identified, anyway? Were they sporting a scarlet M on their foreheads? Perhaps it'd been burned onto their behinds with a branding iron (which I hear are popular in Texas) in some sort of bizarre saucer-lovers ritual. Or maybe it'd been tatoood on their forearms, Nazi style.

Maybe the PFM (Persons From MUFON) were dressed up like storm troopers with the MUFON logo emblazoned on their helmets (they really should reveal their name, rank, and serial number ONLY when captured!). Or perhaps they were chanting "Walt Andrus, Walt Andrus, Walt Walt, Andrus Andrus," Hare Krisna-style as they scurried about like zombies committing their dastardly deeds...

You know, Ed, if I was bent on disrupting Tea Time in Tejas, it would be very easy, and muy convenient, I might add, for me to pin it on MUFON should I pull a boner and invade the wrong gathering. It's somewhat akin to blaming it on the Bossa Nova (the dance of love, BTW) and/or the Devil, when one's ass is against the wall. It's called passin' the buck dude, "The Devil made me do it," which in the immortal words of Ira Gershwin means, "It ain't necessarily so."
