What you are really doing is unloading your "interpretation" of Gulf Breeze based upon information you received.

For example the same documented facts that UFO researchers interpret to support their accounts of Roswell are also interpreted by others to support their pet accounts, which at times are at total odds.

The Kennedy Assassination is another case in point. 40 books by 40 experts with their interpretation of the facts which dovetails nicely with "their" pet theory.

Kind of like the guy in Texas who claimed that a particular document was proof that Kennedy was shot by the Feds. When the rest of the story came out, the FBI agent making the report in fact said in the report that he was only repeating a story that he heard over the Dallas radio station.

One of the posts I saw was claiming that you had some kind of signed statement by Ed Walters -- which even if true we must also consider under what "conditions" Ed signed the statement, if indeed he did.

We have notarized sworn signed statements from some Roswell witnesses, who later on turned around and allegedly swore out and signed a new statement about the location of the crash site. The story was that on the 2nd sworn statement had a profit motive basis. Again under what conditions were the statements signed under?

Bottom line is what interpretation you present and the BASIS for that interpretation. If the BASIS is well documented, your story may be credible. IF the BASIS withstands the test of time and examination, then your interpretation will be even more credible BUT not likely to be the last word.

As always I look forward to seeing this much talked about cast-in-stone-without-a-doubt evidence/proof that Gulf Breeze was a hoax.

Cheers,
Robert
