And after two years we're still waiting! Pat if you're reading this, could you post some of the info we exchanged regarding the number of samples and how they were handled and labeled. The report from NIDS amounts to nothing more than 'scientific esperanto' and according to those who do understand it, the materials were prepared for study in a manner that would cause unnecessary waste and damage to the "implant". According to these same sources there were problems with the analysis itself (as performed by NIDS) that needed answering and resolving. None of which has been done or followed up on.

It's our own damn fault. These guys should be held accountable and they're not! Instead, everyone publishes their every move and whatever 'new project' they may be into and 'old business' gets lost in the shuffle. The public does indeed have a short memory, and I'm sure slicksters like Sims play that to their advantage. The "implants" that were surgically recovered two years ago is a perfect example of this. If we weren't discussing the topic in this thread very few (other than the abductees who were subjected to the surgery) would even be thinking about it. That's a shame. It's the reason why people like Sims & Lier get away with so much BS and are in fact invited to speak and give interviews as if they were 'doing the job' they said they were gonna do. In my neck of the woods if you can't 'deliver' they fire your ass post haste and give someone else a shot at it. Why are these nonproductive clowns treated like celebrities? I don't get it.

>First of all, we have performed only a limited number of six surgeries.

And every living ass of them should file a lawsuit demanding the results of the testing on the objects that were removed from their bodies, and the "implants" themselves. I don't know what the laws or legalities involved are, but the post surgical abductees should sue both their asses. I would be among the first to contribute a few bucks to legal fund set up for that purpose.

>The reason for this has to do with the strict protocols and criteria that >we have established.

Which are?

Mumbo-jumbo, fast talking BS intended to 'keep em quiet for a while.' Growing up in NY and being exposed to just about every type of hustle, hustler, flim-flam, and con artist imaginable allows you to have 'heard it all' at least once by the time you reach the ripe old age of 18.. Sims has a 'minor-league rap' compared to some of the pro's I've heard. But it's the same rap! Just rap.

Want some speculation based on 48 years of street smarts? Sims and Lier recruited the abductees, performed the surgeries, and then sold the recovered "implants" to Bob Bigelow for big bucks. How's that for a "plausible scenario?" My "theory" makes a lot more sense based on their own track record, than believing/assuming that these two slick mouthed hucksters are legit.

>These entities have not only been reviewed >by our own board of directors [Fund for Interactive Research in Space >Technology -- FIRST] but have met the extreme standards of the National >Institute of Discovery Science [NIDS, headed by Robert Bigelow]. This >prestigious organization has agreed to fund our work in part, and adds its >own expertise to the quality of the findings.

This is a joke. FIRST is Sims' own group. NIDS is Bob Bigelow. Big fish eat little fish. Bigelow being the richer of the two is probably calling all of the shots. Bigelow has been buying and hoarding all of the information on UFO's and aliens that he can and he's been doing it for years. NONE OF IT EVER SEES THE LIGHT OF DAY AGAIN.

Why,...I don't know, you'd have to ask Mr Bigelow. I just don't like it that once again people are treated as a 'commodity' and nothing is done about it. The 'perps' get away with it once again.

Let's demand some accountability from these bozos before anyone else spends another dime at one of their lectures or other public appearances. If I had an anti-christ to Bigelow willing to fund me I'd follow them wherever they were booked to speak and loudly demand answers from them ad nauseum until they gave us some!

I am an abductee. I know what Pat and the others have been through and all of the attendant crap that has to be worked through, it's not easy. Because of that we are kind of like 'brothers under the skin' so to speak and whatever happens to them, happens to me. I stand with them come hell or high water.

Mr Sims,... all I have is words, but I will hurl them at you like spears until you are held accountable for the results of those six surgeries. That information belongs to the world, whether fer or agin. We have a right to know. This is something that could eventually involve every living ass on the planet. Our little grey friends are very busy while we all screw around wasting valuable time like the passengers on the 'ship of fools'.
