I did see a triangular formation of lights very briefly at about 4:55 EST on an NBC-TV news report of the bombing of Baghdad. The lights were steady and it was a definite and very striking V-shaped formation like those at Phoenix. It was against a black night sky and very different than the 'greenish' tracer flare images of the sky, which did not hold their positions for any length of time like the V-shaped light formation did. I thought it was peculiar and tried to find a repeat of that on later reports so I could tape it, but never saw a replay of it, though all the other video shots of the bombings were repeated. Perhaps somebody out there can also confirm this and even possibly might have a VCR recording of it.
